

UNION PACIFIC DEPOT . . . as it looked in 1920.

Old Depot Needs A Home

The Union Pacific Freight Depot, a frame building just north of the "O" St. viaduct, is in need of a new home.

According to Persis Kolberg, curator of historic sites at the State Historical Society, Union Pacific officials have offered to donate the structure to any group willing to remove it from its present site.

Unless the depot is removed within the next 30 days, said Kolberg, Union Pacific authorities will initiate action to tear the building down.

Kolberg reported that the depot must be removed from Union Pacific property because it is "economically unfeasible" for the company to retain it.

Although the State Historical Society cannot accept property unless designated by the Legislature, Kolberg said that he would be willing "to work closely with any group interested in undertaking the project of removing and refurbishing the old depot."

He suggested that the building might make an attractive tourist information center for one of Lincoln's parks.

Possibly the oldest railroad structure in Lincoln, the 1877 depot is presently being used by the railroad as office space.

Kolberg reported that very few interior and exterior alterations have been made over the years. Part of the original ticket window and passenger benches are still intact. He added that the building is rapidly deteriorating and is in a "poor state of repair."

The curator of historic sites expressed his concern over the possible loss to Lincoln of such old buildings as the depot. He said that preservation efforts have been less effective in Nebraska's bigger cities than in the smaller towns. Kolberg cited North Platte as an example of a city that was trying to acquire the old Union Pacific depot, which became famous as a canteen during World War II, for use as a museum.

Concerns For Ecology, City's Growth Presented

. . . AT HEARING ON FREEWAYS

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Concerns ranging from protection of the ecology to promoting the growth of Lincoln were expressed Thursday night at a public meeting on the proposed corridors for the Lincoln segment of the state freeway system.

The amount of public interest in the proposed corridors for the freeway was brought out by the fact that an estimated 580 people attended and the meeting lasted almost four hours.

The corridors proposed by the private consulting firm of Van Doren-Stallings-Schnacke, Topeka, Kan., are general areas approximately 2,000 feet wide.

The corridors are located on the east, west, and south sides of the city, and south from Lincoln along U.S. 77.

Much of the discussion centered around areas where the proposed routes might conflict with parks.

Sen. Barnett of Lincoln asked that when and if the four-lane freeways are built that they "find a way to avoid the parks."

He pointed out that one of the proposed corridors for the east leg of the east bypass cuts through Wilderness Park and another segment cuts through planned Northeast Park.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf read a detailed resolution passed by the City Council and supported by the City Planning Commission that supported the corridor that would cut through Wilderness Park.

The resolution asked, however, that the road way minimize environmental disturbance and that the roadway be made compatible with the park.

Patricia Rand, an assistant professor of botany at the University of Nebraska, said, "It disturbs me and it disturbs any ecologist to see a highway run through the park."

However, she pointed out that there are already railway and highway right of ways in the park, and added, "One more right of way won't make that much difference."

A spokesman for the Nebraska Wildlife Federation said the routing of a freeway through the park, "made the concept of the park generally obsolete."

A representative of the Fremont Chamber of Commerce pointed out that construction of the freeway in the proposed corridor areas would make it possible for Fremont residents to have easier access to the state and federal agencies, educational facilities and recreational facilities in Lincoln.

J. A. Fagerstrom, a member of the Blue Stem group of the Sierra Club said shopping centers and office buildings would spring up around the interchanges if the freeway is built.

He said that as the city spreads outward to these areas Lincoln could be faced with the cost of urban renewal and a bigger police force.

Ted Schafer, a Lincoln attorney, said he objected to the timing of the hearing.

He said people needed more time to analyze the report and pointed out that it took the consulting firm 22 months to compile it.

He also said the firm's report was "definitely lacking in statement of need for an east Lincoln bypass."

Ban On Student Fees For Speakers Sought

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney Thursday said he will introduce a bill next week to prohibit the use of mandatory student fees to subsidize speakers on public university and college campuses throughout the state.

The measure will also require an accounting of the use of all student fee funds.

Stromer had earlier promised to deliver a bill regulating the use of student fees, but terms of the measure had not previously been outlined.

The 29-year-old lawmaker, who is chairman of the Nebraska Federation of Young Republicans, said he is concerned by an apparent imbalance of "militant radical" speakers subsidized by student fees on the University of Nebraska's Lincoln campus.

"There appears to be an imbalance of people representing what is called the revolutionary point of view," he said.

"Students of today have the capabilities to make logical and rational judgments provided they have the opportunity to be exposed to all points of view."

Stromer said his bill "would not limit who can come on campus to speak."

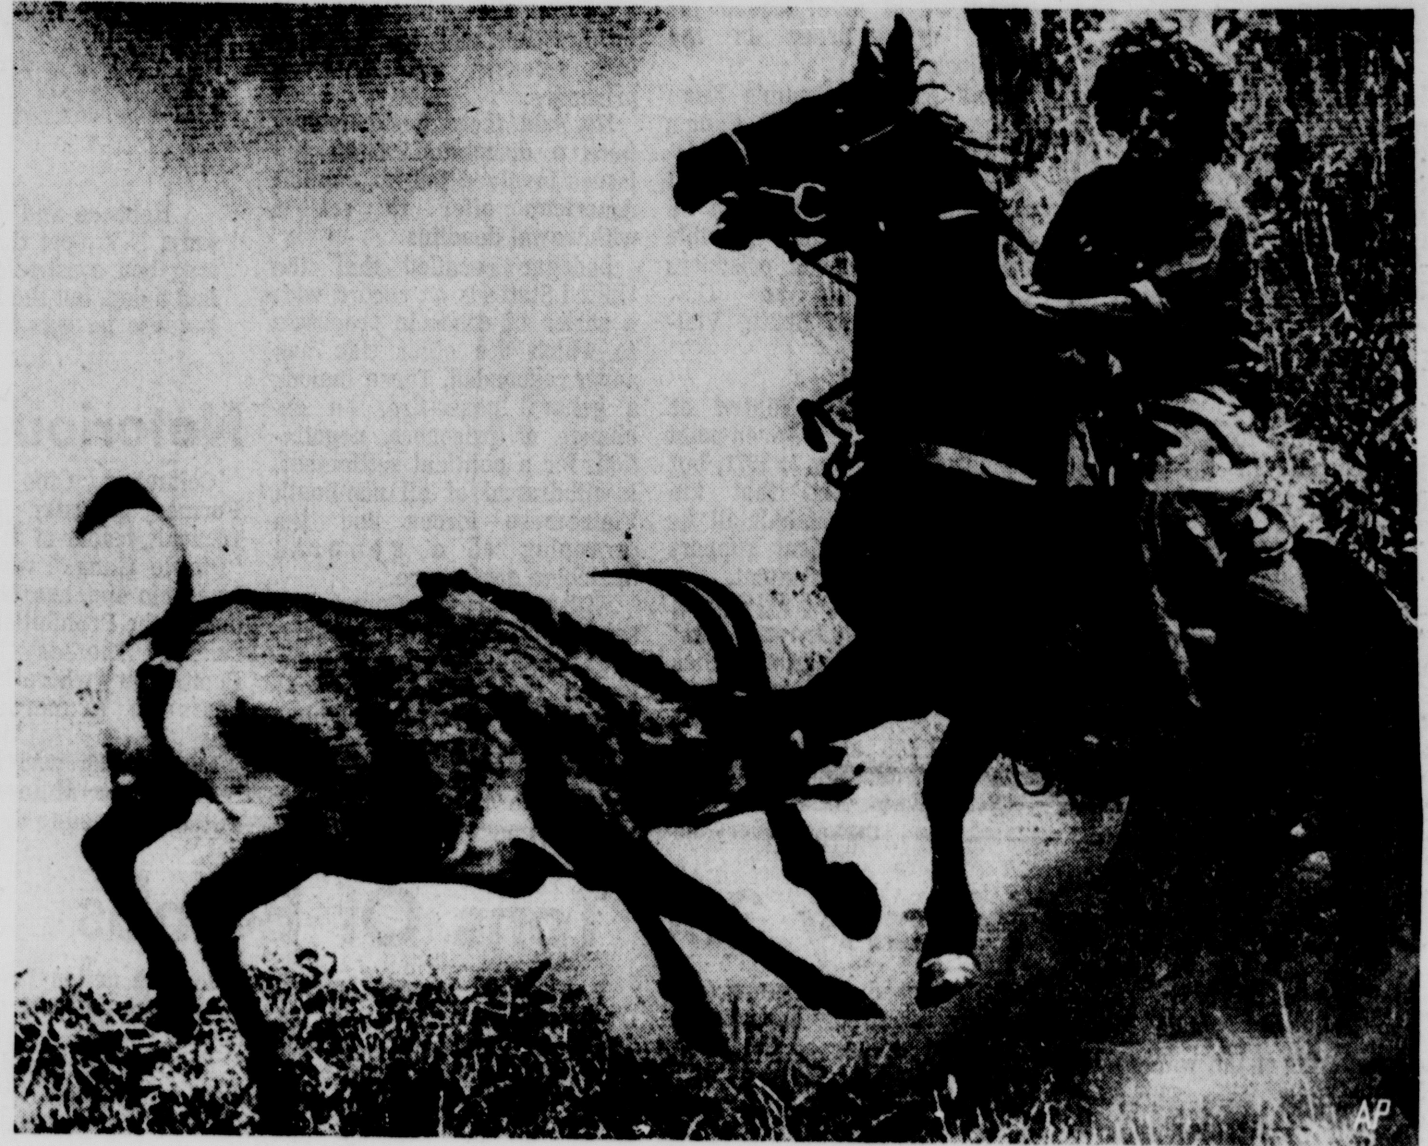

Any student group that wishes could bring speakers to the campus, he said, but they would have to fund the appearance themselves, charge admission or acquire speakers without cost.

Stromer's bill will join what has become a steady stream of new legislative proposals submitted to the 1972 Legislature. Thirty-two new bills were introduced Thursday, bringing the week's total thus far to 147.

Among them were Sen. Orval Keyes' combination property tax relief and school aid proposal and Sen. Herb Duis' proposed constitutional amendment to limit local taxes on real estate to a maximum of one per cent of actual value.

Both bills had been outlined earlier by the senators.

The Duis plan, contained in LB1185, would have the practical effect of transferring support for schools from the local property tax to state sales and income tax revenue.

Judge Rules On Estate Of Millionaire Bigamist

Los Angeles (UPI) — In a decision that would have taxed Solomon's judgment, Superior Court Justice Robert Kenny ruled Thursday in the case of millionaire Juan Vargas who left two wives and an estate of $1,063,165—and no

Judge Kenny decided the estate should be divided equally between Josephine Vargas and Mildred Vargas because during his 64 years on this earth, Vargas had "two help-mates figuratively at side."

Testimony during the trial revealed that Vargas literally, if also figuratively, had spent 78 nights over his last two years "with a different girl every night" in a motel before he died of automobile accident injuries in 1969.

Five-foot two-inches, 160 pounds at his death, Vargas had two households of wives and children, six grandchildren and the world believing that he was a solid citizen.

Vargas, who filed his income tax as a "traveling salesman," married his first wife, Mildred, in 1929, when he was making $125 a month. They had three children — Elena, 41; Juan III, and Claire, 39.

In 1945, unknown to Mildred, he married Josephine and by that union he produced Juan Antonio, 25; Judith, 24; Josie, 22, and Julie, 21.

The two families met for the first time at the funeral parlor after Juan's death.

During the court battle over his estate, Julie testified:

"He was very conservative. He wouldn't let us girls put on eye shadow or fingernail polish or wear short dresses. We all had to be at dinner right on time and he watched our grade cards very carefully."

The night before his death, testimony brought out, Vargas spent yet another evening of pleasure and then headed home — whether to Josephine or Mildred was unclear.

Raquel Divorced

Santa Monica, Calif. (UPI) — Actress Raquel Welch, 29, was granted an interlocutory divorce degree Thursday from her second husband, Patrick A. Curtis, 36, a film producer.

Superior Court Justice Gossvoe O. Farley awarded Miss Welch $1 a year token alimony and custody of her two children by her first marriage, Damon, 11, and Tahnee, 9.

McCook Man Dies In Crash

McCook (AP) — A car-truck collision east of here Thursday claimed the life of John T. McConville, 22, of McCook, the State Patrol reported.

The car he was driving collided with a truck on U.S. 6-34 after the automobile crossed the center line, authorities said.

The patrol said McConville was traveling west on the road when his vehicle veered across the centerline, striking the westbound truck.

Fire Toll Hits 163

Seoul (UPI) — A 22-year-old Korean girl injured in the Christmas Day fire at Seoul's Taeyongak Hotel died at a hospital where she had been undergoing treatment, police reported. With her death, casualties in the worst hotel fire in history rose to 163 confirmed dead and 66 injured.

Sato's government reeled under twin shocks from Nixon last summer. The first was the President's announcement that he would visit China and the second was the imposition of a 10% surtax on U.S. imports.

U.S. Warns Red Side Offensive Nearsighted

Paris (AP) — The United States expressed concern Thursday over a major enemy offensive it believes is being planned in Indochina, presumably in the hope of disrupting President Nixon's forthcoming visit to Peking.

As the Vietnam peace talks resumed following a four-week interruption, the two sides bogged down in bitter accusations. Each side accused the other of refusing to negotiate while violating its own commitments.

The Viet Cong went out of its way to deny President Nixon's assertion that he tried — and failed — to obtain the release of American prisoners in return for a total American withdrawal.

U.S. negotiator William J. Porter told the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations: "I wish to caution you that the military efforts you seem to be planning on the western border of South Vietnam and elsewhere in Indochina are not likely to achieve anything to your permanent advantage and will probably entail the loss of many more lives."

"I urge you to reflect before you engage in the military adventures you apparently are planning."

Unusual Warning

The unusual warning was believed to reflect American concern that an enemy buildup in Cambodia and Laos may be the prelude to a major offensive to coincide with Nixon's Peking visit next month.

In veiled but unmistakable terms, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have repeatedly expressed their misgivings that Nixon's trip may lead to a Chinese-U.S. deal behind their backs.

At the end of the fruitless four-hour session, Porter told newsmen he heard nothing new from the Communist delegates which might give ground for hopes of a break in the deadlock.

Both North Vietnam's Xuan Thuy and the Viet Cong's Nguyen Van Tien angrily denounced Nixon for his televised interview Sunday, in which he was asked about the possible release of American prisoners in return for an U.S. withdrawal from South Vietnam.

Reds Hinted

The Communists hinted at such a deal in their seven-point peace plan of July 1, 1971, but they also insisted that the United States must halt all its military and political support for the Saigon government.

Nixon said Sunday a prisoners-for-withdrawal deal was discussed at various times in the Paris talks, but Hanoi "totally rejected it." But he said nothing about fixing a withdrawal deadline.

Tien told newsmen Nixon had "tried to make everyone believe he proposed a deadline for an American withdrawal.

"I can affirm that never, from the beginning of the Paris conference three years ago until now, has the U.S. government proposed a time limit for the withdrawal of its forces. His proposal is a pure invention."

'Hypocrisy'

Tuay also denounced Nixon's news conference as "a model of hypocrisy and an exercise in provocation for publicity purposes which smells strongly of gunpowder. We reject it categorically."

The U.S. delegation spokesman, Stephen Ledogar, was questioned about whether the United States had offered a total withdrawal in exchange for release of American prisoners.

He said there has certainly been a discussion of all the issues involved but no explicit American offer to set a withdrawal deadline.

Ledogar recalled that the United States is on record with a series of concrete proposals to which the other side has never responded. These include a general cease-fire, an exchange of prisoners, negotiations for a political settlement, a withdrawal of all non-South Vietnamese forces and the convening of a general Indochina conference.

With regard to the Communist seven-point peace proposals, Ledogar said the other side expected the United States to accept them on an all or nothing basis and had consistently refused to explain what their proposals are, what they mean and how they are related.

Notorious 'Purple Gang' Chief Released

Columbus, Ohio (UPI) — Former gangster Thomas L. Licaoli, leader of the notorious "Purple Gang," which struck fear into the hearts of rivals during the Prohibition era, was released Thursday from Ohio Penitentiary where he spent 37 years on a murder conviction.

Licaoli, 68, who suffered a heart attack while in prison, said he planned to live with his wife in suburban Gahanna and pursue his prison hobby of collecting and selling rare stamps.

"It's wonderful to be out," Licaoli told waiting newsmen.

Licaoli was convicted in 1934 and sentenced to life for the gangland slaying of three rival mobsters and one of their gun molls while head of the "Purple Gang," which wielded powerful influence in the Toledo-Detroit underworld.

Even during his stay in prison Licaoli was a center of controversy. Two prison officials resigned during his time in prison under charges of showing Licaoli favoritism.

Some political observers believe that former Gov. James A. Rhodes was defeated in the 1970 Republican primary because he had commuted Licaoli's conviction to second-degree murder in 1969.

San Quentin To Be Closed

San Quentin, Calif. (UPI) — Dreary old San Quentin Prison, California's oldest penal institution whose name has been burned into the annals of modern prison violence, is headed for oblivion.

Gov. Ronald Reagan Thursday announced plans for a three-year phaseout of the 120-year-old prison, where 11 persons have been killed in the past year and whose huge death row houses some of the country's most notorious murderers.

San Quentin's yellow-brick buildings now confine such death cell inmates as Sirhan Sirhan, the slayer of Sen

Robert E. Kennedy; mass killers Charles Manson and John Linley Frazier, and a total convict population of 2,214.

Fishing Is OK

Petoskey, Mich. (UPI) — For the first time in 74 years, it will be legal soon to fish on Sunday at Lake Michigan Harbor or in Bear River at Petoskey. The City Council has rescinded an 1898 ordinance making it a crime to fish on the Sabbath.

Muskie Says Nixon Lets Down Public

Concord, N.H. (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, formally entered New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary Thursday, then assailed the Nixon administration for destroying public credibility in government.

"Americans increasingly don't believe their government," Muskie said in his first major appearance since declaring his candidacy Tuesday. "That must be changed."

Thursday was the filing deadline and Muskie was followed a short time later by Rep. John M. Ashbrooke, R-Ohio, in submitting nominating signatures.

After presenting 4,000 voter signatures and the required $500 filing fee to Secretary of State Robert L. Stark, and addressing briefly the New Hampshire Legislature, Muskie fielded questions from newsmen.

Example Offered

Muskie offered as an example of administration secrecy the conduct of American diplomacy during the Indo-Pakistani war as revealed by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

"The administration's public statements was that it was not anti-India. This came from a Henry Kissinger backgrounder in 1971," Muskie said.

"In the Anderson Papers the result is obvious. We, the administration, are not anti-India enough. This also came from Dr. Kissinger."

"This is hardly the way to gain respect for national leadership and honesty," Muskie said.

"I certainly don't condone stealing papers as a method to inform the public. But that's not the problem. The problem is the government is following privately a path which publicly appears different."

"This administration has reversed itself on wage-price controls, a balanced budget, and mainland China. It has reversed itself so constantly that the public is concerned whether it stands on a course which leads to the future," the senator said.

Stark had a form letter prepared saying Muskie petitions had been presented in his behalf when he arrived at late morning with 4,000 signatures — about twice what any other candidate filed. Only 1,000 signatures were required.

Muskie's candidacy makes the race for the Democratic nomination a four-way contest. Sens. George S. McGovern of South Dakota and Vance Hartke of Indiana already had entered along with Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles.

A number of presidential hopefuls have chosen to stay out of New Hampshire. Many Democrats feel Muskie is a shoo-in and therefore are running in Florida, Indiana or Wisconsin where they feel their chances are better.

Mayor, Senators

These include Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota.

Muskie is considered to be easily able to win and McGovern is given the best chance of scoring an upset. The strength of Hartke and Yorty are hard to determine at present.

Ashbrook became the third Republican to run. The other candidates on the GOP side are President Nixon, whose name was entered by former Gov. Lane Dwinell without the President's permission, and Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif.

B52s Loose Nearly 300 Tons Of Bombs

Saigon (AP) — B52 Stratofortresses made their biggest raid of the war on the demilitarized zone Thursday, dropping nearly 300 tons of bombs on enemy targets.

At the same time, the U.S. Command disclosed that a second plane had made a strike inside North Vietnam Wednesday, attacking a radar site only 64 miles southwest of Hanoi.

The rising tempo of the air war reflected allied concern that the enemy may try to launch an offensive soon.

One area where an enemy buildup has been noted is in the demilitarized zone separating the Vietnams. Nine waves of B52s attacked storage areas, bunkers and supply lines in the southwest corner of the zone. The front along the demilitarized zone had been quiet for weeks until last Tuesday, when an enemy attack killed three South Vietnamese soldiers.

American jets, in the year's two first so-called protective reaction strikes in North Vietnam, attacked scanning radar. U.S. military sources acknowledged that rules had been broadened to include all radar sites. Previously targets have been radar sites that lock on a plane to put it in the sights of anti-aircraft guns.

Mirroring the stepped-up air war, the U.S. Command announced that two Americans were reported killed in Indochina action last week — both of them shot down over Laos.

The command said it had no way of knowing which of 15 pilots reported missing in the last three weeks of December were listed now as dead. It was the first week since March 1965 when the recorded U.S. deaths in action were only in the air.

The U.S. Command also said 50 Americans were wounded in action last week, about average for the last three months of the year.

The Saigon command reported 205 South Vietnamese troops killed and 514 wounded, and the allies reported 874 enemy killed.

100-Year-Old Chairman Of GM Of Canada Dies

Oshawa, Ont. (UPI) — Robert Samuel McLaughlin, chairman of the board of General Motors of Canada and one of the last of the turn-of-the-century automobile pioneers, died Thursday at the age of 100.

McLaughlin, known throughout the auto industry as "Mr. Sam," had been ailing for some time, a GM spokesman said. He underwent abdominal surgery in June 1971 and spent most of his time since then at his Parkwood Estates home, venturing out only occasionally for a drive.

Born Sept. 8, 1871, in Oshawa, the son of the founder of the McLaughlin Carriage Co., McLaughlin went to work for his father as a $3-a-week upholsterer.

After the turn of the century, he foresaw the future of the automobile and founded the McLaughlin Motor Car Co. in Oshawa.

Robert S. McLaughlin

Known As 'Mr. Sam'

In 1918, the McLaughlin family's automobile interests were sold to General Motors of Canada, and McLaughlin became president of the company and later, board chairman.

He retired as president of GM of Canada at the age of 53, ostensibly to "ease up," he once said. But his association with the company was still active almost a half century later. While he had retired some time ago as member of the board of directors, he retained the title of chairman of GM of Canada to his death.

(His wealth was estimated at $275 million, AP reported.)

Nebraska Recreation Board Bill Readied For Legislature

A proposed bill creating a Nebraska Recreation Board may be introduced to the current session of the Unicameral, The Star has learned.

The bill stems from meetings of the Recreation Study Committee of the Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth which hopes to provide a place for the people of Nebraska to turn with regards to parks and

Arbor Day Tree To Be Green Ash

By resolution, Nebraska's Legislature Thursday designated the green ash as the Arbor Day centennial tree.

This year brings the centennial of the Nebraska-orig.nated Arbor Day observance, and Thursday's resolution marked another step in plans for a centennial commemoration.

Sen. Calvin Carsten of Avoca, chief sponsor of Resolution No. 6, said the state's nurserymen suggested the green ash for centennial year planting because it is natural to Nebraska and is in good supply.

Dissenters as the resolution was adopted 39-2 were Sens. Ramey Whitney of Chappell and Robert Clark of Sidney. Whitney said the only ash trees in his area were planted by early settlers and they are disappearing. The Chinese elm is presently more popular for planting, he said.

Sen. Carsten also has introduced a bill to make the green ash Nebraska's State Tree by law.

The American elm presently is the state tree, but Dutch elm disease is decimating the elm tree population.

Introduced Thursday but held over for later action was a resolution memorializing President Nixon to seek to induce the Soviet Union to end discrimination against Jews and to permit their emigration. The resolution, No. 7, was sponsored by Sens. Sam Klaver and Eugene Mahoney of Omaha, and Jerry Carpenter of Scottsbluff.

recreation, according to Ralph McClintock.

McClintock, a member of the Recreation Study Committee, said, "We feel it is important for the people of the state to have a place they may go for advice and information in this area."

"Currently there is no one state office or agency to head up the gathering and dissemination of information to communities which are trying to expand their recreation programs."

Mrs. Clifford Jorgensen, also a member of the committee, emphasized that the board would be set up to coordinate all the existing agencies and should not be interpreted as an attempt to infringe upon or control the functions of these agencies.

As the proposed legislation stands now, the board would consist of nine Nebraska citizens appointed by the governor and who hold no other state or county office. The members would be drawn from each of the congressional districts and would serve without compensation other than travel and maintenance expenses.

Ex officio members of the board would include the director of the State Game and Parks Commission, commissioner of the State Department of Education, director of the State Department of Economic Development, head of Community Development, head of the Extension Division at the University of Nebraska, director of the State Department of Health, Director of the State Department of Public Welfare, and director of the Department of Public Institutions.

Various duties of the board would include formulating in cooperation with other state agencies, interested organizations and citizens a comprehensive recreation policy for the state.

The board would study and appraise recreational needs, help in promotion and organization of local recreational and park systems and upon request advise local groups in this area.

Another area of the board's concern would include aid in recruiting, educating, and placing recreation workers and to help establish park and recreational standards.

The board would also cooperate with state and federal agencies, commercial and industrial recreational interests, voluntary agencies and other groups concerned with promoting recreational opportunities.

One department expressing major interest in the creation of a state recreation board is the University of Nebraska Extension Division.

Robert Dula, supervisor of community Recreation and Planning, said he is definitely interested in supporting this proposed legislation.

"I traveled over 10,000 miles dealing with 106 communities last year and I definitely feel there is a need for such a coordinating agency," Dula said.

There is no state office to channel incoming recreational needs, Dula explained, and a state recreational office would do just that.

Dula noted that many groups and communities in the state are concerned with promoting recreational and park areas and these groups do not know where to go for advice and assistance.

The state of Georgia created a similar department to serve its outstate recreational needs, Dula said, and its parks development has grown considerably since then.

"There are over 12 states at present with state recreational departments similar to this proposal," Dula said.

Grain Price Support Hike Backing Eyed

The Nebraska Legislature Thursday was asked to support pending congressional action which would raise by 25% the federal price supports for wheat and feed grains.

Sens. Loran Schmit of David City, Richard Maresh of Milligan, and Walter Epke of York sponsored a resolution to put the Unicameral of record in favor of the price support increase.

The increase has already been approved by the House and is now in the Senate.

"The chronic disparity between agricultural income and the income of other segments of our economy has now assumed even greater proportions due to bountiful harvests, increased farm productive efficiency, and the resultant disaster level prices for farm crops," according to the resolution.

The resolution was laid over.

Another resolution, sponsored by Lincoln Sen. Harold Simpson, asked for an interim study on housing in Nebraska.

In his resolution, Simpson said there exists in the state unsafe and unsanitary housing and suggested an interim study could bring together information already collected on the problem.

Carpenter Seeks End To Secrecy

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff Thursday asked the Nebraska Legislature to reconsider rules which prohibit newsmen from reporting some committee activities.

The request was made by Carpenter in the form of an amendment to the legislative rules, and was referred to the rules committee for a decision.

The change the lawmaker requested would allow newsmen to report the votes of individual senators on actions taken while a committee is in executive, or closed door, session.

In addition, newsmen would be able to report "all of the discussions" which take place in the closed door sessions.

For years, reporters have been allowed to sit in on the closed door sessions, but they were prohibited from writing about anything which took place except the numerical vote on bills.

"All it takes is some courage" to roll back the doors of secrecy, said Carpenter.

Tax Chief Explains Mistake In Study Of Property Taxes

State Tax Commissioner William Peters said Thursday a $13 million mistake in a recent personal property tax survey was due to an error in copying Douglas County figures into the survey.

"The survey was released as soon as it was printed, and then it was checked," he said. "It didn't make sense to us."

The correction indicates the total property tax paid in 1971 will be $56,463,186.88 instead of the $43,509,925.09 given in the original survey.

The survey is being used in Gov. J. J. Exon's campaign to inform the public of his version of a property tax exemption plan.

Several other plans to provide relief for property owners have been introduced in the Legislature, including one by an interim tax study committee chaired by Sen. Jules Burbach which is similar to a proposal Exon vetoed last year.

In the survey, property tax returns are separated into business and farm returns and given in county-by-county totals.

The error occurred when the statistics on Douglas County farm returns were incorrectly copied into the column for business returns, Peters said.

Budget Unit Post To Sen. Johnson

A recommendation by the Legislature's Committee on Committees that Sen. E. Thome Johnson of Fremont be appointed to fill a vacancy on the Budget Committee was approved by the Unicameral Thursday.

Johnson takes over the committee seat of Elmer Wallwey of Emerson, who resigned from the Legislature last month.

Sen. Leroy Pfister of South Sioux City, who was named by Gov. J. J. Exon to replace Wallwey, was appointed to Johnson's position on the Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee and the Public Works Committee.

Gov. Exon Not Surprised By Action Killing Proposed Ban On Food Tax

By The Associated Press
Gov. J. James Exon said Thursday he "was not a bit surprised" the Legislature killed an Exon-backed proposal to eliminate food from the state sales tax.

"I'm just disappointed that the senators did not have enough faith in the people of the state of Nebraska to let the people have a chance to vote on an issue as important as this," Exon said.

He was referring to Wednesday's action when a proposed constitutional amendment to take the tax off food was killed on a 29-15 vote.

Exon and the Democratic Party are sponsoring a petition drive which, if successful, would place the question on the November ballot as a constitutional proposal.

The initiative measure is similar to the bill killed Wednesday.

"I was convinced LB1039 was not going to pass anyway," Exon explained, "that's why we went to the initiative petition method."

"I have confidence in the people of the state of Nebraska and I feel they should have a chance to vote on this question. I'm willing to abide by their decision."

The pledge by Exon to attempt to take the tax off food was a promise of his 1970 gubernatorial campaign and the 1971 Legislature killed an Exon bill which would have accomplished that goal along with eliminating the $7 food tax credit now allowed Nebraskans on their state income tax forms.

"We feel confident our petition drive will be successful," Exon said. "And we're sure that we'll have this measure on the ballot in November, regardless of what the Legislature does."

The food tax question, he said, "is dead for this session but we're still going ahead with our plans to give the people a chance to decide."

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Matters affecting local and state tax systems are a dime a dozen in the current Legislature. If the Legislature, as Sen. Terry Carpenter has suggested, wants to get its business done and adjourn, one good way of doing it would be to forget about all bills relating to the tax system.

When you get right down to it, the system today isn't too bad. A proposal by Sen. Herbert Duis, planned for introduction, would limit taxes on real property to no more than one per cent of the actual value of that property. This is probably about a third of the taxes that are now levied on property.

Sen. Willard Waldo would eliminate the recently enacted homestead exemption and kill the authority for local governments to levy a sales tax. Other proposals include various approaches to the sales tax on food and, of course, the highly controversial tax on personal property.

If nothing at all were changed in these areas, very few taxpayers would know the difference and the state would save itself a lot of time. Of course, it won't happen that way because the temptation to fool with the system is just too great.

On the personal property matter, it refers to business and farm equipment or inventories and automobiles. We wonder if the voters really knew what they were doing when they voted favorably on legislative authority to eliminate this tax.

The tax on automobiles will not be eliminated. This is not even under discussion. The only thing under discussion is the tax that is applied against farm equipment and business equipment and inventories.

The discussion centers on two proposals, one by Sen. Jules Burbach and one by Gov. J. James Exon. Exon's approach is far the superior and his figures demonstrate that a total eventual writeoff of this tax, as Burbach proposes, would simply shift some $55 million in taxes from the wealthy to everyone else.

Without boring you with the statistics, the great share of this personal property tax is paid by a relatively small number of farmers and businesses. Most who pay the tax are small farmers and small businesses.

Thus, a slow and escalating exemption such as Exon proposes would give relief to those who need it most among the personal property taxpayers. But it would continue a good slice of the tax on those who are bigger operators and presumably, can afford to pay the tax.

Nor are all the inequities of the personal property tax the same. Generally speaking, the farmer would have a hard time passing on the cost of this tax because he has so little control over the prices he receives for the things he markets. The business, on the other hand, can pretty well pass the tax on to customers.

Thus, there is far less inequity in the tax as it is applied against business than there is in its application to farmers. Another aspect of the matter has to do with the effects of the tax on prices.

Eliminating the personal property tax on business is not likely to save the buying public much of anything in the market place. Possibly, some savings could be found in the purchase of automobiles but even this is pure speculation.

The average business or industry is not going to lower its prices when and if the tax is removed. Rather, removal of the tax will merely fatten profit margins.

Another state senator, Orval Keyes, has said that the Legislature should look at class exemptions in personal property, based on such things as income production and the payment of a sales tax.

Finally, there is the overall matter of pressing need for tax funds at the state level. In the face of this need, is it appropriate to talk about any tax elimination or exemption, at all? If it has to come and the choice is the Exon or Burbach proposal, Exon clearly has the better plan.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Early Retirement
A Growing Trend

NEW YORK — Middle-aged wives who flout their membership in the "for better or worse, but not for lunch" club may wind up cooking noontime hamburgers long before they're ready to have the old man around the house all day.

(As for their own meal . . . well, some folks say you can get used to eating crow.)

The stark economic fact is that more and more men are grabbing early retirement. And "early" doesn't always mean 62, or even 60. In some cases it is 55.

While this may send the lady of the house into a panicky spin, for most men it opens up an unexpected chance to put their daydreams to work. Especially if they're lucky enough to be under a generous pension plan.

Many of them are. Some plans are more liberal than others, but out of 34,000,000 workers covered by a total of $150 billion in private pension funds, at least 10 per cent are now retiring the first chance they get.

And if that chance comes in their middle 50s, they still have time to "daylight" another career. With that pension check rolling in every month, they're even willing to settle for less pay.

They can afford to. Because the average private retirement plan pays out one per cent of salary for each year worked. So, if after 30 years a man is making, say, $20,000 a year, he can retire on $6,000 or $7,000 a year, with Social Security still to come.

This won't put him in the affluent society, exactly, but it will let him escape from the rat race into something he thinks might be more challenging. The experts call this "occupational renewal."

Or, if he's closer to 60, he can really retire (and we won't go into what his wife calls THAT) and work on getting his golf score closer to his age (or maybe twice his age). Or take up painting . . . or girl watching . . . or reorganizing Mother's cupboards.

Whatever he chooses, the trend is toward early retirement with liberal benefits. And don't think it's all pure kindness on the part of management, either. Sometimes, even though it means paying pensions over a longer period, the company even saves money.

For one thing, it's a most effective way to weed out workers who aren't carrying their weight. On the executive level, it gets rid of the deadwood to make room for younger men with more than retirement on their minds.

Also, early retirement is a gentle way of easing out workers who have been replaced by computers and other space-age improvements. And, since their pension checks are considerably less than their salaries, the company has that much more to spend on additional computers. (Thus putting more men in line for early "retirement.")

During last year's depression, employers circumvented out-and-out firing by offering veteran employees early retirement — or else. Their jobs were then filled by younger men, who didn't cost the firm so much. This helped weather the hard times.

There are even some business prophets who predict that within 10 years, private industry will be offering retirement after 20 years at half-pay, even as a lot of public-payroll pension plans already do.

And whatever else that means, ladies, there go the all-day bridge games.

Value Of 'Anderson Papers'

Do the Anderson Papers really tell the public that much? We are of the opinion that the U.S. government unfortunately and through faulty reasoning aligned this country on the wrong side of the India-Pakistan war and the "secret-sensitive" minutes of White House Security Action Group meetings released by Columnist Jack Anderson reinforce that feeling.

Anderson said he released the classified information because he is against government secrecy and because he doesn't think the government has a right to lie in the conduct of its foreign policy.

There may have been incongruities in what National Security Advisor Henry Kissinger told the press for public consumption about the administration's stance on the Indo-Pakistani war and was being said in private among policy planners. It may also be true, as U.S. Ambassador to India Kenneth Keating alleges, that American policy was not justified by the facts of the situation.

But as far as the American public and the rest of the world was concerned, the U.S. came out on the side of Pakistan and it didn't take the release of the Anderson papers to make that perfectly clear.

The papers may be valuable for another and more important reason, however, in that they should generate action to change the government's system of classifying "secret" information.

It should be noted that the government did not immediately step in to see court action to restrain the publication of the Anderson Papers as it did in the case of the Pentagon Papers. There apparently was no serious breach of military security.

What this suggests is that there is much information that is stamped secret that is not crucial to the national security and thus should not be kept from the public. But the publication of the papers in itself shows that existing laws governing the classification of information are being abused.

The House Armed Services Committee's inquiry aimed at curbing overuse of the secrecy stamp and closing what Chairman F. Edward Hebert calls the "open season" on government secrets certainly is in order.

Housing Authority Vacancy?

Earlier this week in this space we commented on Mayor Schwartzkopf's promising selection of Mrs. Carol Yoakum to fill a vacancy on the Lincoln Housing Authority (LHA). The mayor has not completed what we believe to be his obligations regarding the current LHA situation, however.

Last June 30, the term of Housing Commissioner Carroll Thompson expired. Thompson, a former city councilman with past experience on the Mayor's Committee on Human Relations and the Mayor's Committee on Housing, was originally appointed to the LHA by the late Mayor D. L. Tyrrell in 1963 and was reappointed to a full term by Mayor Dean Peterson in 1966. He continues to serve at the pleasure of Mayor Schwartzkopf, although the mayor has neither made a new appointment nor notified Thompson of any intention to reappoint him.

This week, the authority elected Thompson chairman, succeeding Kenneth King, whose resignation from the LHA became effective Dec. 31 last year. Thompson accepted the post with the reservation that he would resign in February if he is not reappointed.

Thompson in his nine years on the LHA has exhibited an understanding of the housing problems besetting the low-income, students and the elderly. As its programs grow in scope, the authority can benefit from Thompson's valuable experience. We believe that it is his wish to continue serving, but his attitude in announcing he will resign if not reappointed is entirely reasonable. It would be difficult to be an effective chairman on a day-to-day basis.

Because it would be of value to the authority and its clients and the city as a whole, we think Thompson should remain on the authority. But, at any rate, the mayor should fish or cut bait. He should either reappoint Thompson or make a new appointment.

Muskie Offers Calm Face Of Reason To Voter;
Wallace's Florida Decision Harms Democrats

NEW YORK — It may be symbolic of trouble ahead that on the day Sen. Edmund Muskie launched his long-expected presidential candidacy in an expensive national telecast, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama got almost equal news coverage by casually letting the New York Times know that he would run in the Florida Democratic primary.

Actually, of course, it was the Muskie telecast itself, taking over the closing minutes of a popular prime-time entertainment show, that counted most.

The candidate came across as somewhat grim and unsmiling, rather like a prosecuting attorney summing up a capital case, but that is certainly to be preferred to "the politics of joy" that was so incongruous a part of Hubert Humphrey's 1968 campaign. No doubt some Americans will also prefer a stern Muskie visage to those nervous little smiles that flash across Mr. Nixon's face below the eyes.

Muskie showed some adequate phrase-making (particularly) "A New Beginning" with its echoes of both the New Deal and "Let's get this country moving again" and set out the case against the present administration convincingly, without too many wild swings or inside curves

(although when Muskie conceded that not everything wrong in the country could be charged to the Republicans, one thought that rose irrepressibly was that, indeed, a good many of them had to be charged to the Democrats).

Above all, however, Muskie appeared to succeed in striking the tone he is said to be seeking for his campaign — that of a calm, reasoning, trustworthy man whom Americans can follow with confidence. That achievement put him in some contrast with Nixon, whose various spokesmen and apologists are still explaining what he really meant to say in some passages — notably concerning Vietnam — of his hour-long television "conversation" Sunday night.

But if his manner makes Muskie look like perhaps the best counter to Nixon among the Democratic hopefuls, Wallace's decision to campaign as a Democrat, at least for the time being, throws new obstacles in Muskie's path to the nomination.

Most immediately, the Alabama governor's Florida campaign poses the threat of disaster for Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington. Florida was considered his best bet to show himself a big vote-getter and possibly to upset Muskie, but Wallace will almost certainly draw off the support of many who might otherwise have voted for Jackson, leaving him stranded far down the line.

The Wallace campaign does not appear to be in Muskie's interest, either. Wallace polled about 28 per cent of the votes of both Democrats and Republicans in the 1968 Florida general election, and various polls now show him with up to 40 per cent of Democratic voters. With a big field of more liberal candidates and a vigorous Wallace campaign in prospect, that kind of support could conceivably give Wallace a victory in the eighth largest state and one of the most important primaries. He is almost bound to make a strong showing, at the very least.

This would dramatize the question whether Muskie, if nominated, could hold Democrats in line against an almost certain Wallace third-party campaign next fall. And any time a candidate is likely to draw off as many voters as Wallace should in Florida, the outcome among all the other contenders is likely to be changed substantially. That could mean for instance, that Humphrey might finish ahead, instead of Muskie, or that the

School Finance: Hot Topic

The world of education is not only one of words—it has also been a world of watchwords, catch words, this-and-that words.

Last year, "the" word seemed to be "accountability."

But over the years there have been many words and phrases that have directed attention to schools. Other recent ones include "vouchers," "reorganization," "career education," "education without walls."

The list goes on and on.

But this year, it looks as if all those words and phrases may meet (or perhaps collide) in a couple of words that may be a bit easier for everyone to understand.

The words are "school finance."

And it's likely to be the hottest topic in education from the local school board to the state legislature to the U.S. Congress.

It's obvious, for example, that "school finance" is bound to ring through the Cornhusker State's own legislative halls plenty of times during the brief 1972 session.

Flags have begun to wave over several plans to change the way the state aids local school districts.

But unless Nebraska's legislators are willing to vote a hefty increase in state taxes during this election year, those plans may all wind up in the circular file by the time the 60 days are up.

The fact that there are several plans in the discussion stage is not particularly unusual — methods of aiding local school districts with state-collected monies have been major topics of discussion in other years.

But this year they all take on extra meaning in light of court decisions in California, Texas and Minnesota, the knowledge that other similar suits are pending in states all over the country, and the promise that such a suit will be filed in Nebraska.

Milan Wall

Suit To Be filed

The court decisions handed down thus far say the current methods of financing schools (used in virtually all states) are inequitable because of a reliance on local property taxes for much of school support.

That, said those courts, is unfair to poorer districts in a matter that's supposed to be a state-wide responsibility.

So, state legislatures in most of the 50 states are probably looking at the school finance question this year, or will be soon.

Unless observers of the educational scene miss their guesses, there's bound to be some other eyes focused on the same question from the federal level.

Speculation has it that President Nixon may suggest, in the near future, some national plan for school finance to help equalize educational opportunity nationwide.

Such a plan, it is said, might be financed by a "value-added" tax, a flat levy on the value added at each stage in the manufacture of a product.

Thus far, such a tax has been mentioned in terms of world trade competition, rather than as a revenue-producing scheme.

The tax is apparently common in Europe, where it is used to encourage exports by levying it against imports but rebating it to exporters.

Nixon is said to be considering asking Congress to consider it as a measure to strengthen the nation's world trade position.

He also could, it seems, suggest that the revenue from such a tax be used to support local schools across the country.

The California decision has already led Nixon, back in October, to order a new study of school financing. Announcing that study, HEW Secretary Elliott Richardson said school financing should move from "a narrowly based, regressive local tax to a more broadly based national tax."

And a study released in November by the U.S. Office of Education called for federal and state governments to assume almost all public school costs.

It certainly looks as if the winds are blowing in that direction.

Assuming that something is bound to happen to move in the direction of more federal financing, there are barbed questions that will be raised.

If the country goes to a national value-added tax for school support, for example, would that be as unfair to low-income families as the courts have said property taxes are? Perhaps not, if the poorer districts get a fair share of the returns.

It also raises interesting questions about the role of local school boards and the question of local control of schools.

And assuming some kind of federal block grants would go to states to parcel out among local schools, the power of state departments of education might be enormously enhanced.

Another question: If federal and state governments take on major financing of local schools, will the country also move toward federal or state teacher pay schedules?

And: Will teacher associations move into positions to negotiate for annual wage increases at state or federal levels?

Assuming those are the kind of questions that begin to pop up in the coming months, the school finance issue may draw as much national attention as any other domestic concern of recent years.

Un-Answer

Lincoln, Neb.

The League of Women Voters should be called the League of Women Voters. These women have nothing better to do than suggest ways of doing away with elections.

While they are yammering for more efficiency in government, their husbands are demanding as university professors, less time in the classroom, and as business executives, longer two-hour lunches.

No, they are the un-answer to these city, county and state problems.

Promises

Burwell, Neb.

If Nixon is re-elected, it will be money that does it — not the poor and middle-class people. He is grabbing at anything that looks like votes. Sideburns for the young voters — freeing Hoffa for the labor vote — making what some people call

"bold moves" to see what happens. My guess is that instead of being bold, he is desperate. And now, big promises for welfare recipients. No end to promises. I hope people aren't gullible enough to fall for his promises.

The killing goes on so it will tally with Nixon timing. It doesn't seem to matter to him if a few hundred or thousand boys lose their lives to make his timing work.

He is adopting Democratic measures and anything else that he thinks means votes. As usual, he is promising miracles. Why rely on his promises? I think the Democrats should be blamed for giving him a comparative free hand. Maybe they thought he would "hang himself." Any apparent good he does, he will spoil it by arranging for the middle class to pick up the tab.

Legislation Needed

Lincoln, Neb.

The time has long since come for our state senators to look at some type of legislation in the health field to regulate our spiraling hospital costs. Our hospitals enjoy much the same advantages as do our public utilities, yet they are allowed to set their room rates and various other charges with very little if any justification to their patients. We are told that labor costs are driving hospital room rates out of sight; yet I have never seen a hospital justify its labor costs by publishing a breakdown of its labor budget. Very few people will argue with the fact that it takes a high-salaried administrator to run a large modern hospital but some justification should have to be made for the numerous high-salaried department heads, especially in non-income-producing capacities.

Hospitals have long been allowed to build their own power structures in larger cities, generally competing for the physician's favor by building more prestigious buildings, furnishing more lavish rooms, and by duplicating expensive departments. Rooms are added and furnished at great cost in one hospital while another hospital is operating at 65 per cent capacity in the same city. Three hospitals are allowed to be built in a city when two might be more than the city can support.

It is also interesting to look at Omaha where the hospitals are moving out west where the money is and leaving the black, poor sections with little coverage. Here, too, we find new hospitals being built when the present hospitals are not even close to being full.

It is interesting to compare total expenditures for hospitals outside Nebraska operating as corporations for a profit and paying taxes to our Nebraska non-profit hospitals. The big difference may be that this type of hospital must operate efficiently or go out of business. They must justify their costs to a board of directors.

As long as our hospitals are built and furnished with federal, state and local funds, and as long as our hospitals enjoy practically a tax-free status in our community, and as long as a good portion of the hospital bills are paid by state funds and federal Medicare funds, then it would seem they should be made to answer for their actions much the same as public utilities. It is high time for some consideration to be given to the patient who is forced to pay the bill, and this will be done only by state or federal legislation.

Farmers Exchanging Labor Posing Safety Rule Problem

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The Nebraska Farm Safety Council took a dim view of a definition of "employee" as applied to a farmer assisting his neighbor in the time-honored practice of exchange of labor.

Council members voted to contact the Federal Department of Labor, and all five members of the state's congressional delegation in Washington on the matter.

The council decided to study the possibility of a state safety program to be operated by the Department of Labor under the federal law. Council members declined to support the establishment of a state safety inspection program until they know more about the power of the department in operating what is basically a federal program.

Of particular concern is a provision in the federal law which demands that a violator of a safety provision be fined with no provision whatever of a time period to eliminate the safety hazard.

Hope Expressed

Walter Dennis of the State Department of Labor expressed the hope that the state could help the employer by telling him what he had to do to eliminate safety hazards rather than slapping him with an instant fine.

Dennis also indicated his department had attempted to get an understanding of the rules related to exchange of labor between farmers. "We specifically asked at a meeting in Kansas City about farmers gathering to help harvest a neighbor's crop when he is ill or injured. The man from Washington talked on the matter for 15 minutes but never did answer the question. I don't think they have really decided themselves what to do about exchange of labor," he said.

The federal safety act currently affects farmers who have one or more employees. There are specific standards applied on slow moving vehicle signs, on migrant labor camps, and on pulpwood logging. Distribution of anhydrous ammonia fertilizer will come under the law in February.

Rollin Schnieder, extension safety specialist at the University of Nebraska said "the safety standards include a requirement for safety chains on nurse tanks, a five-gallon container of fresh water on the nurse tank and there are specific requirements for eye protection at the plant."

Can't Get Standards

Schnieder said "there is a six-page set of standards that is supposed to be available. I have ordered 2,000 copies of them to send to all the fertilizer dealers but I haven't been able to get them."

Schnieder told council members that he expects a ruling on roll-over protection for tractors soon, probably in May. Schnieder said, "There is good protection available for tractors made after 1965, but on earlier models we have a real problem in designing an adequate roll bar."

He estimated the cost of fitting a tractor with a roll bar at $150 to $200, with a canopy-type protection at $500 and with a crush proof cab at $1000 to $1200.

Schnieder suggested that a properly-designed loader for a tractor could provide protection, but pointed out that some types of loaders were an added hazard to the tractor operator.

The Nebraska Safety Council is planning a series of meetings on the Occupational Safety Act in several regions of the state sometime in February. A similar series of meetings for communities of 5,000 or more is also being planned. The dates and places of the meetings will be announced as soon as final plans are completed.

Exon Draws Big Crowd For Tax Exemption Talk

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Milligan—A crowd nearly matching this Fillmore County community's 320 population served as the political arena Thursday night for round one of the Exon-Brbach property tax battle.

Gov. J. J. Exon got in the first licks, but state Sen. Jules Brbach of Crofton takes his turn next Tuesday night.

Both men were invited by state Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan, who said "the people should get to decide for themselves on what is on of the most important issues before the legislature."

The governor devoted much less time to his own "circuit breaker approach" than to his foe's proposal—which he derided as "a tax shuffle rather than tax relief."

With Nebraska educational television cameras grinding away, Exon said the Brbach plan would have "fat cats who represent 1.5% of the taxpayers getting 32% of the relief."

"The most relief by far would go quite shockingly to . . . the most affluent people," he stated.

The governor said he had vetoed two property tax relief bills last session because they represented "A mad dash and fantastic bonus for the affluent. He said proponents of amendment 10, which was approved in the November election, had pledged a gradual reduction in personal property tax reductions.

Exon said his own plan "keeps the faith of state taxpayers" by not calling for increased sales or income taxes. He claimed that Brbach would cost a typical family earning $3,000 at least $75 more a year in those taxes.

Exon also said that Brbach's proposal would result in 15% of the people receiving 70% of the tax relief, while 61% of taxpayers would get less than 6% back.

State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh, one of nine senators present, added his support to the governor's plan. State Tax Commissioner Bill Peters also helped explain the two measures.

They said it would not be necessary to increase sales or income taxes under Exon's plan because of anticipated growth of the two. Exon's bill would impose a tax credit limit of $1,000 to individual taxpayers.

"The real problem in Nebraska today is not so much the personal property tax," the governor stated. "Real estate property taxes are reaching a confiscatory level."

Corps OKs Guidelines For Clearing Creeks

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Guidelines proposed by the National Audubon Society recommending continuation of planning for the resumption of snagging and clearing of the Prairie Creek and Wood River basins near Grand Island were essentially accepted by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Nebraska Environmental Advisory Committee after a bus tour Thursday.

Following a closed meeting of the committee Thursday afternoon, Col. B. P. Pendergrass, Missouri River district engineer, said "the committee was in agreement" with guidelines for the flood control project. The guidelines were presented Wednesday night by Leonard Parachini Jr., president of the local Audubon chapter.

The corps has been asked to complete the clearing and snagging of the two streams, begun 18 months ago by the Mid-Platte Valley Watershed. The committee has served in an advisory capacity in matters concerning the impact of corps projects on the environment.

Parachini and Ron Klataske, Audubon regional representative, had objected to the watershed's clear-cutting of trees from the stream's banks as excessively costly, destructive of wild life habitats and conducive to stream bank erosion and opposed the practice of removing snags and log jams from the stream channels to prevent flooding.

Much of the discussion at the closed session Thursday afternoon centered around whether the committee should first give the corps approval to begin the project, or first approve the development of environmental guidelines and later grant approval conditional on the guidelines drawn up by the corps.

The committee's ultimate recommendation called for "the development of project environmental guidelines" for the project, and requested "the opportunity to review" the corps' completed guidelines.

Col. Pendergrass said that environmental guidelines would be drawn up by the corps and sent individually to committee members for their comments.

"I don't see why we can't build a model project," Pendergrass said, "and set an example of what an environmentally enlightened project can do."

"It appears to me we can give some relief to the flood problem and at the same time not only protect, but even improve, the riparian (river) habitat."

The position paper presented by Parachini objected to clearcutting as an unnecessary destruction of woodlands essential to wildlife, constituting "a refreshing contrast to an ever increasing number of 'factory farms.'"

Clearing, the paper said, should be "selective and limited to only those trees which pose an immediate threat of falling into the stream beds" and causing log jams.

The guidelines also insisted on the replanting of sapplings and native grasses to counteract the disruption of stream banks. Channelization, the paper added, "shall not be a part of the project." The corps already has $5,000 in funds authorized for the project and could gain further funds up to $100,000 congressional limit on each stream.

One was previously apprehended and one is still missing, the Patrol said. The youths were picked up Wednesday night and were being returned Thursday to Kearney.

Name Of Informant Sought By Attorney In Kiernan Case

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

An attempt by the attorney for the Roads Department Employees Association to disclose an informant highlighted testimony in the case brought by dismissed engineer Richard Kiernan against the state.

Under questioning all State Engineer Thomas D. Doyle would say for the record was that the person who informed him of Kiernan's remarks concerning Doyle's qualifications for his job "is not a department employee."

"I received the information in strict confidence and I would rather not reveal his identity for this court," he said.

Doug Marti, Kiernan's attorney, objected telling the Court of Industrial Relations that by refusing to answer "we're being denied the right to impeach Mr. Doyle's testimony."

After some lengthy consultations, the court directed Doyle to inform Marti privately of "a possible relevant witness."

"It will not be necessary to Poindexter Case To Go To High Court

It appears the Nebraska Supreme Court will hear the case of Edward Poindexter, convicted of first degree murder in the death of an Omaha policeman, in its March 6 session.

The appeal had been tentatively scheduled for oral argument before the Supreme Court in the session beginning on Jan. 27, but the court reported Thursday written briefs have not yet been filed.

"The court does not hear oral arguments on an appeal until some time after written arguments have been filed.

Poindexter, 26, was one of two men convicted for the bomb-slaying of policeman Larry D. Minard in August of 1970.

The other man, David Rice, has also requested the High Court hear his appeal from the conviction, but that case has so far not been included on call list.

The convictions stemmed from an incident involving a boobytrapped suitcase. Minard and other officers had been summoned to a vacant house on a fake report of a woman screaming.

Seven other policemen were injured by an explosion apparently triggered by Minard when he touched or attempted to move the suitcase.

Requiem Mass For Rev. Mines To Be Saturday

Clarks (P) — Requiem Mass for the Rev. John D. Mines, 76, who died Wednesday morning in Schuyler, will be celebrated at St. Peter's Church here at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Father Mines had retired at Schuyler last summer after 47 years as a Roman Catholic priest. He was born near Sioux City, Iowa, and was ordained a priest in 1925.

He served as pastor at Pierce for 20 years and also held pastorates at Decatur, Genoa and at St. Peter's here. His first assignment after ordination was as assistant pastor at St. Henry's at Howells.

Burial will be in the parish cemetery here.

Kearney Firemen Answer 186 Calls

Kearney (P) — Kearney's 50-man volunteer fire department answered more calls during 1971 than in any of the previous nine years, but fire losses were the lowest in at least five years and very possibly much longer than that.

Fire Department secretary Clarence Alcorn said 1971 fire loss in Kearney amounted to $9,404. The next lowest loss during a five-year period was $23,153 in 1967 and the highest was $275,456 in 1969, the year Kearney's Methodist Church burned on Christmas night.

The department answered 186 calls in 1971.

Group For Re-Election Of Nixon Is Announced

Formation of a Nebraska Committee For Re-election Of President Nixon was announced Thursday by George B. Cook, of Lincoln, who will serve as chairman.

Cook, 61, an insurance company executive, served as state campaign manager for President Nixon's successful 1968 campaign.

The Nebraska committee is reported the fourth in the nation to declare its existence formally. Others have been announced in New Hampshire, Maryland and Oregon.

Cook noted President Nixon carried Nebraska with the greatest vote plurality of any state in 1968 and said, "We hope to make Nebraska No. 1 for Nixon again."

Cook said the committee's full organization will be announced in about a month and headquarters will be established in Lincoln with an office in Omaha.

say who it is for the record," the court ruled.

Duggan indicated that Friday when it is his turn to cross-examine Doyle he might bring out the informant's name for public record.

The plaintiffs want the informant's identity known so perhaps Doyle's testimony could be impeached and the employee association's charge validated that Doyle has been harassing the union's formation.

The informant allegedly brought Kiernan's remarks regarding Doyle to the state engineer's attention. At an August meeting of the Professional Engineers in Government, Kiernan said that Gov. J. James Exon's appointment of Doyle to the post of State Engineer was "inappropriate" because Doyle is a chemical engineer and not a civil engineer.

On Sept. 1 Doyle suspended Kiernan and subsequently dismissed him on Sept. 8 for "insubordination."

Kiernan reported Thursday that he is currently drawing $855 per month (the same as his Roads Dept. salary) from 2,600 member NDREA for managing the office and publishing the association's publication.

At the trial Kiernan still maintained his contention that Doyle is unqualified for his post.

"Based on his (Doyle's) qualifications, his education and work background, I still feel that Mr. Doyle is not particularly qualified for his post not being a civil engineer."

In the suit the association and Kiernan maintained that Doyle's firing of Kiernan was part of his harassment of the union's formation.

The fired engineer testified Omaha Man, 61, Fined $2,000 On Homicide Charge

Omaha (P) — George Bathe, 61, Omaha, was fined $2,000 and placed on probation on a charge of motor vehicle homicide.

Bathe, the president of Ready Mixed Concrete Co., had pleaded no contest to the charges before Douglas County District Court Judge John Murphy.

He was charged in connection with a crash on Interstate 680 in Omaha Oct. 15 in which Gary R. Hlan, 31, also of Omaha, was killed.

Platte River Basin Study Work Starts

A number of state and federal agency representatives met Thursday in Lincoln to begin developing a work plan for the Platte River Basin Study which is scheduled to begin later this year.

Nebraska Soil and Water Conservation Commission Executive Secretary Dayle Williamson said the meeting was the first of what will be several gatherings to develop a plan.

"I don't think we have even made any decisions yet now," Williamson said. "We're just talking in generalities and we won't get to specifics until later. Right now, we're talking about the scope of the study and a n d i n t e r - a g e n c y cooperation."

Besides the commission, participants in the meeting included representatives of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and Nick Barabosska of the U.S. Water Resources Council, the acting director of the study.

Williamson said he hopes some type of plan can be developed by early March for presentation to state and federal authorities.

The study is expected to take 3½ years and cost more than $2 million, including a federal allocation of $250,000 made by the 1971 Congress to begin the project.

Fire Destroys Nearly-Finished Omaha Complex

Omaha (UPI) — A fire Thursday night leveled a 24 unit residential apartment complex under construction on Omaha's extreme West Side.

Irvington Fire Chief Jack Dubuse estimated interal damages at $250,000 and said the structure, which was finished on the outside, was a total loss.

In addition to Irvington, Pumper crews were summoned from Millard and Ralston. Dubuse said two passerby in an automobile first noticed flames from the predominately wood structure.

Dr. McFadden is chairman of the department of microbiology and is also interim associate dean of graduate studies and research at the NU Medical Center.

Dr. McFadden, 52, received his M.D. from the College of Medicine. He joined the faculty at the Medical Center in 1949 and was named chairman of the department of microbiology in 1955.

that Doyle had denied the association the use of bulletin boards and the cafeteria for meetings, had "warned" Kiernan that he was walking "on thin ice" and balked at making payroll deductions for the support of the union.

Doyle denied the charges of repeated warnings and deliberate harassment. He stated that he refused to let the association use the cafeteria because no employees over Engineer V could attend.

"I don't feel a closed meeting cannot be conducted on state property," he said.

Regarding the payroll deductions, Doyle explained that on his own he could not authorize that because it would have been tantamount to recognition of the union. Doyle said the matter of recognition is up to a committee appointed by the governor and the question was over his purview.

Fund Drive Begun For Ostranders

Cody (P) — A fund drive has begun in the Coy and Valentine areas for the Dean Ostrander family to aid them after their home and personal belongings were destroyed by fire early Thursday morning.

Officials said the Ostrander property, located 10 miles south of here, was extensively damaged by the blaze which was reported to have started in the attic.

Ostrander was forced to walk to a telephone at a neighbors some distance away as his telephone was not in service due to the fire, officials said.

By the time the Cody Fire Department arrived on the scene, the house was extensively damaged, authorities said.

Two Escape From State Reformatory

The escape of two State Reformatory inmates from a hog barn detail late Wednesday afternoon was reported by a State Penal Complex spokesman.

They were identified as Wendell H. Birdhead, 19, of Gordon, and Ronald Barker, 22, of Elwood, Kan. Both are Indians, according to the spokesman.

He said the two escapees were believed to have driven off with an Allis Chalmers tractor belonging to the institution.

Birdhead was transferred to the Reformatory in November, 1970, for two years as an incorrigible from the Kearney State Boys Training School, according to the spokesman.

Barker was serving an 18-month to five-year term for larceny from the person, given by Douglas County in November, 1969.

Both inmates were reported dressed in prison garb consisting of blue trousers, gray sweatshirt and green jacket.

Murder Charge Hearing Planned In R. Reyes Case

Gering (UPI) — A preliminary hearing for a Torrington, Wyo., man charged with murder will resume Friday in District Court.

The hearing for Raymon Reyes, 46, began last Friday but had to be continued because of the illness of a witness. Reyes faces first degree murder charges in the Dec. 18 shooting of Leonel Ballesteros, 29, of Lyman, Neb.

Ballesteros died last Thursday in a hospital in Scottsbluff. Wounded in the incident was Harry Ritterling, 64, of Lyman.

Less than an hour after the shooting, Reyes surrendered to police at Torrington.

Drug Stores Must Display Base Prices

Omaha (P) — Drug stores and pharmacies must post the base prices of prescription drugs and pharmaceuticals, Richard P. Vinal, Internal Revenue Service district director for Nebraska, reports.

Vinal said, "The sale of these items is the same as any other retail transaction and, therefore, falls under the Economic Stabilization Act price control regulations."

Blood Pools In Fremont Are Probed

Fremont (P) — Fremont police continued an investigation Thursday in an effort to find the source of three large pools of blood in a Fremont motel room.

A city official, who asked that he not be identified, said the police were called to the Holiday Inn here Wednesday afternoon after a maid had entered the room and found the blood on a table, a chair and the floor.

The official said it appeared a man who had registered for the room Sunday had not left for any purpose until sometime after the maid had been there Tuesday and he had denied her entrance. Police declined to identify the man other than to say they believed he used an alias.

There was no blood trailing from the room and the official said someone who lost that much blood would have been unable to stop the bleeding without assistance.

A check of local doctors proved futile in an effort to find if anyone had been treated for wounds during the period when the man was registered, the official said.

Henry Freed To Head State College Trustees

Henry J. Freed, a Chadron businessman, was elected president Thursday of the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges, replacing J. Alan Cramer of Wayne.

Freed, 55, will serve a 1-year term as president after having been a board member since 1959. Previously he had served as the board's vice-president.

The native of Clinton is the president of the largest home-owned business in Chadron, the Midwest Furniture Co.

Dr. Francis J. Brown of Genoa was elected vice-president to succeed Freed.

The trustees also adopted a statement on academic freedom and responsibility. The document declares the need for academic freedom in the classroom and also adds that this must be accompanied by an equally demanding concept of academic responsibility.

The statement reads, "It is recognized that students also must enjoy academic freedom and must realize that this freedom carries concomitant responsibilities."

Grand Island (P) — The Grand Island Library Board has announced it will ask the city council to approve a bond election for a new library, the election to be held in conjunction with the May primary.

The present structure was built at the turn of the century. The late Theodore Roosevelt turned the first shovel of earth at groundbreaking ceremonies.

The amount of the proposed bond issue has not been determined.

The board is completing the purchase of a full block of land just west of the downtown section of Grand Island.

Pok Charged With 2nd Degree Murder Across Nebraska

A 78-year-old retired barber was charged with second degree murder Thursday in connection with the fatal shooting Wednesday of Theodore Walker, 41, of 901 No. 23rd.

Accompanied by Public Defender T. Clement Gaughan, Felix Pok requested a preliminary hearing which was set for Feb. 10 by Lancaster County Judge Ralph Slocum.

With no objection by the county attorney, Pok was released on $5,000 bond.

County Attorney Paul Douglas told the court that his office had always opposed release on bond in homicide cases but that he had no objection to bond for Pok because of his age and health condition.

However, Douglas said he would like to emphasize that "I still don't think a defendant is legally entitled to bond in second degree murder" and that he didn't intend "for this to be a precedent for people released on bond."

Faith-Cure Of Diabetes Could Be 'Misleading'

Omaha (P) — A board member of the Nebraska Diabetes Association Thursday suggested that persons should be wary of a diabetes faith cure claim being distributed in the Omaha area.

Dr. Mary Henn, a professor of internal medicine at the University of Nebraska College of Medicine, said she is concerned that statements on a flyer being distributed by the Kenneth Copeland Evangelistic Association, Inc., may mislead some diabetics.

The flyer includes a statement by Germaine Saucier of Omaha that faith in God cured her of diabetes.

Miss Saucier said at the time she was a diabetic, had chemical asthma and wore thick glasses.

"This Is For Me" "When I heard Brother Copeland teach on faith, I thought 'this is for me,'" she says on the flyer. "He said if we acted on God's word, believed and received it, it would come to pass. My first healing was for diabetes . . ."

Miss Saucier now says that since she was "healed" two years ago, she has had her blood sugar level tested four times and it now is below normal.

Dr. Henn said sometimes diabetes goes into a "remission" and "may apparently be quiescent" but "diabetes isn't something like pneumonia that can be cured. It's a metabolic disorder and we can correct and control, but I don't think it really can be cured."

To Speak At Inn The Rev. Mr. Copeland of Fort Worth, Tex., will speak at the Holiday Inn here Jan. 20-22.

He had been scheduled to appear on WOW-TV in Omaha on three dates prior to the Holiday Inn lecture, but the station Thursday canceled the programs after learning of the flyers.

"We feel it would be misleading," said Howard Gregory, program director.

Blood Pools In Fremont Are Probed

Fremont (P) — Fremont police continued an investigation Thursday in an effort to find the source of three large pools of blood in a Fremont motel room.

A city official, who asked that he not be identified, said the police were called to the Holiday Inn here Wednesday afternoon after a maid had entered the room and found the blood on a table, a chair and the floor.

The official said it appeared a man who had registered for the room Sunday had not left for any purpose until sometime after the maid had been there Tuesday and he had denied her entrance. Police declined to identify the man other than to say they believed he used an alias.

There was no blood trailing from the room and the official said someone who lost that much blood would have been unable to stop the bleeding without assistance.

Grand Island Seeks Election For Library

Grand Island (P) — The Grand Island Library Board has announced it will ask the city council to approve a bond election for a new library, the election to be held in conjunction with the May primary.

The present structure was built at the turn of the century. The late Theodore Roosevelt turned the first shovel of earth at groundbreaking ceremonies.

The amount of the proposed bond issue has not been determined.

The board is completing the purchase of a full block of land just west of the downtown section of Grand Island.

Present plans call for a 30,000 square foot building with audio and visual research facilities.

Beat Death Zone

Uelzen, Germany (UPI) — Two young East Germans, an electrician and a cook, slipped through the mined death zone into West Germany before dawn Thursday, police said.

Drug Stores Must Display Base Prices

Omaha (P) — Drug stores and pharmacies must post the base prices of prescription drugs and pharmaceuticals, Richard P. Vinal, Internal Revenue Service district director for Nebraska, reports.

Walker

Pok

According to Douglas, the shooting apparently resulted from an argument between Pok and Mr. Walker regarding the Walker car blocking the driveway of the Pok residence at 544 No. 22nd.

Douglas said Mr. Walker, who was pronounced dead on arrival at a Lincoln hospital, had multiple wounds in the chest area from a .25-caliber automatic pistol.

According to Douglas, the shooting occurred on the public sidewalk near the Pok home and witnesses reported hearing from four to six shots.

Ogallala Giant Trash Compactor Inspected

Ogallala (P) — Some 45 persons from 12 communities were on hand for an open house display of Ogallala's new giant trash compactor. Ken Bishop, owner of the compactor, said the compaction saves landfill space and reduces the number of trips needed to haul the refuse.

Educators Uniting To Seek More Aid . . . FOR LOCAL SCHOOLS

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The state's teachers, administrators and school board members are banding together this year to present a united voice for more state aid to local schools, the Lincoln area PTA Council was told Thursday.

"The attempt will be made to unify the effort," Lincoln School Supt. John Prasch told the group during a review of education-related legislative matters.

Prasch said several groups have agreed to "use a single lobbyist to speak to the Legislature about this problem" of equalizing educational opportunity statewide.

"The function of the state aid (to education) bill is to equalize," he said. "The current bill would do that if fully funded."

Several Cooperate

Among the organizations which have agreed to cooperate in the effort during the current legislative session are the Nebraska State School Boards Association, the Nebraska State Education, and the Nebraska

Council of School Administrators.

The organizations represent most school board members, teachers and school administrators across the state.

Prasch told the area PTA leaders that educators in past sessions have tended "to be more selfish than we ought to be."

The tendency, he said, has been for individual school districts to worry first about their own districts and second about the state.

"That has been our Achilles' Heel in dealing with the State Legislature," he said. "We've not been statesmen enough," he added, to work first for the best legislative action for the state as a whole.

Cooperate

Thus, he said, the school-related organizations decided to cooperate on a unified effort to seek increased state funding.

In addition, he said, a "superintendents' committee" of chief administrators from the state's 20 largest school districts has met and agreed to present the case for more state aid to laymen across the state.

Within a few days that committee will have ready for use an audio-visual presentation to take to citizen groups, Prasch said.

Prasch told the group he believes it's more "realistic" to work for full funding of the present bill than to attempt to change the formula for distribution of state aid.

Full funding of the legislation now on the books would cost about $189 million, compared with the current $35 million support level.

Impetus

Prasch said he believes court decisions in other states which have ruled unconstitutional heavy reliance on property tax for school support may give impetus to the effort to increase aid here.

At the same time, he said, talk of a possible court test in Nebraska may discourage legislative action on the matter.

On another matter, Prasch said he expected school boards and teachers in the state would part ways on a proposal to remove schools from the jurisdiction of the Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations.

He said the Lincoln school board would probably support the bill, but not as an effort to compromise teachers' rights to negotiate contracts.

"Our board feels the negotiating process is an important one and a good one," he said, but he said it believes stalemated bargaining talks should not "end in the Court of Industrial Relations."

$20 A WEEK PLAYMATE

Jesse Beane, 11, hugs his "playmate" mountain lion Jo Jo at his Atlanta, Ga., home. His father bought the lion two years ago when they lived in Rhode Island. It plays with the three Beane children like a kitten even though it has super strength and eats $20 worth of horse-meat, chicken and steaks every week. It's fine having Jo Jo but nobody will come in the yard and a man ran his car into a ditch when he saw the lion in Mrs. Beane's yard, she said.

Probe On Alleged Brutality By Poilce Disclosure Urged

City Attorney Dick Wood said Thursday that he has advised Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf to make full disclosure of the Human Rights Commission investigation into alleged police brutality.

Mayor Schwartzkopf said that he will have to discuss the report with the City Council to decide whether the report will be released in its entirety or in a condensed version.

Council chairman Dick Hartscock noted that council members have not yet received copies of the report which investigates charges of police brutality leveled by Cleveland Randolph, a black youth.

Wood added that the release of the report would not now be prejudicial since the completion of Randolph's Municipal Court trial Wednesday on charges of resisting arrest. Randolph alleged he was assaulted by police officers after being taken to the city-county jail.

Schwartzkopf indicated that he had some reservations about releasing the report to the public since he said he had given his word that testimony given before the Human Rights Commission would remain strictly confidential.

However, "It's the council's report," he added, "since it was their charge to the Commission to conduct the investigation."

Guilty Plea Withdrawal Bid Overruled

Lancaster County District Court Judge William Hastings has overruled a motion by Antonio Vigil of Lincoln to withdraw a guilty plea by Vigil to a charge of first degree murder.

Vigil, 29, entered the plea in connection with the December, 1970, slaying of his wife, Carol, 23.

In his motion to withdraw the plea, Vigil said he felt he was guilty of murder, but not murder in the first degree.

After a hearing Hastings reviewed a transcript of the court proceedings at which Vigil's plea was made and said "this court does not know how a plea could be any more voluntary."

Mrs. Vigil's decapitated body was discovered New Year's Eve, 1970, in a gully about 10 miles west of Lincoln.

$807,000 Federal Grant Asked For NRMP

A federal grant of $807,000 is being requested for the Nebraska Regional Medical Program (NRMP) for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Dr. Roger D. Mason of McCook, chairman of NRMP's regional advisory group, said Thursday the application will be forwarded to the Kansas City regional office of the U.S.

Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The requested funds for the new fiscal year compares with $500,000 federal funding of the current fiscal year ending June 30.

Dr. Mason said the grant request includes $650,000 for continuation of current programs dealing with coronary treatment and cancer detection, and the education of medical personnel in these fields.

Additionally, he said, $127,000 is being requested for several proposed new programs, including respiratory therapy, special training for nurses and doctors on kidney diseases, and a special information program on neurological diseases.

During its quarterly meeting in Lincoln, the advisory group named Michael T. Higgins of Lincoln, Gary Bieganski of

Sewer Repairs Close E Street

The Traffic Engineer's office announced Wednesday that E St. from 26th to 27th Sts. will be closed from Jan. 6th through Mar. 1st for sanitary sewer repairs.

3 Pre-Sentence Investigators Added To Alcohol Program

Three additional pre-sentence investigators have been hired to work in the expanding alcohol program of the Lincoln Municipal Court, according to an announcement Thursday.

Connie Brady, Bill Larimer and William Gossen were selected from more than 20 applicants, according to Judge Thomas McManus.

According to Walter Giles, who will coordinate the work of the new staff members, more than 70 people since Nov. 1, 1971, have been identified as driving drivers and placed on probation by the court and of this number, one-fourth have been women.

For this reason, Giles said, Mrs. Brady "fulfills a definite need represented by the number of women comprising the court's growing case load."

Mrs. Brady, 30, has been the training coordinator for the Omaha Goodwill Industries, and was a member of the Omaha Council on Alcoholism.

Giles said he feels that Larimer, 22, will provide the program with an "added dimension" since a high percentage of the case load is under the age of 25.

Gossen, 30, comes to the court from the Eastern Nebraska Community Office of Retardation and has worked in alcoholism counseling.

Hospital Director Says Funds Spent On Death Control

Boston (AP) — Dr. John Knowles of Massachusetts General Hospital said Thursday that one-fourth of all health expenditures in America is spent on persons over 65 for the "control of death."

Knowles, who leaves this year as director of the hospital to become president of the Rockefeller Foundation, told a hearing of the President's committee on Health Education that too much money is spent on care of the sick and not enough is spent on prevention of sickness.

"I firmly believe that the next major advance in the health of our citizens will come through health education and preventive medicine and not through more doctors and high-cost hospitals," he said.

The doctor should become active in health education, Knowles said, adding that there is "a striking lack of intellectual, emotional and economic incentive to include health education in his services."

Footlights & Canvas

By PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

Good morning:

The pendulum is beginning to pick up speed as the year 1972 gets under way. After the dry pickings of art events through the month of December, the calendar is beginning to fill rapidly for January.

Before we begin with the happenings for the next few weeks in the area of the performing arts, there are a few backstage notes that we would like to impart.

For some strange and mysterious reason the mail is not going through from Doane College in Crete, and some of the potential participants in the second annual invitational acting festival for high school students have been left without the follow-up information. This event is co-sponsored by Doane College, the Lincoln Community Playhouse and the University of Nebraska Extension division.

The festival is of one act-plays produced in high schools. The deadline entry date is January 13, for the festival which will be held Jan. 21 and 22 at Doane College.

First, second and third place winners will receive sizable scholarships and trophies. The next ten runner-up actors or actresses will also receive scholarships.

Off-campus we find that the new Lincoln Community Playhouse at 2500 So. 56th St. will open its office doors on Jan. 19 for staff members. The official opening will be on Friday, Feb. 4, with a revival of the musical, "The Boy Friend" in conjunction with a Gala Benefit.

Members of the Lincoln Community Arts Council will be interested to note that the monthly January meeting will be held on Jan. 24, as the Nebraska Arts Council will be meeting here on Monday, Jan. 17.

Now, for your further entertainment:

A TEAR IS SHED . . . or will be, as the Lincoln Community Playhouse presents "One More Time," a musical review featuring a cast of 40 men and women. The review begins on a high note with the production of "Comedy Tonight." However, slides from past productions and more nostalgic songs may bring a tear or two from the cast, if not the audience, with the close of the old Playhouse on 18th and L Sts. The review will be shown on Jan. 14 and 15.

GAS LIGHT MELODRAMA . . . The Mud Slim Slide Players will be holding over their Christmas Spectacular and presenting performances on Friday and Saturday evenings, January 7, 8, 14 and 15. The review includes two short melodrama farces, "Out of the Storm," and "Only A Cow Puncher's Daughter (or Sin in the City)," along with other brief interludes for hero-cheering and villain-hissing, not to mention popcorn throwing. Shows begin at 9 p.m. at the Gas Light Theatre.

INFECTIOUS RHYTHMS . . . of Burt Bacharach provide the background music for Neil Simon's Broadway smash, "Promises, Promises," that the Lincoln Broadway League is bringing to the Stuart Theatre on Monday, Jan. 17. Tickets are still available at the box office.

CURTAIN CALL . . . FIRST FEDERAL EXHIBIT . . . by members of the Lincoln Artists' Guild is currently on exhibit through Jan. 21. The show has been juried by Jon Nelson of Sheldon Art Gallery.

. . . BATIKS BY JOHN SOULLIERE . . . are now on display at the Unitarian Church.

TOWN TALK

Compared to weekends in the immediate past the current one may seem a little dull. But no one seems to mind too much. The populace still is reliving all of the hysterical excitement of New Year's night, so actually the past weekend still is with us in thought — and conversation.

There is a young man in town who arrived on the scene the day after the Nebraska-Alabama game and therefore isn't too interested. His name is Randolph Glenn Shaner, Jr., who made his world debut on Sunday, Jan. 2, at Lincoln General Hospital. His parents are Lt. Randolph G. Shaner, USN, and Mrs. Shaner, and his mother is the former Cheri Gorham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gorham. Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Shaner are the paternal grandparents.

Lt. Shaner, who is on submarine duty at the moment, received word of the arrival of his son when his submarine was based briefly in Spain.

Mrs. Shaner is a former coed at Nebraska Wesleyan University and Lt. Shaner is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and is a member of Theta Xi fraternity.

More news of the younger generation and the U.S. Navy involves Justin Matthew Otto, son of Lt. Sheldon C. Otto, USN, and Mrs. Otto, who now are stationed at Beeville, Tex., who arrived on Tuesday Dec. 28. The young man's mother is the former Barbara Emery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Emery — and a graduate of St. Elizabeth Hospital School of Nursing. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Otto, also of Lincoln, are the paternal grandparents.

Concert To Be Presented

All of the holiday decorations may have been tucked away for another year at Tabitha Home, but their Sunday afternoons will continue to be devoted to fine entertainment in the field of music.

This week, however, there is an exception to the Sunday afternoon concerts, since this week a program of 'cello and piano music will be presented on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. This is due to the fact that the 'cellist, Miss Delta Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Thompson, must return to classes at the George Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn. So, the program will be presented a day earlier than usual.

Miss Thompson, a former student at Nebraska Wesleyan, is a student of David Vanderkooi at George Peabody College, and since Mr. Vanderkooi is a member of the staff at the Beth Miller Rocky Ridge Music School, he is not exactly a stranger to Lincoln musicians.

Sharing the honors with Miss Thompson on Saturday afternoon will be Mrs. Jean Saiser, pianist, who is on the staff at the Beth Miller School of Piano in Lincoln.

Miss Thompson and Mrs. Saiser will play two sonatas for 'cello and piano—Sonata No. 2 in D Major, Bach—and Sonata No. 2, by Martinus.

on a tour of the shops

Now that the curtain has gone down on Christmas for another year, shoppers can relax for a spell. Of course, many are taking advantage of the after-holiday sales in preparation for next year.

Perhaps the rest period can be utilized to begin planning a spring wardrobe. This week we took a preview tour of what some of the stores in Lincoln will be showing for the spring season in both men's and women's wear. We think you will like what you eventually will see, and we invite you to join us on this shopping tour so that you may have a briefing of what is in store.

AT MILLER & PAINE

Next Thursday afternoon, Jan. 13 at 2 o'clock, the Miller and Paine downtown auditorium will be filled with "Knits that are for going places." This somewhat unusual fashion show will explore fashion looks for next spring through a range of Vogue Patterns in stunning doubleknits of Trevira polyester.

One of the more popular looks for the spring is the nautical look, with an emphasis on blue combined with red and white. Blazers, cardigans, trousers and dresses will all make the scene in this look that can take you sailing through the casual hours of the day in top fashion. The look is emphasized with sailor-like appliques of anchors and stars.

While pants suits are not nearly the fashion force they were just a brief year or so ago, they are still excellent for sports wear. The pants legs are, however, longer and wider than they have been in the past, and that makes them more appropriate to wear with a jacket or cardigan look.

For real sporting wear, Vogue and Stehli will be showing a free-swinging tennis dress, a bare halter jump suit, and the bare bikini with its own wrap skirt.

The oriental look, accenting the mandarin collar, dolman sleeves and obi wrapped waist also will be making its appearance this spring. The Chinese influence will be seen in raw silk and crepe de chine fabrics.

AT HOVLAND-SWANSON

In the Designer Shop at Hovland's the spring forecast is for clothes that are feminine — but not fussy. The emphasis will be on the classic look in soft, flowing fabrics. Included in these fashions will be the nautical look, the school girl look and the oriental look.

We were able to slip 'backstage' at Hovland's to peek at some of the ensembles that will be appearing in the showroom soon. Straight from Harper's Bazaar magazine was a lovely gingham outfit in the nautical red, white and blue colors. The ensemble combines red and white, and blue and white plaids in an Eisenhower jacket and floor length skirt. The jacket is accented with small rhinestone studs to dress up the cotton gingham for evening wear.

The school girl look is emphasized in the tailored shirt dress with a white collar. One of our favorites featured a navy dress of polyester with a belted natural waistline, slightly eased skirt and small white pique collar.

AT THE BRASS

The man who likes to have his clothes custom-tailored will undoubtedly find just what he is looking for at The Brass, located in the Piedmont Shopping Center, where we found that the one word which best sums up this spring's headliners in the men's fashion world is "knit." We learned that virtually every facet of the man's wardrobe will be available in these comfortable and easy-to-care-for fabrics; and, in the world of knits, the appeal of the many styles available is exceeded only by the number of bold colors and patterns that will be seen during the months to come.

Everything from slacks to shirts to suits — even to jumpsuits — will be featured in knit; and the men's fashion industry will make it easy to coordinate the basic elements of the wardrobe in order to achieve the "total look."

Ties will continue to be wide and brightly-colored; and for those who are a bit timid about mixing patterned ties with patterned shirts and jackets, we learned that this spring, virtually anything goes! Just one word of caution — almost any two or three patterns may be combined as long as the color coordinates are close.

AT JON FEISTNER, LTD.

In the Clock Tower East Shopping Center, we stopped at Jon Feister Ltd., where we learned a bit more about those knits that will be so popular this spring. It seems that the fabric industry has greatly improved the quality of their knits since they first became popular. As a result, the man who purchases the new knits will be bothered far less by fabric snags and garments which lose their shape.

At Feistner's, we especially liked the solid color, five-button, knit sport shirt. These pull-over shirts are available in a wide variety of colors, and they feature short sleeves, and collars and front plackets fashioned of material whose color contrasts with that of the body of the shirt. In order to make it possible to have a fashionable yet versatile wardrobe, slacks in several different colors are available for use with these shirts.

As is the case with just about everything else in men's fashion's this spring, shoes will be quite colorful. For the man whose taste is so inclined, we recommend the two-tone oxford which come in a variety of interesting colors (not just the traditional brown and black), and which are somewhat of a cross between a saddle shoe and a wing-tip.

One final word about shoes — the slip-on, which has been passe for a number of years, will be making a comeback this spring.

Afternoon Wedding

The wedding of Miss Annette Edmeier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Edmeier of Laurel, and John Harrison Goodrich, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Goodrich of York, took place at the Christ Lutheran Church in Lincoln on Friday afternoon, Dec. 31. The 2 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Charles Remnitz, assisted by Msgr. Jerome Murry of York.

Miss Susan Ebmeier of Omaha was her sister's maid of honor, and included in the threesome of bridesmaids were Miss Dean Droge of Pawnee City; Miss Jackie Lemands of Hastings, and Miss Annette Albrecht.

Steven Goodrich of York served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers were Lt. Michael Dickey of Colorado Springs, Colo.; Richard Koons of York; Don Farsland, Randy Ebmeier of Laurel; David Goodrich, Mark Goodrich, both of York.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of silk velvet in the ivory tone. The bodice, fashioned with a stand-up collar and French-cuffed Bishop sleeves, was smoothly sculptured above the A-line, silhouette skirt. A crown of ivory velvet held in place her lace-bordered mantilla veil of imported illusion, and she carried an arm bouquet of Tropicana roses.

Mr. Goodrich and his bride will be residing at 812 West A St., after Jan. 23.

The bride was graduated in December from the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Sigma Kappa sorority, and of the Cadence Countess Drill Team. Mr. Goodrich is a senior at the University of Nebraska and is Commander of the Pershing Rifle Military fraternity, and also Battalion Commander of the Army ROTC at the University of Nebraska.

Next Monday Is Beginning Of Your Calorie Counting

This is a mild abdominal exercise and is beautifying to the arms. Stand tall with your toes pointing forward, arms at sides. Raise your arms forward-upward with straight elbows and touch fingertips overhead. At the same time bend you left knee up in front of you, upper leg at right angles to body, lower leg at right angles to upper leg, toe pointed. Keep your back erect. Return leg and arms to place. Do the same thing with your right leg and alternate.

It's here! Another year! Another chance! This makes us feel a little like being reborn. It is exciting because it gives us a fresh start. The new year is not yet cluttered up with any mistakes or frustrations, disappointments or procrastinations. Twelve unexplored months lie ahead of us before the bells will ring out 1972. Let's do something spectacular with them!

How the months treat us depends, to a great extent, on how we use them. We can accomplish such wonderful things if we do not allow this year to slip by while we put off doing what we know we should do for health, appearance and happiness.

Forget 1971! It is gone. Concentrate on 1972! In fact zero in on just the next eight weeks. You can win important rewards in that length of time. Under my direction, you can lose from 15 to 20 pounds, improve your hair, complexion, posture, outlook, streamline your measurements and increase your energy amazingly.

New Year's Eve is a natural time to make resolutions because of your feeling of having another chance. I think the resolve to become more attractive is one of those women make most often. For this reason I bring you my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan (BIP) at this time. Let me tell you how it works.

This Week and next I will give you the information and direction you need to carry on by yourself. After that I will be here one day a week for the next six weeks with additional help and encouragement. Reducing menus will be included for the first nine days. You can repeat these or use them as models when planning your own. My menus give you between 1100 and 1200 calories a day.

The average woman will lose from two to two-and-a-half pounds a week. If you are extremely active, you might add a couple hundred calories a day and still drop two pounds a week. If you have 15 to 20 pounds or more to lose, do not try to do it more rapidly. Give your skin time to shrink to fit the new you.

The menus begin tomorrow. Every other day I am going to give you the grocery list for the following two days so that a daily trip to the store will not be necessary. These will not include the staples you usually have on hand, such as eggs and butter, sugar, bread and so forth.

GROCERY LIST FOR THE ### NEXT TWO DAYS

These are the items you will need for the next two days if you are following my slimming menus. I have tried to plan the evening meal so that you can enlarge it for the family if you wish. Make sure you have these grocery items on hand for the diet menus.

Increase amounts to fit the size of your family. I will not list such standard items as sugar, margarine, eggs and so forth.

- Tangerines
- Party rye or whole wheat bread
- Cream cheese
- Raw cauliflower buds
- Cucumbers
- Green peppers
- Carrots
- Chili sauce
- Horseradish
- Reconstituted lemon juice
- Roast beef
- Green cabbage
- Potatoes
- Lemon or orange sherbert
- Mushrooms
- Small yogurt
- Shrimp (fresh or frozen)
- Rice
- Nectarines
- Soy sauce
- Always have skim milk on hand

All you have to do to join my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan is to follow the columns in the newspaper. If you would like to have my booklet which gives you complete directions plus a chart on which you can watch your beauty line rise as your weight line drops send 50 cents (includes postage and handling) and your printed name and address to Josephine Lowman in care of The Lincoln Star.

ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 15 years has suddenly decided that marriage is a "trap," and he wants out. He wants his own apartment so he can come and go as he pleases. (Not divorced, mind you, he just wants to be free to do as he pleases.)

A wise friend suggested a cheaper way. Give him the spare bedroom and let him do as he pleases. The idea appealed to my husband, and that is what he is doing now.

This friend told me to let my husband have his flings and have a ball, and in time he will get tired of it and come back to me. In the meantime I should be pleasant and uncomplaining, and be a good mother to our two teen-agers.

My problem: How can I endure the pain of seeing him come and go as he pleases? Can you give me a few pointers on how to put up with this when my heart is aching?

LONELY

DEAR LONELY: Your friend sounds like she has shredded wheat where her brains should be. You have given up your role as a wife to become the "mother" of a teen-ager who has just discovered the opposite sex.

What are you getting out of this arrangement? The privilege of keeping your husband's room clean, and washing his underwear? What if his "flings" last until he is 80? And in the meantime, what kind of example is he setting for his children?

Tell your husband we all make mistakes, and you made a beautiful when you agreed to the spare room arrangement. And unless he is willing to go for counseling and try to repair your marriage, he can clear out, and you'll see him in court.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Bridge

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1♥	Pass	2♠	Pass
2♥	Pass	2♠	Pass
3♥	Pass	?

1. ♠AQ76 ♥42 ♦Q8 ♣AQJ63
2. ♠KQJ4 ♥6 ♦Q75 ♣KQ872
3. ♠AJ83 ♥— ♦KJ ♣KQJ9863
4. ♠KJ92 ♥Q ♣J94 ♣AK543

1. Four hearts. Two low trumps are ordinarily inadequate support for partner's suit, but when he has bid the suit three times it becomes obvious that partner has at least six of them and that the suit is surely playable.

It would be wrong to bid three notrump without a diamond stopper and it would be positively ignominious to retire from the bidding at this juncture with 15 points facing an opening bid. True, North has shown minimum values by bidding one, two and three hearts, but our hand is good enough to take up the slack.

2. Pass. We've shot our bolt. Partner has signed off twice after two constructive responses and is obviously reluctant to undertake a game. He may have something like six hearts to the A-K and an ace, in which case we're probably high enough already.

Generally, an opening bid facing an opening bid means game, but here our opening bid values have been materially damaged by the absence of a trump fit.

3. Five clubs. The hand is too good to abandon short of game, even though partner is apparently dying on his feet. The clubs require practically no support from partner, and we can therefore bid five singlehanded.

To bid three notrump would be too dangerous. A diamond opening lead might knock out our only stopper, and if North lacked the ace of clubs the hand could quickly turn sour.

Slam possibilities looked good when partner opened as dealer, but his next two bids indicated a lack of fit in our suits and a weak opening bid besides. Even a game is not absolutely sure.

4. Four hearts. You can't very well bid three notrump, nor can you quit under game with 14 points that include the almighty queen of hearts. The raise with a singleton trump is rare, but when the singleton is the ace, king or queen and partner has great length in the suit, it becomes roughly the equivalent of three low trumps.

rewritten. There's an educators' group which has done "Treasure Island" over again. Making the remarks of Long John Silver more understandable to the young mind.
(It takes a lot of self confidence to rewrite Robert Louis Stevenson. To do over the conversation overheard in the apple barrel. But they've done

***
"The reason I find Life infernal
Is what I read in the daily journal."

No use looking for that in the anthologies. I wrote that poem myself. Just wrote it, in fact. It is new. Never been used.

Most poets these days do not rhyme their poems. Rhymed poetry is considered very Old Speak. Right off the cob. But I cannot help the way mine comes out.

Little Black Sambo has been worked over. He has become "Little Brave Sambo."

This seems to stem from some civil rights protests.

It's a pretty complicated way of thinking about civil rights.
Little Sambo was already brave. Handled the tigers with diplomacy. And finally got them turned into tiger butter for the pancakes.

So it seems we must applaud this bravery while denying his natural color.

***
A few blows struck for freedom: A bunch of English professors have come out against nouns turned into verbs by adding "ize." "Finalize," for example.

They say: "Are prunes that are tenderized more alluring than those that are merely tender?"

On Cape Cod, the annual town meeting was asked to change the name of Lovers' Lane to Homestead Lane. They turned it down. Good-o!

only be achieved through the combined efforts of businessmen, labor, consumers and government at all levels."

That is what I read in the paper flung on my doorstep this morning.

It has a note of gloom — prosperity can only be achieved if we work hard at it. We could come out losers.

I guess I fit into this at some level. I am a kind of split-level person. I am a businessman. I am also labor, commuting back and forth on the typewriter ribbon.

I am definitely a consumer — you should look at the bills.

I am probably in government. The federal bagman takes a whack of my income.
So we must be some kind of partners.

Thus I have a lot of combined efforts to put into prosperity.

Hey-ho, we are off to the warm Caribbean. We have our tickets. Fitted out with shots.

One thing I get from my government is a free shot against yellow fever.

Other shots are given to you by a jovial, personal physician.
(Why should he worry? It's your arm.) But the USA reserves the right to give you the needle for yellow fever.

What gets me about these sessions is the way they fill the needle right in front of you.

The Public Health Service
traces its beginning to 1798.
And after all that time, I think they should have developed a way of filling it behind your

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

★ By SIDNEY OMARR ★

Forecast For Friday

Aquarians can be counted on to have their heads in the clouds — but they don't always have their feet on the ground.
These persons are natural humanitarians — and would rather "save the world" than repair the kitchen sink.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be independent, original, but don't be in too much of a hurry. Steer clear of legal complications. Learn rules before attempting to sidetrack them. Some past associations are concluded.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Much that occurs is behind the scenes, hidden or secretive. Low-key approach is necessary.
Be discreet. Let others do most of the talking. You may be visiting friend who is confined to home hospital.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Socialize — see and be seen. No time to hide light under proverbial bushel. Key is to make known your wishes. Many desires now can be fulfilled. Affair of heart dominates.

Love is in air.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Be aware of details, fine points. Check between the lines. Promises are fine — but get them in writing. Stress practicality. Check home, real estate values. Career opportunity comes from unexpected source.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): Hold off on journeys. Reservations require check-as do appointments. Relatives, neighbors could prove argumentative. Be prepared for quick changes. Communication from a distance figures prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Guard valuables. Carelessness now results in loss. Request by family member may be expensive proposition. Be fair, but remember budget resolutions. Realize you cannot buy affection. You will understand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Partnerships, relationships supposedly permanent come under fire. You find out where you stand.

Pretenses are torn away. This can be healthy period — if you are willing to face facts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Practical issues dominate. What is superficial is apt to be swept aside. Study Libra message. Difficult now to keep secrets.
Best to be frank, forthright. Review investment procedures.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21):
Emotions tend to dominate. Give logic equal time. Lover's quarrel should not be blown out of proportion. Degree of self-restraint is necessary. You will have to face yourself in morning.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Conflict between duty and recreation may arise.
Change routine. Make adjustment which provides greater personal freedom. New regime is in picture. Your ways are due to be changed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Study Leo message. Ideas need more development.
Avoid basing actions on impulse. Absorb knowledge; study and learn. Sortie philosophical concepts now are subject to abrupt change. Don't fight progress.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Refuse to be tied down; give yourself room. You have a right to make your own decisions, especially those involving finances. Plug leak which has caused waste, extravagance. You will comprehend.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, analytical. You are completing cycle which will bring you greater happiness. Recent times have been difficult in numerous areas. Now, you are going to be relieved of burden. August should be most significant month for you in 1972.

Yes Wayne, It Is Big League

Miami, Fla. — Miami sports notes while wondering if former Big Eight commissioner Wayne Duke, now with the Big Ten, isn't wishing he were back in the league that's Big League.

Nebraska's surprisingly easy win over Alabama in the Orange Bowl may have come as a surprise to some observers, but not to anyone who had faced the Huskers during the season.

The Miami Herald for a pre-game story queried players here for the North-South Shrine game on their feelings about the teams they had faced.

"Nebraska impressed me in one way," commented Missouri's Lorenzo Brinkley, "being a great first quarter team, second quarter team, third quarter team, and fourth quarter team."

"Nebraska is a damn good football team," said Iowa State's Keith Schroeder, "You saw what they did to Oklahoma. Alabama runs the wishbone, too, but they can't be as good as it as Oklahoma was."

Alabama's Bear Bryant, comparing this Orange Bowl trip with others he's made, quipped, "I'm a little busier this time. Joe Namath (his former quarterback) is down here this time and I'm running errands for him."

Another Kind Of Compliment

While everyone has been talking about what a great football team Nebraska put on the field this year and Alabama center Jimmy Grammer, who had to try to fight off Husker Rich Glover all night, agreed, but Grammer perhaps paid the Huskers the greatest of all compliments when he said:

"I don't think I have the vocabulary to say the words I'd like to say about Nebraska. They're the greatest team in the nation. They deserve every award they'll receive."

"Their play in the Orange Bowl was a great show of sportsmanship, character, leadership — everything that football's all about."

One thing you have to give coaches Bob Devaney and Bryant credit for is keeping things in perspective. When one writer tried to get the two to compare the Orange Bowl with some of the wars that have taken place back through history, Devaney gently put him down, commenting:

"I haven't compared this thing to any of history's famous war battles. I'd rather leave it to the field of sports."

Bryant added, "Woody Hayes is the only historian I know in coaching. And besides, I flunked history."

It Still Takes People

If anyone still wanted to think the wishbone-T is invincible, that argument was removed on New Year's Day when Nebraska's defense and Penn State proved that people, not formations, are the important thing.

Two wishbone teams, Alabama and Texas, were soundly thrashed with the Crimson Tide getting only one TD from its wishbone and Texas getting none, having to settle for two field goals.

Oklahoma, meanwhile, with superior people to run its wishbone, trounced Auburn, 40-22.

Bear Bryant didn't have on his customary houndstooth hat while his Tide gridders were falling to Nebraska, but he did wear his lucky blue and white striped shirt that he had worn on the sidelines in all 11 of the Alabama wins this season.

Oklahoma coach Chuck Fairbanks predicted Nebraska's easy win and Iowa State's Johnny Majors foresaw the easy Oklahoma triumph.

Fairbanks told a couple of writers a month ago in Kansas City, "Nebraska will win easily. Alabama's wishbone is in no way as good as ours."

And Majors told a writer on the morning of Jan. 1 here, "If I had $110,000 and it were not against the ethics of my profession, I'd bet all of it on Oklahoma, giving the points against Auburn."

Both the Huskers and Sooners easily beat the point spreads.

Alabama assistant coach Bill Oliver, a member of the national champion Alabama team of 1961, says he notices two big changes in the 10-year period.

"The schedules we played then were in no way comparable to the schedule we played this year," he points out. "The schedule we played in 1961 was much easier than the schedules you have to play today. And the players of today are much smarter and much more mature than we were 10 years ago."

One Orange Bowl committeeman, observing that Nebraska will return 11 starters for next season and that the Huskers may be well-stocked for the next few years, remarked, "We might as well sign a five-year contract with them . . . they're going to be mighty strong for a long time."

Speaking of the Orange Bowl Committee, had they wanted to be really bad guys they could have stopped the playing of the AFC playoff game Sunday between Baltimore and Miami in the Orange Bowl. Their contract with the stadium says no other contest may be played in the stadium within 72 hours of the Orange Bowl game.

—WESLEYAN READY TO HOST AURORA—

W-Club Tournament Opens Friday

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Even with a 7-2 center Southwest Baptist College is not the favorite in the first annual W-Club Invitational Basketball Tournament.

The Purple Pride's opening round opponent — Parsons, Iowa, College — is figured to be the team to beat. At least that's the opinion of Nebraska Wesleyan coach Irv Peterson.

Parsons and the Bolivar, Mo. team meet at 6:45 Friday night while hosts NWU plays Aurora, Ill., College at 8:30 at the Ira J. Taylor Gym in Wesleyan's second tourney in less than two weeks.

The consolation game is set for 6:45 Saturday night with the championship contest to follow at 8:30.

"I talked to the Parsons' coach the other night and he said they had a 8-2 record," Peterson said. "I really don't know just how good Parsons is, except I know they've always had a good basketball team."

"And I think Parsons will probably beat Southwest Baptist although it should be a heck of a game."

The Purple Pride's and the tournament's center of attraction will be 7-2 freshman Mike Carr, who played high school basketball in Bolivar and the prize recruit of coach John Edwards. Edwards has been building the basketball program at Southwest Baptist and Carr is a key to those plans.

In his two years at the Missouri school Edwards teams have compiled records of 15-9 and 13-9, the best in the history of the college.

The Purple Pride, also known as the Bearcats, only have two seniors on the 15-man squad but are blessed with an abundance of height. Thirteen players are 6-3 and over with five centers listed besides Carr with two at 6-9, one at 6-7, another at 6-6 and 6-4.

Carr has set a goal of winning the District 16 NAIA playoff this season for the team but the squad must defeat many fine teams along the way including some the caliber of Parsons.

So the 7-2 Carr and his teammates will get a chance early to find out just how far the team has to go to reach its goal or whether the team is already good enough to win the NAIA tourney berth.

Although much of the meet's attention will be on the game between Parsons and Southwest Baptist, Peterson is also concerned with his team's game with Aurora. "We don't know much at all about Aurora except they're known for producing good teams year in and year out at the school," he said.

"And they did come out here last season and beat us on our home court during the holidays," he recalled. But Peterson's team this year has improved over last season's and is figured to play a better game this time against Aurora.

By DICK GRIFFIN
(c) Chicago Sun-Times

It wasn't a big thing, I guess, just this kid hanging outside the Miami Dolphins workout camp at Biscayne College. He had an autograph book in his hand, and eight dollar bills in his pocket.

He said he was Pedro Gacha. He was about 11 years old, in blue jeans and a white T-shirt with Dolphins stenciled across the front. He had a little nutmeg of a face, and a shining white smile.

Except for a handful of his own family, I can't imagine that anybody in Miami gave a hang much about what was in Pedro's bag of dreams. He was just a small boy.

Miami's not my favorite town. I don't care for discourteous bellhops and doormen, and bored desk clerks. I don't like rude millionaires, or rude people who pretend they are millionaires.

In the summer it clears up a little. The millionaires and the pretended rich go somewhere else, and the hired help is a little more courteous about a dollar tip. But even then I don't think anyone would care much about Pedro and his dreams.

Pedro had come to Biscayne College with his little book because he adores the Dolphins. One autograph, one player who would have stopped to shake his hand, would have made his day.

But his darlings were gone, practice had been long finished. There were no games for his book, and it is a very long way to Biscayne College from the middle of town.

So he asked a man about each of the players, and the fellow told him the best he could, one Dolphin at a time. And Pedro thought that was rather grand.

"I've got eight dollars," Pedro said. And he took them from his pocket, one wadded bill at a time. "I earned them. I didn't steal them. I'm going to buy a ticket to the ball game."

How the hell do you tell a kid that the world's impossible sometimes? How are you going to tell him the world isn't made of little boy dreams, but too often is designed for more cash than eight dollar bills?

"Once I saw a Dolphin game," Pedro said. "My father took me a year ago, with tickets he got from where he works. Now I have my eight dollars, and I will go stand in line, and I will buy a ticket."

What was I supposed to tell the kid? That he didn't have a whisper of a chance? That eight dollars wouldn't buy him standing room in the line, let alone a ticket to see his Dolphins play Baltimore? A kid with eight dollars he earned himself isn't that important.

I don't know that it was any better when I was a boy. But there always seemed to be a sign board we could crawl up, and if a few of us sneaked under the tent, nobody cared.

The night that followed the afternoon that Pedro stood by the practice field, a doorman with elegant arrogance directed his traffic, and sold tickets for $100 a copy to people who never saw a Dolphin game in their life, and never walked all the way to Biscayne College just to see a hero.

There was Pedro, with the eight small dollars in his hand, the retail list price for a ticket, and he couldn't buy a seat to see the team he had come to adore.

"Is there anybody I can write about that?" Pedro said.

Hell, I don't want to shoot a kid down twice in 10 minutes. Let him go home with one small dream, anyway, so I told him to write Pete Rozelle, National Football League Commissioner, and I told him to tell Pete he had earned his eight dollars, which takes a very long time for a small boy.

I told him to tell Pete he couldn't get a ticket with his eight dollars even if he stood in line.

I hope Pedro writes. It won't work, of course, an 11-year-old boy with eight dollars he earned himself and a small dream isn't that important to pro football.

MARTI TOS LA OPEN

Texan Leading By One Stroke

... FIRES 65 IN OPENING ACTION

Los Angeles (AP) — Fred Marti, still on the mend from a bout with pneumonia, fired a six-under-par 65 and established the first-round lead in the $125,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open golf tournament Thursday.

Marti, a Texan still seeking his first major victory in six years on the tour, held a one-stroke lead over a group of five tied at 66 in this first tournament of the long pro season.

John Mahaffey, a 23-year-old former collegiate champion and now a tour rookie, George Archer, Bob Smith, Hale Irwin and Curtis Sifford were one stroke off the pace.

George Boutell was alone with a 67 forged in the bright, warm sunshine on the 6,823-yard, par 71 Rancho Park golf course.

Tied at 68 were Gene Littler, Tom Weiskopf, Jim Wiechers and Larry Wood.

Arnold Palmer was one of a large group at 69, but Lee Trevino had his troubles.

"Four times I hit perfect shots, just perfect, covering the flag all the way and when I got there the ball was way over the green," Trevino said. "The greens just weren't holding."

"But those guys who shot 65 or 66 or something, well, they were playing the same course. I just didn't adjust somehow." Trevino, the 1971 PGA Player of the Year, had a fat 74, three over par.

Defending champion Bob Lunn had a 70, with Billy Casper and England's Tony Jacklin matching par 71. Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player are not competing in this kickoff tournament for the $7.5 million prize.

Coaches Renew Opposition To Financial Need Proposals

... AT NCAA CONVENTION IN HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Fla. (AP) — The nation's football and basketball coaches reiterated their opposition Thursday to proposals before the National Collegiate Athletic Association that would put the awarding of athletic scholarships on a financial need basis.

The opposition came during a three-hour open discussion that ended with many delegates to the NCAA's annual convention expressing the sentiment that something must be done to curtail the rising costs of intercollegiate athletics but not knowing exactly how to go about it.

There seemed to be a growing feeling, however, to split the NCAA — whose members have athletic budgets ranging anywhere from $20,000 to more than $3 million — into a number of divisions and let each solve its own problems.

Such a division is scheduled for discussion Friday but neither that nor the need proposals — not limiting the number of athletic scholarships — can come up for a vote during the convention, which ends Saturday.

The membership, however, will be asked to vote Saturday on whether to call an unprecedented special convention in the late spring to consider any or all of the proposals.

Earle Edwards of North Carolina State, president of the American Football Coaches Association, which meets here next week, said a poll of more than 100 coaches at University Division schools showed 90 per cent opposed to the need factor.

"Anything that changes NCAA policy as much as this would do should be put in a better atmosphere," Edwards said. "It requires the cooperation of the football coaches and it would be very difficult if nine-tenths of that group couldn't do it with enthusiasm."

Bill Wall of MacMurray College, president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, echoed Edwards, saying his group "doesn't want need and feels it's unworkable."

The need proposal under discussion differed from the original one submitted last year. Under the first plan, need would have applied to almost the entire expense of an athletic scholarship except for books and supplies.

Under the new plan, which would enable a school to give much more aid, tuition and fees could be given to anyone regardless of need and the need factor would apply to anything beyond that.

But Eddie Crowder, head football and athletic director at the University of Colorado, who served as a consultant to the special NCAA committee that submitted the proposals, said it is "impossible to come up with a solution that will govern in the neighborhood of 650 schools."

"The whole proposal is probably objectionable to the so-called major football schools, which have very definite and unique problems."

If fiscal aid is based on need and parents must submit financial statements that will determine how much they'll have to pay, "You'll find a lot of persons deciding their sons are no longer members of the family," according to Paul Ditzel, football coach and athletic director at the University of South Carolina. "It will make liars out of people."

ISU's Majors Rejects Duo Positions At Rice

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State Football Coach Johnny Majors said Thursday he has turned down an offer to become football coach and athletic director at Rice University.

"I have a good opportunity here at Iowa State," Majors said. "And I'm in a position where I am interested in getting to the point where we can compete for the Big Eight conference championship."

Majors is the second man to remove himself from consideration for the Rice vacancy. Homer Rice, athletic director at North Carolina, announced Wednesday he would stay with North Carolina.

Majors, head coach at Iowa State since 1968, was interviewed by Rice officials Monday. Afterwards, he was quoted as saying the job "was not offered to me."

"At the time I made that statement to the press, the Rice job had not been offered to me or anyone else," he said Thursday. "However, it was subsequently offered. The officials at Rice have now chosen to have that fact made known and I am confirming that the

City Teams To Feature Home Tilts

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

It's been a full three weeks since a Lincoln high school basketball team played a game in the Capital City.

But the local prep hoop clubs will be making up for the lack of action Friday night. All five teams will be playing at home.

One intra-city clash, a Lincoln High-Southeast matchup at Pershing Auditorium, highlights the busy schedule. In addition, Northeast will host Hastings at Johnson Gym, East will entertain Kearney, while Pius X will have visiting Lexington coming to town.

Only Pius has seen action since mid-December. Coach Don Kelley's Thunderbolts finished fifth in the Doane College holiday invitational tournament, registering two wins in three tries, to run their record to 3-4 for the season. Lexington arrives with a 2-4 mark.

Southeast and Lincoln High go into their crosstown battle with exactly opposite records. Coach Wally McNaught's Knights, despite just one returning letterman, compiled a 3-1 pre-holiday record.

Coach Aldy Johnson's Links, though romping to an opening-game victory at Hastings, dropped their next three and start the new year with a 1-3 mark.

Northeast is the only unbeaten Capital City club left. Coach Ed Johnson's Rockets bombed Kearney to open their campaign, then edged both Southeast and Lincoln High by two points to boast a 3-0 record going into the Hastings game.

Defending state champion East, after a first-game loss to Southeast, has rebounded with three consecutive victories. Coach Paul Forch's Spartans will be trying to extend their record to 4-1 against Kearney.

All but East will be in action again Saturday night. Another intra-city battle, again involving Southeast, will be the feature game.

This time McNaught's Knights face Pius X at Pershing Auditorium.

Another local game on the Saturday night slate has Creighton Prep coming to Johnson Gym to play Lincoln High, while Northeast will travel to Omaha for a contest with the Benson Bunnies.

Doane To Host Record Entries

Crete, Neb. (UPI) — A record 22 college teams from Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and South Dakota have filed entries for the second annual Doane Invitational track meet Jan. 15.

The event was held for the first time last season on Doane's 176-yard indoor oval.

New events this year will be the 50-yard dash and sprint relay tests for high school girls.

... AT MUDECAS TOURNAMENT

Prep Sports Writer

Beatrice — Adams and Elmwood advanced to the finals of Nebraska's oldest high school conference basketball tournament at the 42nd annual MUDECAS championships here Thursday night.

Adams bombed Table Rock, 87-71, while Elmwood squeezed out a 56-52 victory over Filley in the semifinal nightcap.

Returning Adams all-stater Kim Veerhusen pumped in his first four shots from the field as the Hornets jumped to a quick 13-1 lead at the outset of the opener against Table Rock.

Ed Kroll got Table Rock's first bucket midway through the initial quarter to spark a comeback surge which closed the gap to five points at 13-8.

But Adams was soon off and running again. The margin was up to 19 before halftime and Adams led by 27 points when Veerhusen retired with a pulled leg muscle with two minutes left in the third quarter.

—EARLIEST ATLANTA SELLOUT— 'Ambitious' Hawks Ready For Lakers

Atlanta (AP) — "Somebody's got to beat 'em sooner or later," says Richie Guerin, coach of the road-weary Atlanta Hawks. "It might as well be us."

Guerin and the Hawks returned from a West Coast trip at 10:30 a.m. Thursday. They have less than 34 hours to prepare for the hottest team in the history of professional sports, the streaking Los Angeles Lakers, who made the Cleveland Cavaliers their 32nd consecutive National Basketball Association victim Wednesday night.

The Lakers and Hawks collide at 8 p.m. here Friday before a 7,192 sellout in Alexander Memorial Coliseum. All tickets were gone at noon Tuesday, marking the earliest sellout for the Hawks since the team moved to Atlanta from St. Louis in 1968.

"We feel we match up well against them and we've always played them real tough," said Guerin.

The Lakers have beaten Atlanta twice this year — 126-104 in Atlanta Oct. 20 and 104-95 in Los Angeles Dec. 12, the 21st victory in the streak and the one that cracked the NBA record of 20 held by the Milwaukee Bucks. Gail Goodrich poured in 32 points in the record-setting victory.

"They have gone from a set pattern offense to a running game and we will have to put pressure on them at all times if

Veerhusen and Kroll shared high point honors with 26, but Elden Ideus of Adams was close behind with 22 points.

Though Elmwood led almost all the way against Filley — the losers' only advantage was early at 10-9 — the second game was close throughout.

Elmwood saw its game margin gradually dwindle until Filley knotted the count twice in the final frame at 42 and 44-41.

After Dave Lannin hit both ends of a one-and-one free throw to give Elmwood a 51-43 edge, it was the ability to rebound missed free throws that salvaged the victory.

Six times in the closing two minutes when Elmwood failed to connect from the charity stripe the Pirates retrieved the carom in every instance to retain possession.

Sophomore Gary Bornemeier paced the winners with 17 counters while Lannin added 14 more. Kirby Drake and Doug Powers also reached double figures with 10 apiece, while Gerald Ideus with 16 and Robert Wall with 14 were the only Filley hoopers to reach the twin totals.

Filley and Table Rock will clash for third place Friday night at 7:15, with the Adams-Elmwood title struggle set for 9 p.m.

Hula Clubs Given Tour In Hawaii

Honolulu (UPI) — All 60 players here for Saturday's annual Hula Bowl football game were given a tour of Pearl Harbor Thursday and visited with patients at Tripler Army Medical Center.

Then it was back to the practice field for the North and South teams who clash in this 26th annual post-season classic.

About 16 pro football scouts are here for the contest and have been at every practice session, noticeable with notebooks in their hands.

And most of the scouts feel that Oregon halfback Bobby Moore will be the first player to be drafted from among the players here for Saturday's contest.

The North, with six all-Americans, must be rated the favorite over the South, which has two all-Americans.

The South, however, has four players who were given outstanding performer honors in post-season games while the North has three.

Junior Ah You of Arizona State, a local lad who is slated to open at defensive end and a second-team all-American choice, was named the outstanding defensive player in the Fiesta Bowl.

Jack Mildren, quarterback from Oklahoma, was named the outstanding performer in the Sugar Bowl. Bob Newhouse of Houston was given the same honor in the Astro Bluebonnet Bowl and SMU's Gary Hammond won the outstanding offensive player prize in the East West Shrine game.

For the North, Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge was named the outstanding back in the Orange Bowl while Don Bunce, who will battle Tagge for a starting berth, was given the same honor in the Rose Bowl. Penn State's Lydell Mitchell was named the outstanding offensive player in the Cotton Bowl.

Harmon Aids Creighton

Cleveland (AP) — Gene Harmon hit 20 points to lead five players in double figures as Creighton University smashed Cleveland State University, 92-59, in a basketball game Thursday night.

Creighton, 6-4, hit 59 per cent of its 71 field shots, while Cleveland State managed only a 29 per cent of the same number of attempts. Creighton also outrebounded CSU 42-34.

Creighton led 16-14 after nine minutes had been played before outscoring CSU 12-2 to make it 28-16 and the Vikings were never again in serious contention.

High for Cleveland State, now 3-7, was Matt Taylor with 19 points.

Houston (UPI) — Dwight Davis scored 24 points and Buddy Willis made four key free throws in the last 20 seconds to lead Houston to a 70-66 victory over Colorado Thursday night.

Clay Hoster and Donnell Hayes scored to push Houston ahead 66-60, but Scott Weedman and Jerome Wright hit a basket apiece to pull Colorado back to 64-66.

Then Willis made his four free throws to put Houston out of reach. Teets led Colorado with 19 points and Weedman had 14.

Viking Page Earns Honor For Defense

New York (AP) — Alan Page of the Minnesota Vikings, one of the main reasons Coach Bud Grant created a new defensive measuring stick called "hurrys," was named Defensive Player of the Year in the National Football League by The Associated Press Thursday.

The 6-foot-4, 245-pound Page thus becomes the first player to win the accolade, instituted this year to reward the outstanding defensive players in the NFL. And there is little doubt that Page deserves the honor.

During the 1971 season in which the Vikings won the Central Division title in the National Conference, Page was credited with making 109 tackles and sacking the quarterback 10 times.

He also assisted on 35 tackles and two sacks scored two safeties, was responsible for a third, blocked one field goal attempt and was credited with 42 "hurrys."

The defensive statistic Grant calls a "hurry" is designed to measure the number of times a defensive player forces a quarterback to throw the ball before he wants to. While it is intended for all of Minnesota's defensive linemen, it is made for Page.

Laub Nabs Top Spot In Tourney

New York (UPI) — Winning five of his match games Thursday Night, Larry Laub, San Francisco right-hander, has moved into first place as the match game segment of play began in the $100,000 PBAA U.S. Open Bowling Tournament.

The competition at Madison Square Garden goes into its next-to-last day Friday with two more eight-game blocks before the five finalists are known.

Ernie Schlegel, Newburg, N.Y., the tournament leader since Tuesday's second round, was in the top position until his final game against George Pappas, Charlotte, N.C. When Pappas took a 215-201 decision Schlegel, trying for his first PBA crown, fell to third place.

Johnny Patraglia, Brooklyn, N.Y., leading money-winner in 1971 with over $85,000, slipped into second when he defeated Rich Bennett, Owego, N.Y., 225-187, in the last game of the evening session.

As the 24 semi-finalists, survivors of two previous reductions in the field, awaited Friday's action, Laub was 29 in front of Patraglia, who was three pins ahead of Schlegel.

New Personnel Dominate All-Pro Club Picked By AP

DOLPHINS LAND FIVE PLAYERS

New York (AP) — The Miami Dolphins will outnumber the Dallas Cowboys 5-3 in All-Pro performers — including quarterback Bob Griese — when the teams battle for the Super Bowl championship in New Orleans, Jan. 16.

Griese and a quartet of teammates — running back Larry Csonka, wide receiver Paul Warfield, guard Larry Little and placekicker Garo Yepremian — all were named to The Associated Press All-Pro team Thursday by a panel of 60 writers and sportscasters.

Griese took the quarterback spot in a tight contest with Dallas passer Roger Staubach, receiving 25 votes to 21 for the Cowboys' leader. But while Staubach failed in his All-Pro bid, three teammates did make it — tackle Rayfield Wright, guard John Niland and defensive tackle Bob Lilly.

Auburn QB May Join Musso On Sidelines

SORE ARM HINDERS SULLIVAN

Mobile, Ala. (UPI) — The South, hoping to rise again after its New Year's Day bowl setbacks at Miami and New Orleans, was faced with critical offensive problems Thursday as it prepared for Saturday's Senior Bowl football game.

As if it wasn't enough to lose Alabama's all-American running back, Johnny Musso, from injuries he suffered in the Crimson Tide's Orange Bowl loss to Nebraska, it now appears the South also may be without the services of Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan.

The all-American quarterback from Auburn turned up with a sore throwing arm Wednesday and South coach J. D. Roberts of the New Orleans Saints said it was "uncertain at the moment" how much, if any, Sullivan could play Saturday.

Fortunately, Roberts has another sensational passer on hand, John Reeves of Florida. Roberts said Thursday he was

Hunters Enjoy Cloudy Weather

Western Nebraska duck hunters enjoyed the early part of the week with the cloudy, but not rainy weather.

With the close of the season at hand, duck hunting is in Lincoln County and further west in Scotts Bluff County. Other outdoor activity around the state the past few days included:

PANHANDLE — An estimated 147,000 ducks are wintering in Scotts Bluff County, and about 78,000 of these are on the North Platte Valley Refuge at Lake Miniatere.

Early in the week, hunters scored well as the ducks left the Panhandle to feed along the North Platte River and creeks west of Scottsbluff. Pheasant hunting pressure throughout the Panhandle has been light, but several parties report success. Anglers along Nine Mile Creek in Scotts Bluff County are taking rainbow trout of all sizes, with the preferred bait, ice fishermen at Whitney are taking crappie, bluegill, scales and occasional walleye averaging 10 pounds, both hitting minnows.

SOUTHEAST — Mallards moved from the reservoirs to the drainage canals and waterways in large numbers on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, providing excellent hunting. Clearing weather may cause activity to taper off a bit, as the birds resume a very early and very late feeding pattern. Pheasant hunting pressure in the southwest has been extremely light.

SOUTHEAST — Pheasant hunting pressure has been moderate, and gunners using dogs have been taking about one ringneck German duck, an occasional quail. Some lakes in the area have finally acquired sufficient ice to support anglers, but anyone venturing out should still be extra cautious.

NORTHEAST — Pheasant hunting pressure has been light, and most gunners seem unwilling to leave their cars and walk the fields. Those doing so, however, are taking some pheasants along shelterbelts, with a few quail and occasional squirrel as bonuses in the bag. Many ringnecks are being spotted, but most are wild and flush out of range. Ice fishing in the northeast is apparently best at Grove Lake, where bluegill, crappie, and occasional trout are taking wax worms.

SAND HILLS — Ice fishing in the area has been fair. Boardman Creek and Merritt Reservoir have been yielding crappie, bluegill, and largemouth bass. The east end of DeWey Lake on the Valentine National Wildlife Refuge is giving up perch, also on wax worms and igs. Pheasant hunting pressure is scattered, but some early reports fair to good success.

now building the South's offense around Reeves who set the all time major college career passing record by gaining a whopping 7,549 air yards in his three seasons with the Florida Gators.

"They tell me the South is supposed to be the favorite," said Roberts. "But I don't see how this can be when you look at the North's tremendous interior line.

"Our defense is the best I've seen in my four trips to the Senior Bowl," said North coach Alex Webster of the New York Giants. "There are four fellows in our secondary I'd like to take back to New York and start next year."

The South picked up Lewis Jolley of North Carolina to replace the injured Musso and will pair him with 210 pound Curt Watson of Tennessee as its starting running backs.

"I'll start Dean Carlson of Iowa State at quarterback and Gary Kosins of Dayton and Frank Harris of Penn State as my running backs," said Webster. "That Kosins (210 pounder who rushed for 2,812 yards and 41 touchdowns, at Dayton) has been outstanding this week and Harris (a 230 pounder who also topped the 2,000 yards career mark) is the type runner pro teams look for."

Neither Roberts nor Webster wanted to talk specifics when the subject of next month's college draft came up. But Webster nodded in agreement when Roberts said: "There are a lot of people here we could use, but we aren't going after them by position. Rather, we'll grab the best available athlete each time our turn rolls around."

Roberts expressed disappointment over not getting a chance to see Musso in action but said he did not feel that the Alabama star's present injury (a hamstring) will keep him out of pro ball."

"He'll get well in time. We all know that and you can be sure there are going to be teams wanting him."

Senior Bowl general manager Rea Schuessler, a bit put out by reports that the Hula Bowl all-star game in Hawaii — which will follow the Senior Bowl on national television by about three hours Saturday — rounded up more all-Americans than are here said Thursday:

"We're not apologizing for any of our boys. Wait until the pro draft and you'll see what I mean."

Numerous professional coaches and scouts are here in this south Alabama city this week. They'll leave after the Senior Bowl for New Orleans and the Jan. 16 Super Bowl game between Dallas and Miami.

Although Dallas is a 4½ point favorite, the consensus here has the Super Bowl as a toss up.

Strain Paces NWU Stats In Scoring

Junior guard Riedell Lintz of Lincoln is fifth among Wesleyan scorers as the Plainsmen prepare for tournament action this weekend at home.

However, the basketball "quarterback" of the club could be third if he had just three more points. This merely illustrates the closeness with which the Capital City quintet is putting points on the board through NWU's first 10 games.

In fact, only 3.1 points per game separates leader John Strain and Lintz. Strain, a Lincoln sophomore, has 164 points for a 16.4 average.

He is followed by Lyle Hiatt, Lincoln senior at 141. Mike Renken, Gereva junior at 135. Dick French, Wahoo junior at 134 and Lintz at 133.

Tampa Site For Colts In Training

Tampa, Fla. (AP) — Tampa's push for a pro football franchise reached a new plateau Thursday when the Baltimore Colts agreed to move their training camp here and play three preseason games in Tampa Stadium.

The Tampa Sports Authority guarantee the sale of a minimum of 45,000 "season" tickets for the three games at $21 each.

Baltimore will train at the University of South Florida beginning in early July and will play the Washington Redskins here Aug. 5, the Pittsburgh Steelers Aug. 26 and the Detroit Lions Sept. 4.

The announcement was made jointly by Colt owner Carroll Rosenbloom, game promoter Bill Marcum and sports authority chairman Leonard Levy.

Baltimore had trained at Western Maryland College in Westminster, Md., for most of the 19 years that textile millionaire Rosenbloom has owned the National Football League powerhouse.

"Our purpose is to fill the stadium and make them happy," said Levy. "If this leads to a decision on the part of the Colts to move the franchise to Tampa, that's fine."

Rosenbloom said he is not thinking past the 1972 plans.

"We're coming down and we're happy about it," he told Tampa Tribune sports editor Tom McEwen. "We are only talking about the summer of '72 and nothing beyond that. However, if all goes well, the future will take care of itself."

Rosenbloom complained late last summer when the Colts averaged only 15,000 for preseason games, their first nonleague events for several years at Municipal Stadium in Baltimore.

Now a resident of Golden Beach, on Florida's lower east coast, Rosenbloom parlayed an original $13,000 investment into what is now considered a $25 million NFL franchise.

He followed by Lyle Hiatt, Lincoln senior at 141. Mike Renken, Gereva junior at 135. Dick French, Wahoo junior at 134 and Lintz at 133.

GM Heir Forms Political Money-Raising Committee

©The New York Times

New York — His health is good, he points out on his biographical fact-sheet, his draft status 1-Y, and he is a bachelor with type AB positive blood.

What Stewart R. Mott does not — and does not need to — include on the fact sheet is his financial status: annual income in the neighborhood of $1 million.

Mott, 34, announced Thursday that he is setting up a political fund-raising committee to be known as "People Politics." His own contribution, at least for starters, is $100,000, out of a total of $500,000 he hopes to raise.

This money will be distributed among the National Women's Political Caucus, the National Black Political Caucus, the National Youth Political Caucus and the Center for Political Reforms in proportion to the extent of their activities in the delegate-selection process.

He Is Chairman

Mott said his new committee will consist of himself as chairman and two of his employees as treasurer and secretary. He will ask two other persons, not yet selected, to serve with him on a sub-committee that will determine how to distribute the funds.

"The money will be used to work at the very beginning of the nomination process, the precinct level, to elect delegates to the national conventions who will represent and be responsive to the needs of the American people, as a whole, with special emphasis on women, black and youth representation," Mott said.

"From there, activity will continue step by step to the conventions themselves."

Besides being, in his own words, an "avant-garde philanthropist," Mott has been and is a director of a number of companies linked with his family's immense fortune, which totals an estimated $800 million. He also has set up his own foundation, "Spectemur Agendo," or "let us be known by our deeds."

Describing "People Politics," Mott called it an "ad hoc funding mechanism" — a description that could easily have been used for Mott himself since his March 1968 entry into political financing. It was a lavish debut, taking the form of full-page ads in 10 newspapers pledging $50,000 to a Nelson Rockefeller presidential candidacy if others would contribute a total of double that amount.

McCarthy, Lindsay

He has since undertaken similar efforts on behalf of a number of candidates — former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, Mayor John V. Lindsay and New York Rep. Herman Badillo, among others — and on behalf of a variety of causes, particularly population control and antiwar movements.

Mott has never concealed either his wealth or the uses to which he puts it.

"People who give money ought not to do so quietly if they want to get leverage," he has said. He lists himself in the telephone book as "philanthropist," and that biographical data-sheet includes a lengthy listing of "nonprofit activities."

'Agitator'

There is also a list of "other interests," including "independent politics," he describes his relationship to this field as that of "contributor and agitator."

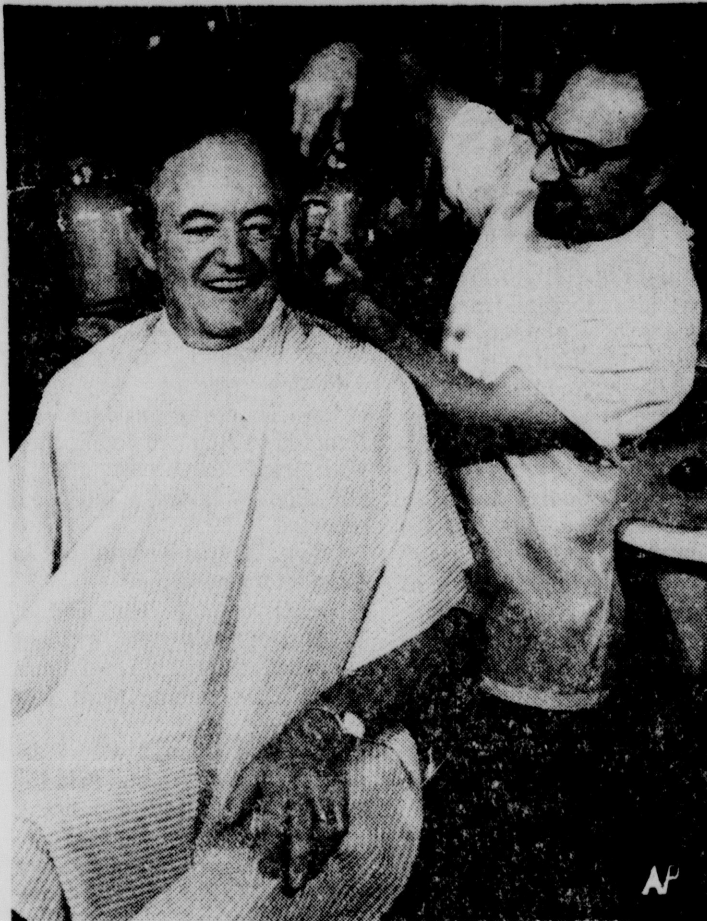

Stewart Rawlings Mott was born in Flint, Mich., Dec. 4, 1937.

He was the fifth of six children of Charles S. Mott, the largest single stockholder of General Motors Corp. and his fourth wife.

Thief's Hobby Said Obvious

Rocky Mount, N.C. (AP) — Rocky Mount police have no doubt about the hobby of a thief who broke into the Rocky Mount News Agency.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota has his hair trimmed by David Rose in a downtown Miami, Fla., barber shop Thursday morning. The Gopher State Democrat is beginning a weekend campaign tour in Florida in search of votes for the party's presidential nomination.

Spot Checks Turn Up Wide Noncompliance

Washington (AP) — Nationwide spot checks by the Internal Revenue Service have disclosed widespread noncompliance with government regulations requiring posting of freeze-period ceiling prices.

"We're not satisfied," said Jerry Portney, deputy IRS assistant for stabilization. "They've got until the 17th to shape up."

Jan. 17 is the date set by the Price Commission for final compliance with the posting requirements. But businesses are supposed to be complying now, unless given the extra grace period by IRS.

On another Phase 2 front, the Cost of Living Council Wednesday ordered IRS to investigate whether some food and clothing prices have gone up in violation of price controls.

The investigation stems from the latest Consumer Price Index which showed higher prices for most meats, and a 2.8% increase in clothing prices covered by the freeze. The freeze on wages and prices ended Nov. 14.

The spot checks will determine whether stores are exceeding Phase 2 regulations that allow prices to rise only as they reflect increased costs, the council said.

More than 6,000 IRS agents made spot checks of retail outlets beginning last Monday as the requirements for posting freeze-period ceiling prices went into effect.

In New York City, checks showed 72% of stores in Brooklyn were not in compliance, and 60% non-compliance in Manhattan.

According to the IRS sampling, the state of Virginia showed a 40% noncompliance, the Southeastern United States 45%, Nebraska 50%, Illinois 45%, and New Mexico 65.

Other cities checked in the survey included Los Angeles, which showed 60% non-compliance; San Francisco, 62%; and Washington, D.C., 90%.

"They were simply not aware of the regulation," Portney said. "They said, 'We're glad you came in. Now we know what the rules are.'"

Stock Mart Advance Continues

New York (AP) — Stock market prices rallied Thursday for the second straight session. Trading was heavy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 4.06 to 908.49.

Big Board volume was 21.1 million shares, compared with 21.35 million shares Wednesday.

Analysts noted the market spurred ahead in early trading, then held steady throughout the rest of the session which they said was indicative of the fact the market was caught between the forces of buying and profit taking on recent gains.

"The basic source of strength in the market is the same as it's been since Thanksgiving, and that is buying from Europe," said Bradbury Thurlow, an analyst at Hoppin, Watson & Co. "There's been a steady buying of American blue chips from that sector."

Other brokers observed that the market was buoyed by signs of economic recovery, by the trend toward lower interest rates, and by the Dow Jones average's successful surge beyond the 900 level.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks rose 24 to 27.21.

There were 744 advances and 555 declines out of 1,600 issues traded on the Big Board. The market had 40 yearly highs and 5 new lows.

The Associated Press stock average climbed 7 to 331.0, with industrials 1.5, rails off .5, and utilities up .9.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index advanced to 103.51.

A total of 160 big blocks of 10,000 shares or more were traded on the New York Stock Exchange, compared with 172 Thursday.

Stock prices were mixed. Steel and rubber issues were off. All other volume leaders were higher.

Volume leaders on the Big Board were Bristol-Myers, up 1 1/2 to 59 1/2.

The Associated Press stock average gained .16 to 26.07. Volume was 6.4 million shares, compared with 6.08 million shares Wednesday. There were 686 advances and 34 declines out of 1,231 issues traded.

Both government and corporate bonds were higher.

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — Although some weights in the butcher hog classes came under narrow outlets Thursday, the price pattern was entered at a steady 25-cent higher readings.

"Best demand existed for weights under 260 lbs and many of these were up the full quarter gain."

Bulk 190-240 lb butchers sold at 23.25-24.00. Around a deck 220-225 lb weights cleared at 24.25, the highest here since August, 1970.

Sows were strong to 25 higher with weights 350-625 lbs at 18.75-20.25.

An attractive outlay of fed steers and heifers sold strong at the previous session's upturn.

Bulk of the fed steers graded choice and sold 34.25-35.50, a part load of high choice and prime 1.125 lbs went at 35.75.

Choice and prime heifers 950-1,025 lbs brought 33.75-35.00. Slaughter lambs and ewes were nominal.

POWs' Pony Express Ride Will Hit 53 Nebraska Stops

Fifty-three Nebraska stops are included in the 18-day Pony Express ride for prisoners of war. The ride is due to start Saturday at St. Joseph, Mo.

During the trip, riders will collect letters for Congress from citizens who wish to impress upon their congressmen that U.S. prisoners and missing in action persons must not be abandoned as the war is wrapped up, according to ride sponsors.

Groups sponsoring the ride are Concern for Prisoners of War, Inc., of San Diego, Calif., and Pony Express Postage Centers, Inc. Sanctioning the project is the National League of Families of Prisoners of War and Servicemen Missing in Action.

The Pony Express rider is scheduled to enter Nebraska at 3 p.m. Sunday south of Reynolds. His first scheduled stop is to be at 4 p.m. at Reynolds.

Representatives of the Forgotten Americans Committee will meet the rider as he enters the state, at which time they will present him with letters collected over the past month as well as a 5,400-name petition completed at the Nebraska State Fair in September.

Continuing through Nebraska along the Pony Express route from Sunday through Thursday, the final Nebraska stop is set for Henry about 5:30 p.m. Thursday.

School Districts Merger Is Getting Court Challenge

Schuyler, Neb. (AP) — A recent election merging three Butler County districts and part of one Colfax County district into the Class VI Schuyler School district — is being challenged in court.

The suit filed in behalf of Louis Brecka, Gail Coder and Leo Juranek of Butler County District 2, which includes the village of Linwood, contends the election is invalid because the district voter 75 against adoption and 45 for it and state law specifies that majority of "all electors voting within each voting unit included in the proposed plan" must approve, and the district constituted a separate voting unit.

Instead, the vote was divided by class, Class I school districts with incorporated villages located within their boundaries voting 263-93 for the reorganization; Class I districts which do not have incorporated villages within their boundaries favoring the proposal 160-12, and the Class VI high school district favoring it 335-21.

Under the proposal, elementary schools would retain their Class I status. Major opposition to the proposal came from the Linwood area where opponents contended there is nothing to be gained from the plan except higher taxes. Presently, in addition to paying the levy for a Class I district, the taxpayers pay a free high school tuition levy of 4.53 mills which enables their high school students to attend any public high school they choose.

If the merger stands, they would no longer pay the free high school district, No. 123, which presently is 17.6 mills.

The petitioners also said the only reason they did not attempt to enjoin the election was the fact they had been assured the votes of Butler County District No. 2 would be counted separately.

Various other grounds were cited for challenging the validity of the merger.

Appeals Court Rules Long Hair To Be Allowed

St. Louis, Mo. (UPI) — Two long-haired Decatur High School students won their latest contest Thursday to continue wearing their long hair to school.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled here that Peter Torvik and Ky Kaasa cannot be barred from school because of their long hair.

The dissenting vote in the 2-1 decision was cast by former Des Moines Federal Judge Roy Stephenson.

The appeals court decision upheld a permanent injunction issued in Cedar Rapids by Federal Judge Edward McManus.

Diplomat Hopes Talk Will Work

Cairo (AP) — The only U.S. diplomat based in Egypt since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war is leaving his post with the hope that talk, not war, will bring a solution to the Middle East.

"Negotiations are not going to be easy but intractable problems, like Berlin, can be negotiated and that is what I hope will happen here in 1972," Donald C. Bergus said Thursday.

"Our most important task is to maintain the cease-fire between Egypt and Israel. I do not see war serving anybody's purpose. . . . Our task is to do what we can to facilitate these negotiations," Bergus told an interviewer after bidding farewell to President Anwar Sadat.

The United States announced Wednesday that Bergus was to be replaced by Joseph M. Greene Jr., who has served as No. 2 man for Washington in London and New Delhi and is the same age as Bergus, 51.

Bergus, who has served eight years in Egypt and one year in Washington in charge of its Egypt desk, plans to leave Cairo for home in five days, hoping to avoid long good-byes.

"After devoting nine years of your life to a country, you don't leave without a sense of regret," he said. Bergus has accepted a post as diplomat in residence at the University of South Carolina, at Columbia, until May. His plans are indefinite after that.

Bergus said goodbye to Sadat privately after escorting Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., to the president's office.

United Plans To Improve Air Service To Omaha

Omaha (AP) — United Air Lines has pledged to make what Omaha Airport Authority Chairman James B. Moore described Thursday as "significant improvements" in its Omaha service.

Moore said that United executives have pledged these schedule changes before May 1:

—Restoration of a nonstop round trip to New York with departing and returning flights scheduled for "prime time."

—Two additional nonstop round trips between Omaha and Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, bringing the daily total to seven. Three round trips to Chicago's Midway Airport will be continued.

—One additional round trip to Denver, also in "prime time" periods.

Beyond the flight additions, Moore said, United plans to adjust its timetables to offer people traveling to and from Omaha and most major cities on the United system flights "at the most popular and desirable departure and arrival times — essentially morning, mid-day and early evening."

"From the standpoint of desirable flight times, I believe Omaha is going to have the best scheduling we have ever enjoyed," Moore said.

And further improvements are possible. Moore said that as a result of a series of three conferences, representatives of the Airport Authority and Omaha Chamber of Commerce representatives have had with high level United officials "we believe the prospects for additional nonstop service to both coasts is encouraging."

Drop 2 Trips

In making its schedule changes April 30, United will drop two round trips — between Omaha and Lincoln and Omaha and Des Moines.

Of themselves, Moore said, "these are not especially important to Omaha. But they have provided some passenger backup."

The net gain in United departures from Eppley Airfield will be two — from 22 at present to 24. On April 30, 1971, there were 22 United Departures.

The New York nonstop will leave Omaha daily at 8 a.m. for LaGuardia Airport. The west-bound flight will leave New York at 6:10 p.m.

Roads Dept. Receives Conservation Award

The Nebraska Department of Roads has received an award from the National Audubon Society for harmonization of the state's roads with the surrounding countryside and for conservation of resources and wildlife.

It is the first highway department to receive this award. The society said the award is the result of Nebraska's extensive use of native grasses and its limited mowing policy.

Roads department agronomist Richard W. Gray Jr. said Nebraska began planting native grasses and legumes along highways in 1961. He said the selection of grasses for a specific area is made according to the climate and soil conditions in the area.

Tommy R. Thompson, roads department architect, said the state began experimenting with limited mowing in 1964 and adopted it as a statewide policy in 1969.

"By a limited mowing policy," Thompson said, "I mean we now only the median strip and the first 15 feet of grassy shoulder on either side of the road."

Gray explained that the combination of limited mowing and use of native grasses encourages regeneration of native prairie flowers and shrubs, crowds out undesirable weeds such as musk thistle and reduces water runoff. He said water retention helps prevent soil erosion and reduces the fire risk.

The Audubon Society estimates that 25% of Nebraska's pheasants hatch in the unknown grass along the state's highways.

Thompson and Gray both said proper landscaping adds to a motorist's ease, appreciation of the surrounding countryside and safety.

Action Against Hunger Unit Plans To Apply For Grants

Action Against Hunger for Health, Inc., plans to meet at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 14 at the Lincoln Center to work on grant applications and outline ways that more low-income persons can participate in the organization, Chairman Lavoy DeCoteau said Thursday.

The group, recently incorporated as a non-profit social welfare organization, plans to seek funding from foundations and other sources, OEO representative Stan Slater said during the meeting Thursday.

Slater said the group was formed from members of Lincoln Action Program's Emergency Food and Medical Services program after it was learned that EFMS funds were to be cut off in July.

A free breakfast program for low-income children in selected elementary schools in Lincoln can be started pending approval of the state school food services director and the school principals, Slater said. If approved, the first schools to use the program in Lincoln might be Clinton School, 1520 No. 29th, or Elliott School, 225 So. 25th, a group member said.

The group also discussed plans to set up food buyers' cooperatives in an attempt to provide lower-cost food for low-income members.

Greece Proposes Tax On Religious Charity Groups

Athens (AP) — The Greek government decreed Thursday a semistate companies, philanthropic and religious organizations including churches and monasteries must submit a yearly financial declaration for tax purposes.

The semistate companies include the public power corporation, Hellenic Bank for Industrial Investment and the telecommunications group.

It is believed to be the first time in modern Greek history that religious organizations will be taxed. Monasteries own vast tracts of fertile land throughout the country.

The decree is effective this year.

In addition, Finance Minister Ioannis Koulis indicated two weeks ago that the Greek royal family — traditionally exempt from taxation — would also have to file a revenue statement.

King Constantine receives a salary of $580,000 a year to pay the costs of his staff and upkeep of the Athens palace. Since he fled to exile four years ago, his annual stipend has been cut.

The President has announced a program to help veterans get jobs.

Now he's asking for your help.

Most veterans returning to civilian life seek jobs. For many, this is a period of uncertainty . . . perhaps difficulty. Veterans not only deserve your help, but they have something extra to offer—clerical, trade, technical, professional, and supervisory skills learned in the service—plus the use of the GI Bill to learn while they work. Equally important, they have maturity, self discipline and motivation!

The Jobs for Veterans program is designed to widen job and training opportunities for veterans. The Federal Government is mobilized. States, cities and counties have been encouraged to form local Jobs for Veterans Task Forces.

Do your part! Urge your firm to hire and train vets. Work with your local business, labor, government, veterans and civic organizations to help veterans find meaningful jobs.

To hire a veteran—see the local office of the State Employment Service. For information on training programs for veterans, contact the local office of the Veterans Administration.

DON'T FORGET. HIRE THE VET.

UNION PACIFIC DEPOT . . . as it looked in 1920.

Old Depot Needs A Home

The Union Pacific Freight Depot, a frame building just north of the "O" St. viaduct, is in need of a new home.

According to Persijs Kolberg, curator of historic sites at the State Historical Society, Union Pacific officials have offered to donate the structure to any group willing to remove it from its present site.

Unless the depot is removed within the next 30 days, said Kolberg, Union Pacific authorities will initiate action to tear the building down.

Kolberg reported that the depot must be removed from Union Pacific property because it is "economically unfeasible" for the company to retain it.

Although the State Historical Society cannot accept property unless designated by the Legislature, Kolberg said that he would be willing "to work closely with any group interested in undertaking the project of removing and refurbishing the old depot."

He suggested that the building might make an attractive tourist information center for one of Lincoln's parks.

Possibly the oldest railroad structure in Lincoln, the 1877 depot is presently being used by the railroad as office space.

Kolberg reported that very few interior and exterior alterations have been made over the years. Part of the original ticket window and passenger benches are still intact. He added that the building is rapidly deteriorating and is in a "poor state of repair."

The curator of historic sites expressed his concern over the possible loss to Lincoln of such old buildings as the depot. He said that preservation efforts have been less effective in Nebraska's bigger cities than in the smaller towns. Kolberg cited North Platte as an example of a city that was trying to acquire the old Union Pacific depot, which became famous as a canteen during World War II, for use as a museum.

Concerns For Ecology, City's Growth Presented

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Concerns ranging from protection of the ecology to promoting the growth of Lincoln were expressed Thursday night at a public meeting on the proposed corridors for the Lincoln segment of the state freeway system.

The amount of public interest in the proposed corridors for the freeway was brought out by the fact that an estimated 580 people attended and the meeting lasted almost four hours.

The corridors proposed by the private consulting firm of Van Doren-Stallings-Schnacke, Topeka, Kan., are general areas approximately 2,000 feet wide.

The corridors are located on the east, west, and south sides of the city, and south from Lincoln along U.S. 77.

Much of the discussion centered around areas where the proposed routes might conflict with parks.

Sen. Barnett of Lincoln asked that when and if the four-lane freeways are built that they "find a way to avoid the parks."

He pointed out that one of the proposed corridors for the east leg of the east bypass cuts through Wilderness Park and another segment cuts through planned Northeast Park.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf read a detailed resolution passed by the City Council and supported by the City Planning Commission that supported the corridor that would cut through Wilderness Park.

The resolution asked, however, that the road way minimize environmental disturbance and that the roadway be made compatible with the park.

Patricia Rand, an assistant professor of botany at the University of Nebraska, said, "It disturbs me and it disturbs any ecologist to see a highway run through the park."

However, she pointed out that there are already railway and highway right of ways in the park, and added, "One more right of way won't make that much difference."

A spokesman for the Nebraska Wildlife Federation said the routing of a freeway through the park, "made the concept of the park generally obsolete."

A representative of the Fremont Chamber of Commerce pointed out that construction of the freeway in the proposed corridor areas would make it possible for Fremont residents to have easier access to the state and federal agencies, educational facilities and recreational facilities in Lincoln.

J. A. Fagerstrom, a member of the Blue Stem group of the Sierra Club said shopping centers and office buildings would spring up around the interchanges if the freeway is built.

He said that as the city spreads outward to these areas Lincoln could be faced with the cost of urban renewal and a bigger police force.

Ted Schafer, a Lincoln attorney, said he objected to the timing of the hearing.

He said people needed more time to analyze the report and pointed out that it took the consulting firm 22 months to compile it.

He also said the firm's report was "definitely lacking in statement of need for an east Lincoln bypass."

Ban On Student Fees For Speakers Sought

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney Thursday said he will introduce a bill next week to prohibit the use of mandatory student fees to subsidize speakers on public university and college campuses throughout the state.

The measure will also require an accounting of the use of all student fee funds.

Stromer had earlier promised to deliver a bill regulating the use of student fees, but terms of the measure had not previously been outlined.

The 29-year-old lawmaker, who is chairman of the Nebraska Federation of Young Republicans, said he is concerned by an apparent imbalance of "militant radical" speakers subsidized by student fees on the University of Nebraska's Lincoln campus.

"There appears to be an imbalance of people representing what is called the revolutionary point of view," he said.

"Students of today have the capabilities to make logical and rational judgments provided they have the opportunity to be exposed to all points of view."

Stromer said his bill "would not limit who can come on campus to speak."

Any student group that wishes could bring speakers to the campus, he said, but they would have to fund the appearance themselves, charge admission or acquire speakers without cost.

Stromer's bill will join what has become a steady stream of new legislative proposals submitted to the 1972 Legislature. Thirty-two new bills were introduced Thursday, bringing the week's total thus far to 147.

Among them were Sen. Orval Keyes' combination property tax relief and school aid proposal and Sen. Herb Duis' proposed constitutional amendment to limit local taxes on real estate to a maximum of one per cent of actual value.

Both bills had been outlined earlier by the senators.

The Duis plan, contained in LB1185, would have the practical effect of transferring support for schools from the local property tax to state sales and income tax revenue.

Nebraska Recreation Board Bill Readied For Legislature

A proposed bill creating a Nebraska Recreation Board may be introduced to the current session of the Unicameral, The Star has learned.

The bill stems from meetings of the Recreation Study Committee of the Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth which hopes to provide a place for the people of Nebraska to turn with regards to parks and

Arbor Day Tree To Be Green Ash

By resolution, Nebraska's Legislature Thursday designated the green ash as the Arbor Day centennial tree.

This year brings the centennial of the Nebraska-originated Arbor Day observance, and Thursday's resolution marked another step in plans for a centennial commemoration.

Sen. Calvin Carsten of Avoca, chief sponsor of Resolution No. 6, said the state's nurserymen suggested the green ash for centennial year planting because it is natural to Nebraska and is in good supply.

Dissenters as the resolution was adopted 33-2 were Sens. Ramey Whitney of Chappell and Robert Clark of Sidney. Whitney said the only ash trees in his area were planted by early settlers and they are disappearing. The Chinese elm is presently more popular for planting, he said.

Sen. Carsten also has introduced a bill to make the green ash Nebraska's State Tree by law.

The American elm presently is the state tree, but Dutch elm disease is decimating the elm tree population.

Introduced Thursday but held over for later action was a resolution memorializing President Nixon to seek to induce the Soviet Union to end discrimination against Jews and to permit their emigration. The resolution, No. 7, was sponsored by Sens. Sam Klavner and Eugene Mahoney of Omaha, and Jerry Carpenter of Scottsbluff.

recreation, according to Ralph McClintock.

McClintock, a member of the Recreation Study Committee, said, "We feel it is important for the people of the state to have a place they may go for advice and information in this area."

"Currently there is no one state office or agency to head up the gathering and dissemination of information to communities which are trying to expand their recreation programs."

Mrs. Clifford Jorgensen, also a member of the committee, emphasized that the board would be set up to coordinate all the existing agencies and should not be interpreted as an attempt to infringe upon or control the functions of these agencies.

As the proposed legislation stands now, the board would consist of nine Nebraska citizens appointed by the governor and who hold no other state or county office. The members would be drawn from each of the congressional districts and would serve without compensation other than travel and maintenance expenses.

Ex officio members of the board would include the director of the State Game and Parks Commission, commissioner of the State Department of Education, director of the State Department of Economic Development, head of Community Development, head of the Extension Division at the University of Nebraska, director of the State Department of Health, Director of the State Department of Public Welfare, and director of the Department of Public Institutions.

Various duties of the board would include formulating in cooperation with other state agencies, interested organizations and citizens a comprehensive recreation policy for the state.

The board would study and appraise recreational needs, help in promotion and organization of local recreation and park systems and upon request advise local groups in this area.

Another area of the board's concern would include aid in recruiting, educating, and placing recreation workers and to help establish park and recreational standards.

The board would also cooperate with state and federal agencies, commercial and industrial recreational interests, voluntary agencies and other groups concerned with promoting recreational opportunities.

One department expressing major interest in the creation of a state recreation board is the University of Nebraska Extension Division.

Robert Dula, supervisor of community Recreation and Planning, said he is definitely interested in supporting this proposed legislation.

"I traveled over 10,000 miles dealing with 106 communities last year and I definitely feel there is a need for such a coordinating agency," Dula said.

There is no state office to channel incoming recreational needs, Dula explained, and a state recreational office would do just that.

Dula noted that many groups and communities in the state are concerned with promoting recreational and park areas and these groups do not know where to go for advice and assistance.

The state of Georgia created a similar department to serve its outstate recreational needs, Dula said, and its parks development has grown considerably since then.

"There are over 12 states at present with state recreational departments similar to this proposal," Dula said.

Grain Price Support Hike Backing Eyed

The Nebraska Legislature Thursday was asked to support pending congressional action which would raise by 25% the federal price supports for wheat and feed grains.

Sens. Loran Schmit of David City, Richard Maresh of Miligan, and Walter Epke of York sponsored a resolution to put the Unicameral of record in favor of the price support increase.

The increase has already been approved by the House and is now in the Senate.

"The chronic disparity between agricultural income and the income of other segments of our economy has now assumed even greater proportions due to bountiful harvests, increased farm productive efficiency, and the resultant disaster level prices for farm crops," according to the resolution.

The resolution was laid over.

Another resolution, sponsored by Lincoln Sen. Harold Simpson, asked for an interim study on housing in Nebraska.

In his resolution, Simpson said there exists in the state unsafe and unsanitary housing and suggested an interim study could bring together information already collected on the problem.

Carpenter Seeks End To Secrecy

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff Thursday asked the Nebraska Legislature to reconsider rules which prohibit newsmen from reporting some committee activities.

The request was made by Carpenter in the form of an amendment to the legislative rules, and was referred to the rules committee for a decision.

The change the lawmaker requested would allow newsmen to report the votes of individual senators on actions taken while a committee is in executive, or closed door, session.

In addition, newsmen would be able to report "all of the discussions" which take place in the closed door sessions.

For years, reporters have been allowed to sit in on the closed door sessions, but they were prohibited from writing about anything which took place except the numerical vote on bills.

"All it takes is some courage" to roll back the doors of secrecy, said Carpenter.

CROSS BRINGS CONVICTION

Tax Chief Explains Mistake In Study Of Property Taxes

State Tax Commissioner William Peters said Thursday a $13 million mistake in a recent personal property tax survey was due to an error in copying Douglas County figures into the survey.

"The survey was released as soon as it was printed, and then it was checked," he said. "It didn't make sense to us."

The correction indicates the total property tax paid in 1971 will be $56,463,186.88 instead of the $43,509,925.09 given in the original survey.

The survey is being used in Gov. J. J. Exon's campaign to inform the public of his version of a property tax exemption plan.

Several other plans to provide relief for property owners have been introduced in the Legislature, including one by an interim tax study committee chaired by Sen. Jules Burbach which is similar to a proposal Exon vetoed last year.

In the survey, property tax returns are separated into business and farm returns and given in county-by-county totals.

The error occurred when the statistics on Douglas County farm returns were incorrectly copied into the column for business returns, Peters said.

In a statement released to senators and county officials explaining the correction, Peters also said he has received inquiries regarding the farm category because some in that category pay taxes through multiple returns. He said by dividing the total taxes in the farm category ($23,782,301) by the number of farms in the state (73,000), an average of $325 paid per farm is reached.

Gov. Exon Not Surprised By Action Killing Proposed Ban On Food Tax

By The Associated Press
Gov. J. James Exon said Thursday he "was not a bit surprised" the Legislature killed an Exon-backed proposal to eliminate food from the state sales tax.

"I'm just disappointed that the senators did not have enough faith in the people of the state of Nebraska to let the people have a chance to vote on an issue as important as this," Exon said.

He was referring to Wednesday's action when a proposed constitutional amendment to take the tax off food was killed on a 29-15 vote.

Exon and the Democratic Party are sponsoring a petition drive which, if successful, would place the question on the November ballot as a constitutional proposal.

The initiative measure is similar to the bill killed Wednesday.

"I was convinced LB1039 was not going to pass anyway," Exon explained, "that's why we went to the initiative petition method."

"I have confidence in the people of the state of Nebraska and I feel they should have a chance to vote on this question. I'm willing to abide by their decision."

The pledge by Exon to attempt to take the tax off food was a promise of his 1970 gubernatorial campaign and the 1971 Legislature killed an Exon bill which would have accomplished that goal along with eliminating the $7 food tax credit now allowed Nebraskans on their state income tax forms.

"We feel confident our petition drive will be successful," Exon said. "And we're sure that we'll have this measure on the ballot in November, regardless of what the Legislature does."

The food tax question, he said, "is dead for this session but we're still going ahead with our plans to give the people a chance to decide."

LEGISLATURE HONORS POET

The Legislature Thursday paid tribute to Nebraska poet laureate Dr. John G. Neihardt, who celebrates his 91st birthday Saturday.

The Legislature passed a resolution congratulating Dr. Neihardt for "having lived and accomplished so much in his lifetime, and hope for continued and additional years of livelihood."

The resolution was sponsored jointly by Lincoln Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme, Sen. Claire W. Holmquist of Oakland and Sen. William H. Hasebroock of West Point.

Best known for his poetry and books dealing with Indian and frontier life, Dr. Neihardt was named the state's poet laureate in 1921.

Mrs. Orme also noted that President Nixon had also sent a letter of congratulations to Dr. Neihardt earlier in the week.

Pakistani President Willing To Go To Dacca

(c) New York Times News Service

Larkana, Pakistan — President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan told guests at a luncheon party Thursday that he was willing to go to Dacca, East Pakistan, if that would help keep the region a part of his nation. He declined to disclose his immediate plans for Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, the imprisoned East Pakistani leader.

American forces by a specific date and an agreement to abandon the regime of President Nguyen Van Thieu were set by the Vietnamese Communists as their condition for the release of American prisoners of war. The double condition was announced at the first session of the Paris peace talks in a month. (More on Page 2.)

U.S. Warns Red Side Offensive Nearsighted

Paris (AP) — The United States expressed concern Thursday over a major enemy offensive it believes is being planned in Indochina, presumably in the hope of disrupting President Nixon's forthcoming visit to Peking.

As the Vietnam peace talks resumed following a four-week interruption, the two sides bogged down in bitter accusations. Each side accused the other of refusing to negotiate while violating its own commitments.

The Viet Cong went out of its way to deny President Nixon's assertion that he tried — and failed — to obtain the release of American prisoners in return for a total American withdrawal.

U.S. negotiator William J. Porter told the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations: "I wish to caution you that the military efforts you seem to be planning on the western border of South Vietnam and elsewhere in Indochina are not likely to achieve anything to your permanent advantage and will probably entail the loss of many more lives."

"I urge you to reflect before you engage in the military adventures you apparently are planning."

Unusual Warning
The unusual warning was believed to reflect American concern that an enemy buildup in Cambodia and Laos may be the prelude to a major offensive to coincide with Nixon's Peking visit next month.

In veiled but unmistakable terms, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have repeatedly expressed their misgivings that Nixon's trip may lead to a Chinese-U.S. deal behind their backs.

At the end of the fruitless four-hour session, Porter told newsmen he heard nothing new from the Communist delegates which might give ground for hopes of a break in the deadlock.

Both North Vietnam's Xuan Thuy and the Viet Cong's Nguyen Van Tien angrily denounced Nixon for his televised interview Sunday, in which he was asked about the possible release of American prisoners in return for a U.S. withdrawal from South Vietnam.

Reds Hinted
The Communists hinted at such a deal in their seven-point peace plan of July 1, 1971, but they also insisted that the United States must halt all its military and political support for the Saigon government.

Nixon said Sunday a prisoners-for-withdrawal deal was discussed at various times in the Paris talks, but Hanoi "totally rejected it." But he said nothing about fixing a withdrawal deadline.

Tien told newsmen Nixon had "tried to make everyone

Notorious 'Purple Gang' Chief Released

Columbus, Ohio (UPI) — Former gangster Thomas Licavoli, leader of the notorious "Purple Gang," which struck fear into the hearts of rivals during the Prohibition era, was released Thursday from Ohio Penitentiary where he spent 37 years on a murder conviction.

Licavoli, 68, who suffered a heart attack while in prison, said he planned to live with his wife in suburban Gahanna and pursue his prison hobby of collecting and selling rare stamps.

"It's wonderful to be out," Licavoli told waiting newsmen.

Licavoli was convicted in 1934 and sentenced to life for the gangland slaying of three rival mobsters and one of their gun molls while head of the "Purple Gang," which wielded powerful influence in the Toledo-Detroit underworld.

Even during his stay in prison Licavoli was a center of controversy. Two prison officials resigned during his time in prison under charges of showing Licavoli favoritism.

Some political observers believe that former Gov. James A. Rhodes was defeated in the 1970 Republican primary because he had commuted Licavoli's conviction to second-degree murder in 1969.

Muskie Says Nixon Lets Down Public

Concord, N.H. (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, formally entered New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary Thursday, then assailed the Nixon administration for destroying public credibility in government.

"Americans increasingly don't believe their government," Muskie said in his first major appearance since declaring his candidacy Tuesday. "That must be changed."

Thursday was the filing deadline and Muskie was followed a short time later by Rep. John M. Ashbrooke, R-Ohio, in submitting nominating signatures.

After presenting 4,000 voter signatures and the required $500 filing fee to Secretary of State Robert L. Stark, and addressing briefly the New Hampshire Legislature, Muskie fielded questions from newsmen.

Example Offered
Muskie offered as an example of administration secrecy the conduct of American diplomacy during the Indo-Pakistani war as revealed by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

"The administration's public statements was that it was not anti-India. This came from a Henry Kissinger background in 1971," Muskie said.

"In the Anderson Papers the result is obvious. We, the administration, are not anti-India enough. This also came from Dr. Kissinger."

"This is hardly the way to gain respect for national leadership and honesty," Muskie said.

"I certainly don't condone stealing papers as a method to inform the public. But that's not the problem. The problem is the government is following privately a path which publicly appears different."

Mayor, Senators
These include Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota.

Muskie is considered to be easily able to win and McGovern is given the best chance of scoring an upset. The strength of Hartke and Yorty are hard to determine at present.

Ashbrook became the third Republican to run. The other candidates on the GOP side are President Nixon, whose name was entered by former Gov. Jane Dawson without the President's permission, and Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif.

B52s Loose Nearly 300 Tons Of Bombs

Saigon (AP) — B52 Stratofortresses made their biggest raid of the war on the demilitarized zone Thursday, dropping nearly 300 tons of bombs on enemy targets.

At the same time, the U.S. Command disclosed that a second plane had made a strike inside North Vietnam Wednesday, attacking a radar site only 64 miles southwest of Hanoi.

The rising tempo of the air war reflected allied concern that the enemy may try to launch an offensive soon.

One area where an enemy buildup has been noted is in the demilitarized zone separating the Vietnamese. Nine waves of Indochina action last week — both of them shot down over Laos.

The command said it had no way of knowing which of 15 pilots reported missing in the last three weeks of December were listed now as dead. It was the first week since March 1965 when the recorded U.S. deaths in action were only in the air.

The U.S. Command also said 50 Americans were wounded in action last week, about average for the last three months of the year.

San Quentin To Be Closed

San Quentin, Calif. (UPI) — Dreary old San Quentin Prison, California's oldest penal institution whose name has been burned into the annals of modern prison violence, is headed for oblivion.

Gov. Ronald Reagan Thursday announced plans for a three-year phaseout of the 120-year-old prison, where 11 persons have been killed in the past year and whose huge death row houses some of the country's most notorious murderers.

100-Year-Old Chairman Of GM Of Canada Dies

Oshawa, Ont. (UPI) — Robert Samuel McLaughlin, chairman of the board of General Motors of Canada and one of the last of the turn-of-the-century automobile pioneers, died Thursday at the age of 100.

McLaughlin, known throughout the auto industry as "Mr. Sam," had been ailing for some time, a GM spokesman said. He underwent abdominal surgery in June 1971 and spent most of his time since then at his Parkwood Estates home, venturing out only occasionally for a drive.

Born Sept. 6, 1871, in Oshawa, the son of the founder of the McLaughlin Carriage Co., McLaughlin went to work for his father as a $3-a-week upholsterer.

After the turn of the century, he foresaw the future of the automobile and founded the McLaughlin Motor Car Co. in Oshawa.

Robert S. McLaughlin
Known As
"Mr. Sam"

In 1918, the McLaughlin family's automobile interests were sold to General Motors of Canada, and McLaughlin became president of the company and later, board chairman.

He retired as president of GM of Canada at the age of 53, ostensibly to "ease up," he once said. But his association with the company was still active almost a half century later. While he had retired some time ago as member of the board of directors, he retained the title of chairman of GM of Canada to his death.

(His wealth was estimated at $275 million. AP reported.)

Farmers Exchanging Labor Posing Safety Rule Problem

Farm Editor

The Nebraska Farm Safety Council took a dim view of a definition of "employee" as applied to a farmer assisting his neighbor in the time-honored practice of exchange of labor.

Council members voted to contact the Federal Department of Labor, and all five members of the state's congressional delegation in Washington on the matter.

The council decided to study the possibility of a state safety program to be operated by the Department of Labor under the federal law. Council members declined to support the establishment of a state safety inspection program until they know more about the power of the department in operating what is basically a federal program.

Of particular concern is a provision in the federal law which demands that a violator of a safety provision be fined with no provision whatever of a time period to eliminate the safety hazard.

Hope Expressed

Walter Dennis of the State Department of Labor expressed the hope that the state could help the employer by telling him what he had to do to eliminate safety hazards rather than slapping him with an instant fine.

Dennis also indicated his department had attempted to get an understanding of the rules related to exchange of labor between farmers. "We specifically asked at a meeting in Kansas City about farmers gathering to help harvest a neighbor's crop when he is ill or injured. The man from Washington talked on the matter for 15 minutes but never did answer the question. I don't think they have really decided themselves what to do about exchange of labor," he said.

The federal safety act currently affects farmers who have one or more employees. There are specific standards applied on slow moving vehicle signs, on migrant labor camps, and on pulpwood logging. Distribution of anhydrous ammonia fertilizer will come under the law in February.

Rollin Schnieder, extension safety specialist at the University of Nebraska said "the safety standards include a requirement for safety chains on nurse tanks, a five-gallon container of fresh water on the nurse tank and there are specific requirements for eye protection at the plant."

Can't Get Standards

Schnieder said "there is a six-page set of standards that is supposed to be available. I have ordered 2,000 copies of them to send to all the fertilizer dealers but I haven't been able to get them."

Schnieder told council members that he expects a ruling on roll-over protection for tractors soon, probably in May. Schnieder said, "There is good protection available for tractors made after 1965, but on earlier models we have a real problem in designing an adequate roll bar."

He estimated the cost of fitting a tractor with a roll bar at $150 to $200, with a canopy-type protection at $500 and with a crush proof cab at $1000 to $1200.

Schnieder suggested that a properly-designed loader for a tractor could provide protection, but pointed out that some types of loaders were an added hazard to the tractor operator.

The Nebraska Safety Council is planning a series of meetings on the Occupational Safety Act in several regions of the state sometime in February. A similar series of meetings for communities of 5,000 or more is also being planned. The dates and places of the meetings will be announced as soon as final plans are completed.

Exon Draws Big Crowd For Tax Exemption Talk

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Milligan—A crowd nearly matching this Fillmore County community's 320 population served as the political arena Thursday night for round one of the Exon-Burbach property tax battle.

Gov. J. J. Exon got in the first licks, but state Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton takes his turn next Tuesday night.

Both men were invited by state Sen. Richard Marsh of Milligan, who said "the people should get to decide for themselves on what is one of the most important issues before the legislature."

The governor devoted much less time to his own "circuit breaker approach" than to his foe's proposal—which he derided as "a tax shuffle rather than tax relief."

With Nebraska educational television cameras grinding away, Exon said the Burbach plan would have "fat cats who represent 1.5% of the taxpayers getting 32% of the relief."

"The most relief by far would go quite shockingly to . . . the most affluent people," he stated.

The governor said he had vetoed two property tax relief bills last session because they represented "A mad dash and fantastic bonus for the affluent. He said proponents of amendment 10, which was approved in the November election, had pledged a gradual reduction in personal property tax reductions.

Exon said his own plan "keeps the faith of state taxpayers" by not calling for increased sales or income taxes. He claimed that Burbach would cost a typical family earning $8,000 at least $75 more a year in those taxes.

Exon also said that Burbach's proposal would result in 15% of the people receiving 70% of the tax relief, while 61% of taxpayers would get less than 6% back.

State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh, one of nine senators present, added his support to the governor's plan. State Tax Commissioner Bill Peters also helped explain the two measures.

They said it would not be necessary to increase sales or income taxes under Exon's plan because of anticipated growth of the two. Exon's bill would impose a tax credit limit of $1,000 to individual taxpayers.

"The real problem in Nebraska today is not so much the personal property tax," the governor stated. "Real estate property taxes are reaching a confiscatory level."

Corps OKs Guidelines For Clearing Creeks

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Guidelines proposed by the National Audubon Society recommending continuation of planning for the resumption of snagging and clearing of the Prairie Creek and Wood River basins near Grand Island were essentially accepted by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Nebraska Environmental Advisory Committee after a bus tour Thursday.

Following a closed meeting of the committee Thursday afternoon, Col. B. P. Pendergrass, Missouri River district engineer, said "the committee was in agreement" with guidelines for the flood control project. The guidelines were presented Wednesday night by Leonard Parachini Jr., president of the local Audubon chapter.

The corps has been asked to complete the clearing and snagging of the two streams, begun 18 months ago by the Mid-Platte Valley Watershed. The committee has served in an advisory capacity in matters concerning the impact of corps projects on the environment.

Parachini and Ron Klataske, Audubon regional representative, had objected to the watershed's clear-cutting of trees from the stream's banks as excessively costly, destructive of wild life habitats and conducive to stream bank erosion and opposed the practice of removing snags and log jams from the stream channels to prevent flooding.

Much of the discussion at the closed session Thursday afternoon centered around whether the committee should first give the corps approval to begin the project, or first approve the development of environmental guidelines and later grant approval conditional on the guidelines drawn up by the corps.

The committee's ultimate recommendation called for "the development of project environmental guidelines" for the project, and requested "the opportunity to review" the corps' completed guidelines.

Col. Pendergrass said that environmental guidelines would be drawn up by the corps and sent individually to committee members for their comments.

"I don't see why we can't build a model project," Pendergrass said, "and set an example of what an environmentally enlightened project can do."

"It appears to me we can give some relief to the flood problem and at the same time not only protect, but even improve, the riparian (river) habitat."

The position paper presented by Parachini objected to clearcutting as an unnecessary destruction of woodlands essential to wildlife, constituting "a refreshing contrast to an ever increasing number of 'factory farms.'"

Clearing, the paper said, should be "selective and limited to only those trees which pose an immediate threat of falling into the stream beds" and causing log jams.

The guidelines also insisted on the replanting of sapplings and native grasses to counteract the disruption of stream banks. Channelization, the paper added, "shall not be a part of the project." The corps already has $5,000 in funds authorized for the project and could gain further funds up to $100,000 congressional limit on each stream.

Omaha Police Nab Boys From Kearney School

State Patrol headquarters Thursday reported Omaha police have apprehended two 15-year-old boys who have been missing from the Kearney Boys Training School since September.

The Patrol said there were originally four youths on leave in Omaha who failed to report back to Kearney on Sept. 24.

One was previously apprehended and one is still missing, the Patrol said. The youths were picked up Wednesday night and were being returned Thursday to Kearney.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Matters affecting local and state tax systems are a dime a dozen in the current Legislature. If the Legislature, as Sen. Terry Carpenter has suggested, wants to get its business done and adjourn, one good way of doing it would be to forget about all bills relating to the tax system.

When you get right down to it, the system today isn't too bad. A proposal by Sen. Herbert Duis, planned for introduction, would limit taxes on real property to no more than one per cent of the actual value of that property. This is probably about a third of the taxes that are now levied on property.

Sen. Willard Waldo would eliminate the recently enacted homestead exemption and kill the authority for local governments to levy a sales tax. Other proposals include various approaches to the sales tax on food and, of course, the highly controversial tax on personal property.

If nothing at all were changed in these areas, very few taxpayers would know the difference and the state would save itself a lot of time. Of course, it won't happen that way because the temptation to fool with the system is just too great.

On the personal property matter, it refers to business and farm equipment or inventories and automobiles. We wonder if the voters really knew what they were doing when they voted favorably on legislative authority to eliminate this tax.

The tax on automobiles will not be eliminated. This is not even under discussion. The only thing under discussion is the tax that is applied against farm equipment and business equipment and inventories.

The discussion centers on two proposals, one by Sen. Jules Burbach and one by Gov. J. James Exon. Exon's approach is far the superior and his figures demonstrate that a total eventual writeoff of this tax, as Burbach proposes, would simply shift some $55 million in taxes from the wealthy to everyone else.

Without boring you with the statistics, the great share of this personal property tax is paid by a relatively small number of farmers and businesses. Most who pay the tax are small farmers and small businesses.

Thus, a slow and escalating exemption such as Exon proposes would give relief to those who need it most among the personal property taxpayers. But it would continue a good slice of the tax on those who are bigger operators and presumably, can afford to pay the tax.

Nor are all the inequities of the personal property tax the same. Generally speaking, the farmer would have a hard time passing on the cost of this tax because he has so little control over the prices he receives for the things he markets. The business, on the other hand, can pretty well pass the tax on to customers.

Thus, there is far less inequity in the tax as it is applied against business than there is in its application to farmers. Another aspect of the matter has to do with the effects of the tax on prices.

Eliminating the personal property tax on business is not likely to save the buying public much of anything in the market place. Possibly, some savings could be found in the purchase of automobiles but even this is pure speculation.

The average business or industry is not going to lower its prices when and if the tax is removed. Rather, removal of the tax will merely fatten profit margins.

Another state senator, Orval Keyes, has said that the Legislature should look at class exemptions in personal property, based on such things as income production and the payment of a sales tax.

Finally, there is the overall matter of pressing need for tax funds at the state level. In the face of this need, is it appropriate to talk about any tax elimination or exemption, at all? If it has to come and the choice is the Exon or Burbach proposal, Exon clearly has the better plan.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Early Retirement
A Growing Trend

NEW YORK — Middle aged wives who flout their membership in the "for better or worse, but not for lunch" club may wind up cooking noontime hamburgers long before they're ready to have the old man around the house all day.

(As for their own meal . . . well, some folks say you can get used to eating crow.)

The stark economic fact is that more and more and more men are grabbing early retirement and "early" doesn't always mean 62, or even 60. In some cases it is 55.

While this may send the lady of the house into a panicky spin, for most men it opens up an unexpected chance to put their daydreams to work. Especially if they're lucky enough to be under a generous pension plan.

Many of them are some plans are more liberal than others, but out of 34,000,000 workers covered by a total of $150 billion in private pension funds, at least 10 per cent are now retiring the first chance they get.

And if that chance comes in their middle 50s, they still have time to "daylight" another career. With that pension check rolling in every month, they're even willing to settle for less pay.

They can afford to. Because the average private retirement plan pays out one per cent of salary for each year worked. So, if after 30 years a man is making, say, $20,000, he can retire on $6,000 or $7,000 a year, with Social Security still to come.

This won't put him in the affluent society, exactly, but it will let him escape from the rat race into something he thinks might be more challenging. The experts call this "occupational renewal."

Or, if he's closer to 60, he can really retire (and we won't go into what his wife calls THAT) and work on getting his golf score closer to his age (or maybe twice his age). Or take up painting or golf watching or reorganizing Mother's cupboards.

Whatever he chooses, the trend is toward early retirement with liberal benefits. And don't think it's all pure kindness on the part of management, either. Sometimes even though it means paying pensions over a longer period, the company even saves money.

For one thing, it's a most effective way to weed out workers who aren't carrying their weight. On the executive level, it gets rid of the deadwood to make room for younger men with more than retirement on their minds.

Also, early retirement is a gentle way of easing out workers who have been replaced by computers and other space-age improvements. And, since their pension checks are considerably less than their salaries, the company has that much more to spend on additional computers. (Thus putting more men in line for early "retirement.")

During last year's depression, employers circumvented out-and-out firing by offering veteran employees early retirement — or else. Their jobs were then filled by younger men, who didn't cost the firm so much. This helped weather the hard times.

There are even some business prophets who predict that within 10 years, private industry will be offering retirement after 20 years at half-pay, even as a lot of public-payroll pension plans already do.

And whatever else that means, ladies, there go the all-day bridge games.

Value Of 'Anderson Papers'

Do the Anderson Papers really tell the public that much? We are of the opinion that the U.S. government unfortunately and through faulty reasoning aligned this country on the wrong side of the India-Pakistan war and the "secret-sensitive" minutes of White House Security Action Group meetings released by Columnist Jack Anderson reinforce that feeling.

Anderson said he released the classified information because he is against government secrecy and because he doesn't think the government has a right to lie in the conduct of its foreign policy.

There may have been incongruities in what National Security Advisor Henry Kissinger told the press for public consumption about the administration's stance on the Indo-Pakistani war and was being said in private among policy planners. It may also be true, as U.S. Ambassador to India Kenneth Keating alleges, that American policy was not justified by the facts of the situation.

But as far as the American public and the rest of the world was concerned, the U.S. came out on the side of Pakistan and it didn't take the release of the Anderson papers to make that perfectly clear.

The papers may be valuable for another and more important reason, however, in that they should generate action to change the government's system of classifying "secret" information.

It should be noted that the government did not immediately step in to see court action to restrain the publication of the Anderson Papers as it did in the case of the Pentagon Papers. There apparently was no serious breach of military security.

What this suggests is that there is much information that is stamped secret that is not crucial to the national security and thus should not be kept from the public. But the publication of the papers in itself shows that existing laws governing the classification of information are being abused.

The House Armed Services Committee's inquiry aimed at curbing overuse of the secrecy stamp and closing what Chairman F. Edward Hebert calls the "open season" on government secrets certainly is in order.

Housing Authority Vacancy?

Earlier this week in this space we commented on Mayor Schwartzkopf's promising selection of Mrs. Carol Youkum to fill a vacancy on the Lincoln Housing Authority (LHA). The mayor has not completed what we believe to be his obligations regarding the current LHA situation, however.

Last June 30, the term of Housing Commissioner Carroll Thompson expired. Thompson, a former city councilman with past experience on the Mayor's Committee on Human Relations and the Mayor's Committee on Housing, was originally appointed to the LHA by the late Mayor D. L. Tynell in 1963 and was reappointed to a full term by Mayor Dean Peterson in 1966. He continues to serve at the pleasure of Mayor Schwartzkopf, although the mayor has neither made a new appointment nor notified Thompson of any intention to reappoint him.

This week, the authority elected Thompson chairman, succeeding Kenneth King, whose resignation from the LHA became effective Dec. 31 last year. Thompson accepted the post with the reservation that he would resign in February if he is not reappointed.

Thompson in his nine years on the LHA has exhibited an understanding of the housing problems besetting the low-income, students and the elderly. As its programs grow in scope, the authority can benefit from Thompson's valuable experience. We believe that it is his wish to continue serving, but his attitude in announcing he will resign if not reappointed is entirely reasonable. It would be difficult to be an effective chairman on a day-to-day basis.

Because it would be of value to the authority and its clients and the city as a whole, we think Thompson should remain on the authority. But, at any rate, the mayor should fish or cut bait. He should either reappoint Thompson or make a new appointment.

Muskie Offers Calm Face Of Reason To Voter;
Wallace's Florida Decision Harms Democrats

NEW YORK — If it may be symbolic of trouble ahead that on the day Sen. Edmund Muskie launched his long-expected presidential candidacy in an expensive national telecast, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama got almost equal news coverage by casually letting the New York Times know that he would run in the Florida Democratic primary.

Actually, of course, it was the Muskie telecast itself, taking over the closing minutes of a popular prime-time entertainment show, that counted most.

The candidate came across as somewhat grim and unsmiling, rather like a prosecuting attorney summing up a capital case, but that is certainly to be preferred to "the politics of joy" that was so incongruous a part of Hubert Humphrey's 1968 campaign. No doubt some Americans will also prefer a stern Muskie visage to those nervous little smiles that flash across Mr. Nixon's face below the eyes.

Muskie showed some adequate phrase-making (particularly "A New Beginning" with its echoes of both the New Deal and "Let's get this country moving again") and set out the case against the present administration concisely without too many wild swings or inside curves

(although when Muskie conceded that not everything wrong in the country could be charged to the Republicans, one thought that rose irrepressibly was that, indeed, a good many of them had to be charged to the Democrats).

Above all, however, Muskie appeared to succeed in striking the tone he is said to be seeking for his campaign — that of a calm, reasoning, trustworthy man whom Americans can follow with confidence. That achievement put him in some contrast with Nixon, whose various spokesmen and apologists are still explaining what he really meant to say in some passages — notably concerning Vietnam — of his hour-long television "conversation" Sunday night.

But if his manner makes Muskie look like perhaps the best counter to Nixon among the Democratic hopefuls, Wallace's decision to campaign as a Democrat, at least for the time being, throws new obstacles in Muskie's path to the nomination.

Most immediately, the Alabama governor's Florida campaign poses the threat of disaster for Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington. Florida was considered his best bet to show himself a big vote-getter and possibly to upset Muskie, but Wallace will almost certainly draw off the support of many who might otherwise have voted for Jackson, leaving him stranded far down the line.

The Wallace campaign does not appear to be in Muskie's interest, either. Wallace polled about 28 per cent of the votes of both Democrats and Republicans in the 1968 Florida general election, and various polls now show him with up to 40 per cent of Democratic voters. With a big field of more liberal candidates and a vigorous Wallace campaign in prospect, that kind of support could conceivably give Wallace a victory in the eighth largest state and one of the most important primaries. He is almost bound to make a strong showing, at the very least.

This would dramatize the question whether Muskie, if nominated, could hold Democrats in line against an almost certain Wallace third-party campaign next fall. And any time a candidate is likely to draw off as many voters as Wallace should in Florida, the outcome among all the other contenders is likely to be changed substantially. That could mean for instance, that Humphrey might finish ahead, instead of Muskie, or that the

The world of education is not only one of words—it has also been a world of watchwords, catch words, this-and-that words.

Last year, "the" word seemed to be "accountability." But over the years there have been many words and phrases that have directed attention to schools. Other recent ones include "vouchers," "reorganization," "career education," "education without walls."

The list goes on and on. But this year, it looks as if all those words and phrases may meet (or perhaps collide) in a couple of words that may be a bit easier for everyone to understand.

The words are "school finance."

And it's likely to be the hottest topic in education from the local school board to the state legislature to the U.S. Congress.

It's obvious, for example, that "school finance" is bound to ring through the Cornhusker State's own legislative halls plenty of times during the brief 1972 session.

Flags have begun to wave over several plans to change the way the state aids local school districts.

But unless Nebraska's legislators are willing to vote a hefty increase in state taxes during this election year, those plans may all wind up in the circular file by the time the 60 days are up.

The fact that there are several plans in the discussion stage is not particularly unusual — methods of aiding local school districts with state-collected monies have been major topics of discussion in other years.

But this year they all take on extra meaning in light of court decisions in California, Texas and Minnesota, the knowledge that other similar suits are pending in states all over the country, and the promise that such a suit will be filed in Nebraska.

Milan Wall

Suit To Be filed

The court decisions handed down thus far say the current methods of financing schools (used in virtually all states) are inequitable because of a reliance on local property taxes for much of school support.

That, said those courts, is unfair to poorer districts in a matter that's supposed to be a state-wide responsibility.

So, state legislatures in most of the 50 states are probably looking at the school finance question this year, or will be soon.

Unless observers of the educational scene miss their guesses, there's bound to be some other eyes focused on the same question from the federal level.

Speculation has it that President Nixon may suggest, in the near future, some national plan for school finance to help equalize educational opportunity nationwide.

Such a plan, it is said, might be financed by a "value-added" tax, a flat levy on the value added at each stage in the manufacture of a product.

Thus far, such a tax has been mentioned in terms of world trade competition, rather than as a revenue-producing scheme.

The tax is apparently common in Europe, where it is used to encourage exports by levying it against imports but rebating it to exporters.

Nixon is said to be considering asking Congress to consider it as a measure to strengthen the nation's world trade position.

He also could, it seems, suggest that the revenue from such a tax be used to support local schools across the country.

The California decision has already led Nixon, back in October, to order a new study of school financing. Announcing that study, HEW Secretary Elliott Richardson said school financing should move from "a narrowly based, regressive local tax to a more broadly based national tax."

And a study released in November by the U.S. Office of Education called for federal and state governments to assume almost all public school costs.

It certainly looks as if the winds are blowing in that direction.

Assuming that something is bound to happen to move in the direction of more federal financing, there are barrelsful of questions that will be raised.

If the country goes to a national value-added tax for school support, for example, would that be as unfair to low-income families as the courts have said property taxes are? Perhaps not, if the poorer districts get a fair share of the returns.

It also raises interesting questions about the role of local school boards and the question of local control of schools.

And assuming some kind of federal block grants would go to states to parcel out among local schools, the power of state departments of education might be enormously enhanced.

Another question: If federal and state governments take on major financing of local schools, will the country also move toward federal or state teacher pay schedules?

And: Will teacher associations move into positions to negotiate for annual wage increases at state or federal levels?

Assuming those are the kind of questions that begin to pop up in the coming months, the school finance issue may draw as much national attention as any other domestic concern of recent years.

Un-Answer

Lincoln, Neb.

The League of Women Voters should be called the League of Women Vultures. These women have nothing better to do than suggest ways of doing away with elections.

While they are yammering for more efficiency in government, their husbands are demanding as university professors, less time in the classroom, and as business executives, longer two-hour lunches.

No they are the un-answer to these city, county and state problems.

Promises

Burwell, Neb.

If Nixon is re-elected, it will be money that does it — not the poor and middle-class people. He is grabbing at anything that looks like votes. Sideburns for the young voters — freeing Hoffa for the labor vote — making what some people call

"bold moves" to see what happens. My guess is that instead of being bold, he is desperate. And now, big promises for welfare recipients. No end to promises. I hope people aren't gullible enough to fall for his promises.

The killing goes on so it will tally with Nixon timing. It doesn't seem to matter to him if a few hundred or thousand boys lose their lives to make his timing work.

He is adopting Democratic measures and anything else that he thinks means votes. As usual, he is promising miracles. Why rely on his promises? I think the Democrats should be blamed for giving him a comparative free hand. Maybe they thought he would "hang himself." Any apparent good he does, he will spoil it by arranging for the middle class to pick up the tab.

Legislation Needed

Lincoln, Neb.

The time has long since come for our state senators to look at some type of legislation in the health field to regulate our sprawling hospital costs. Our hospitals enjoy much the same advantage as our public utilities, yet they are allowed to set their room rates and various other charges with very little if any justification to their patients. We are told that labor costs are driving hospital room rates out of sight, yet I have never seen a hospital justify its labor costs by publishing a breakdown of its labor budget. Very few people will argue with the fact that it takes a high-salaried administrator to run a large modern hospital but some justification should have to be made for the numerous high-salaried department heads, especially in non-income-producing capacities.

Hospitals have long been allowed to build their own power structures in large cities, generally competing for the physician's favor by building more prestigious buildings, furnishing more lavish rooms, and by duplicating expensive departments. Rooms are added and furnished at great cost in one hospital while another hospital is operating at 65 per cent capacity in the same city. Three hospitals are allowed to be built in a city when two might be more than the city can support.

One who no doubt took interested notice of Wallace's Florida plans is that state's remarkable young governor, Reuben Askew.

Askew is anxious to see southern Democrats return to the national party behind a winning presidential candidate, and he can hardly like the idea of a strong Wallace faction in his state's convention delegation. So far, he has been regarded as neutral in the presidential primary, but a governor who had the courage to speak out for the necessity of school busing might also be willing to lead a campaign to cut George Wallace down to size in Florida.

Name Of Informant Sought By Attorney In Kiernan Case

Star Staff Writer

An attempt by the attorney for the Roads Department Employees Association to disclose an informant highlighted testimony in the case brought by dismissed engineer Richard Kiernan against the state.

Under questioning all State Engineer Thomas D. Doyle would say for the record was that the person who informed him of Kiernan's remarks concerning Doyle's qualifications for his job "is not a department employee."

"I received the information in strict confidence and I would rather not reveal his identity for this court," he said.

Doug Marti, Kiernan's attorney, objected telling the Court of Industrial Relations that by refusing to answer "we're being denied the right to impeach Mr. Doyle's testimony."

"After some lengthy consultations, the court directed Doyle to inform Marti privately of 'a possible relevant witness.'"

"It will not be necessary to Poindexter Case To Go To High Court

It appears the Nebraska Supreme Court will hear the case of Edward Poindexter, convicted of first degree murder in the death of an Omaha policeman in its March 6 session.

The appeal had been tentatively scheduled for oral argument before the Supreme Court in the session beginning on Jan. 27, but the court reported Thursday written briefs have not yet been filed.

The court does not hear oral arguments on an appeal until some time after written arguments have been filed.

Poindexter, 26, was one of two men convicted for the bomb-slating of policeman Larry D. Minard in August of 1970.

The other man, David Rice, has also requested the High Court hear his appeal from the conviction, but that case has so far not been included on call list.

The convictions stemmed from an incident involving a boobytrapped suitcase, Minard and other officers had been summoned to a vacant house on a lake report of a woman screaming.

Seven other policemen were injured by an explosion apparently triggered by Minard when he touched or attempted to move the suitcase.

Requiem Mass For Rev. Mines To Be Saturday

Clarks (P) — Requiem Mass for the Rev. John D. Mines, 76, who died Wednesday morning in Schuyler, will be celebrated at St. Peter's Church here at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Father Mines had retired at Schuyler last summer after 47 years as a Roman Catholic priest. He was born near Sioux City, Iowa, and was ordained a priest in 1925.

Burial will be in the parish cemetery here.

Group For Re-Election Of Nixon Is Announced

Formation of a Nebraska Committee For Re-election Of President Nixon was announced Thursday by George B. Cook, of Lincoln, who will serve as chairman.

Cook, 61, an insurance company executive, served as state campaign manager for President Nixon's successful 1968 campaign.

The Nebraska committee is reported the fourth in the nation to declare its existence formally. Others have been announced in New Hampshire, Maryland and Oregon.

Cook noted President Nixon carried Nebraska with the greatest vote plurality of any state in 1968 and said, "We hope to make Nebraska No. 1 for Nixon again."

Cook said the committee's full organization will be announced in about a month and headquarters will be established in Lincoln with an office in Omaha.

George B. Cook

He said the committee organization should number nearly 300 persons when complete.

Cook was an alternate delegate to the 1968 Republican convention and is currently state chairman for the National Republican Finance Committee.

say who it is for the record, the court ruled.

Duggan indicated that Friday when it is his turn to cross-examine Doyle he might bring out the informant's name for public record.

The plaintiffs want the informant's identity known so perhaps Doyle's testimony could be impeached and the employee association's charge validated that Doyle has been harassing the union's formation.

The informant allegedly brought Kiernan's remarks regarding Doyle to the state engineer's attention. At an August meeting of the Professional Engineers in Government, Kiernan said that Gov. J. James Exon's appointment of Doyle to the post of State Engineer was "inappropriate" because Doyle is a chemical engineer and not a civil engineer.

On Sept. 1 Doyle suspended Kiernan and subsequently dismissed him on Sept. 8 for "insubordination."

Kiernan reported Thursday that he is currently drawing $855 per month (the same as his Roads Dept. salary) from 2,600 member NDREA for managing the office and publishing the association's publication.

At the trial Kiernan still maintained his contention that Doyle is unqualified for his post.

"Based on his (Doyle's) qualifications, his education and work background, I still feel that Mr. Doyle is not particularly qualified for his post not being a civil engineer."

In the suit the association and Kiernan maintained that Doyle's firing of Kiernan was part of his harassment of the union's formation.

The fired engineer testified that Doyle had denied the association the use of bulletin boards and the cafeteria for meetings, had "warned" Kiernan that he was walking "on thin ice" and balked at making payroll deductions for the support of the union.

Doyle denied the charges of repeated warnings and deliberate harassment. He stated that he refused to let the association use the cafeteria because no employees over Engineer V could attend.

"I don't feel a closed meeting cannot be conducted on state property," he said.

Regarding the payroll deductions, Doyle explained that on his own he could not authorize that because it would have been tantamount to recognition of the union. Doyle said the matter of recognition is up to a committee appointed by the governor and the question was over his purview.

Fund Drive Begun For Ostranders

Cody (P) — A fund drive has begun in the Coy and Valentine areas for the Dean Ostrander family to aid them after their home and personal belongings were destroyed by fire early Thursday morning.

Officials said the Ostrander property, located 10 miles south of here, was extensively damaged by the blaze which was reported to have started in the attic.

Ostrander was forced to walk to a telephone at a neighbors some distance away as his telephone was not in service due to the fire, officials said.

By the time the Cody Fire Department arrived on the scene, the house was extensively damaged, authorities said.

Two Escape From State Reformatory

The escape of two State Reformatory inmates from a hog barn detail late Wednesday afternoon was reported by a State Penal Complex spokesman.

They were identified as Wendell H. Birdhead, 19, of Gordon, and Ronald Barker, 22, of Elwood, Kan. Both are Indians, according to the spokesman.

He said the two escapees were believed to have driven out with an Allis Chalmers tractor belonging to the institution.

Birdhead was transferred to the Reformatory in November, 1970, for two years as an incorrigible from the Kearney State Boys Training School, according to the spokesman.

Barker was serving an 18-month to five-year term for larceny from the person, given by Douglas County in November, 1969.

Both inmates were reported dressed in prison garb consisting of blue trousers, gray sweatshirt and green jacket.

Platte River Basin Study Work Starts

A number of state and federal agency representatives met Thursday in Lincoln to begin developing a work plan for the Platte River Basin Study which is scheduled to begin later this year.

Nebraska Soil and Water Conservation Commission Executive Secretary Doyle Williamson said the meeting was the first of what will be several gatherings to develop a plan.

"I don't think we have even made any decisions yet now," Williamson said. "We're just talking in generalities and we won't get to specifics until later R. G. H. now, we're talking about the scope of the study and inter-agency cooperation."

Besides the commission, participants in the meeting included representatives of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and Nick Barbarossa of the U.S. Water Resources Council, the acting director of the study.

Williamson said he hopes some type of plan can be developed by early March for presentation to state and federal authorities.

The study is expected to take 3 1/2 years and cost more than $2 million, including a federal allocation of $350,000 made by the 1971 Congress to begin the project.

Murder Charge Hearing Planned In R. Reyes Case

Gering (UPI) — A preliminary hearing for a Torrington, Wyo., man charged with murder will resume Friday in District Court.

The hearing for Raymon Reyes, 46, began last Friday but had to be continued because of the illness of a witness. Reyes faces first degree murder charges in the Dec. 18 shooting of Leonel Ballesteros, 29, Lyman, Neb.

Ballesteros died last Thursday in a hospital in Scottsbluff. Wounded in the incident was Harry Ritterling, 64, of Lyman.

Fire Destroys Nearly-Finished Omaha Complex

Omaha (UPI)—A fire Thursday night leveled a 24 unit residential apartment complex under construction on Omaha's extreme West Side.

Irvington Fire Chief Jack Dubuse estimated initial damages at $250,000 and said the structure, which was finished on the outside, was a total loss.

In addition to Irvington, Pumper crews were summoned from Millard and Ralston. Dubuse said two passerby in an automobile first noticed flames from the predominately wood structure.

Polk Charged With 2nd Degree Murder Across Nebraska

A 78-year-old retired barber was charged with second degree murder Thursday in connection with the fatal shooting Wednesday of Theodore Walker, 41, of 901 No. 23rd.

Accompanied by Public Defender T. Clement Gaughan, Felix Polk requested a preliminary hearing which was set for Feb. 10 by Lancaster County Judge Ralph Slocum.

With no objection by the county attorney, Polk was released on $5,000 bond.

County Attorney Paul Douglas told the court that his office had always opposed release on bond in homicide cases but that he had no objection to bond for Polk because of his age and health condition.

However, Douglas said he would like to emphasize that "I still don't think a defendant is legally entitled to bond in second degree murder" and that he didn't intend "for this to be a precedent for people released on bond."

Faith-Cure Of Diabetes Could Be 'Misleading'

Omaha (P) — A board member of the Nebraska Diabetes Association Thursday suggested that persons should be wary of a diabetes faith cure claim being distributed in the Omaha area.

Dr. Mary Henn, a professor of internal medicine at the University of Nebraska College of Medicine, said she is concerned that statements on a flyer being distributed by the Kenneth Copeland Evangelistic Association, Inc., may mislead some diabetics.

The flyer includes a statement by Germaine Saucier of Omaha that faith in God cured her of diabetes.

Miss Saucier said at the time she was a diabetic, had chemical asthma and wore tuck glasses.

"This Is For Me"

"When I heard Brother Copeland teach on faith, I thought 'this is for me,'" she says on the flyer. "He said if

Blood Pools In Fremont Are Probed

Fremont (P) — Fremont police continued an investigation Thursday in an effort to find the source of three large pools of blood in a Fremont motel room.

A city official, who asked that he not be identified, said the police were called to the Holiday Inn here Wednesday afternoon after a maid had entered the room and found the blood on a table, a chair and the floor.

The official said it appeared a man who had registered for the room Sunday had not left for any purpose until sometime after the maid had been there Tuesday and he had denied her entrance. Police declined to identify the man other than to say they believed he used an alias.

There was no blood trailing from the room and the official said someone who lost that much blood would have been unable to stop the bleeding without assistance.

A check of local doctors proved futile in an effort to find if anyone had been treated for wounds during the period when the man was registered, the official said.

Drug Stores Must Display Base Prices

Omaha (P) — Drug stores and pharmacies must post the base prices of prescription drugs and pharmaceuticals, Richard P. Vinal, Internal Revenue Service district director for Nebraska, reports.

Vinal said, "The sale of these items is the same as any other retail transaction and, therefore, falls under the Economic Stabilization Act price control regulations."

Walker

According to Douglas, the shooting apparently resulted from an argument between Polk and Mr. Walker regarding the Walker car blocking the driveway of the Polk residence at 544 No. 22nd.

Douglas said Mr. Walker, who was pronounced dead on arrival at a Lincoln hospital, had multiple wounds in the chest area from a .25-caliber automatic pistol.

According to Douglas, the shooting occurred on the public sidewalk near the Polk home and witnesses reported hearing from four to six shots.

Housing Needs Survey Is Planned For Wilber

Wilber — Residents of this Saline County community of 1,500 will be provided with an opportunity to express their new housing desires Jan. 14 when an every-household, confidential survey will be conducted.

Sponsored by the Wilber Chamber of Commerce, the survey will be distributed by chamber members to each household in the city. Chamber President, Milo Jelinek, emphasized that the survey will be absolutely confidential.

The survey is the result of the combined efforts of Vision-17 and the Nebraska Department of Economic Development. Housing-need studies conducted by the Department of Economic Development have shown that there is a great need for low-to-moderately priced housing in the state, but more detailed information is needed to tell builders and lenders what the real demand is in each community.

In announcing the survey, Mayor Glen Zajicek, noted that the future of rural communities depends on a well-rounded development program, and, "this includes better housing units for those people who desire to live, raise their children and work in the non-metropolitan communities."

Mayor Zajicek, who is also a board member of Vision-17, said that, "the major function of Vision-17 is to get things moving, whether in public housing, health-care, industrial site development, recreation, tourism or rural transportation."

A series of meetings leading up to distribution of the survey were attended by Wilber civic leaders, lenders, and builders. Don Sievers, housing specialist with the Nebraska Department of Economic Development, as well as Jim Chilce, local coordinator for Concerned Services in Training and Education through Vision-17, also attended.

Sievers noted that the survey is needed to show the specific demand that exists now for new housing in cities like Wilber. "Too often," Sievers related, "governmental officials, organizations and citizens concerned with inadequate housing in their own community have become frustrated because builders and lenders are reluctant to try to operate in small scattered markets. It's easier to stay in the big cities where cost factors are known."

Commenting on the survey's contents, local coordinator Chilce said that it is necessary for those who are interested in new housing to complete the survey in full.

Grand Island Seeks Election For Library

Grand Island (P) — The Grand Island Library Board has announced it will ask the city council to approve a bond election for a new library, the election to be held in conjunction with the May primary.

The board is completing the purchase of a full block of land just west of the downtown section of Grand Island. Present plans call for a 30,000 square foot building with audio and visual research facilities.

Educators Uniting To Seek More Aid

FOR LOCAL SCHOOLS

Star Staff Writer

The state's teachers, administrators and school board members are banding together this year to present a united voice for more state aid to local schools. The Lincoln area PTA Council was told Thursday.

"The attempt will be made to unify the effort," Lincoln School Supt. John Prasch told the group during a review of education-related legislative matters.

Prasch said several groups have agreed to "use a simple lobbyist to speak to the Legislature about this problem" of equalizing educational opportunity statewide.

Several Cooperate

Among the organizations which have agreed to cooperate in the effort during the current legislative session are the Nebraska State School Boards Association, the Nebraska State Education, and the Nebraska

$20 A WEEK PLAYMATE

Jesse Beane, 11, hugs his "playmate" mountain lion Jo Jo at his Atlanta, Ga., home. His father bought the lion two years ago when they lived in Rhode Island. It plays with the three Beane children like a kitten even though it has super strength and eats $20 worth of horse-meat, chicken and steaks every week. It's fine having Jo Jo but nobody will come in the yard and a man ran his car into a ditch when he saw the lion in Mrs. Beane's yard, she said.

Probe On Alleged Brutality By Poilce Disclosure Urged

City Attorney Dick Wood said Thursday that he has advised Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf to make full disclosure of the Human Rights Commission investigation into alleged police brutality.

Mayor Schwartzkopf said that he will have to discuss the report with the City Council to decide whether the report will be released in its entirety or in a condensed version.

Council chairman Dick Hartsock noted that council members have not yet received copies of the report which investigates charges of police brutality leveled by Cleveland Randolph, a black youth.

Wood added that the release of the report would not now be prejudicial since the completion of Randolph's Municipal Court trial Wednesday on charges of resisting arrest. Randolph alleged he was assaulted by police officers after being taken to the city-county jail.

Schwartzkopf indicated that he had some reservations about releasing the report to the public since he said he had given his word that testimony given before the Human Rights Commission would remain strictly confidential.

Guilty Plea Withdrawal Bid Overruled

Lancaster County District Court Judge William Hastings has overruled a motion by Antonio Vigil of Lincoln to withdraw a guilty plea by Vigil to a charge of first degree murder.

Vigil, 29, entered the plea in connection with the December, 1970, slaying of his wife, Carol, 23.

In his motion to withdraw the plea, Vigil said he felt he was guilty of murder, but not murder in the first degree.

Mrs. Vigil's decapitated body was discovered New Year's Eve, 1970, in a gulch about 10 miles west of Lincoln.

$807,000 Federal Grant Asked For NRMP

A federal grant of $807,000 is being requested for the Nebraska Regional Medical Program (NRMP) for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Dr. Roger D. Mason of McCook, chairman of NRMP's regional advisory group, said Thursday the application will be forwarded to the Kansas City regional office of the U.S.

Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The requested funds for the new fiscal year compares with $500,000 federal funding of the current fiscal year ending June 30.

Dr. Mason said the grant request includes $650,000 for continuation of current programs dealing with coronary treatment and cancer detection, and the education of medical personnel in these fields.

Additionally, he said, $127,000 is being requested for several proposed new programs, including respiratory therapy, special training for nurses and doctors on kidney diseases, and a special information program on neurological diseases.

During its quarterly meeting in Lincoln, the advisory group named Michael T. Higgins of Lincoln, Gary Bieganski of

Sewer Repairs Close E Street

3 Pre-Sentence Investigators Added To Alcohol Program

Three additional pre-sentence investigators have been hired to work in the expanding alcohol program of the Lincoln Municipal Court, according to an announcement Thursday.

Connie Brady, Bill Larimer and William Gossen were selected from more than 20 applicants, according to Judge Thomas McManus.

According to Walter Giles, who will coordinate the work of the new staff members, more than 70 people since Nov. 1, 1971, have been identified as drinking drivers and placed on probation by the court and of this number, one-fourth have been women.

For this reason, Giles said, Mrs. Brady "fulfills a definite need represented by the number of women comprising the court's growing case load."

Mrs. Brady, 30, has been the training coordinator for the Omaha Goodwill Industries, and was a member of the Omaha Council on Alcoholism.

Giles said he feels that Larimer, 22, will provide the program with an "added dimension" since a high percentage of the case load is under the age of 25.

Gossen, 30, comes to the court from the Eastern Nebraska Community Office of Retardation and has worked in alcoholism counseling.

Hospital Director Says Funds Spent On Death Control

Boston (AP) — Dr. John Knowles of Massachusetts General Hospital said Thursday that one-fourth of all health expenditures in America is spent on persons over 65 for the "control of death."

Knowles, who leaves this year as director of the hospital to become president of the Rockefeller Foundation, told a hearing of the President's committee on Health Education that too much money is spent on care of the sick and not enough is spent on prevention of sickness.

"I firmly believe that the next major advance in the health of our citizens will come through health education and preventive medicine and not through more doctors and high-cost hospitals," he said.

The doctor should become active in health education, Knowles said, adding that there is "a striking lack of intellectual, emotional and economic incentive to include health education in his services."

on a tour of the shops

Now that the curtain has gone down on Christmas for another year, shoppers can relax for a spell. Of course, many are taking advantage of the after-holiday sales in preparation for next year.

Perhaps the rest period can be utilized to begin planning a spring wardrobe. This week we took a preview tour of what some of the stores in Lincoln will be showing for the spring season in both men's and women's wear. We think you will like what you eventually will see, and we invite you to join us on this shopping tour so that you may have a briefing of what is in store.

AT MILLER & PAINE

Next Thursday afternoon, Jan. 13 at 2 o'clock, the Miller and Paine downtown auditorium will be filled with "Knits that are for going places." This somewhat unusual fashion show will explore fashion looks for next spring through a range of Vogue Patterns in stunning doubleknits of Trevira polyester.

One of the more popular looks for the spring is the nautical look, with an emphasis on blue combined with red and white. Blazers, cardigans, trousers and dresses will all make the scene in this look that can take you sailing through the casual hours of the day in top fashion. The look is emphasized with sailor-like appliques of anchors and stars.

While pants suits are not nearly the fashion force they were just a brief year or so ago, they are still excellent for sports wear. The pants legs are, however, longer and wider than they have been in the past, and that makes them more appropriate to wear with a jacket or cardigan look.

For real sporting wear, Vogue and Stehli will be showing a free-swinging tennis dress, a bare halter jump suit, and the bare bikini with its own wrap skirt.

The oriental look, accenting the mandarin collar, dolman sleeves and obi wrapped waist also will be making its appearance this spring. The Chinese influence will be seen in raw silk and crepe de chine fabrics.

AT HOVLAND-SWANSON

In the Designer Shop at Hovland's the spring forecast is for clothes that are feminine — but not fussy. The emphasis will be on the classic look in soft, flowing fabrics. Included in these fashions will be the nautical look, the school girl look and the oriental look.

We were able to slip 'backstage' at Hovland's to peek at some of the ensembles that will be appearing in the showroom soon. Straight from Harper's Bazaar magazine was a lovely gingham outfit in the nautical red, white and blue colors. The ensemble combines red and white, and blue and white plaids in an Eisenhower jacket and floor length skirt. The jacket is accented with small rhinestone studs to dress up the cotton gingham for evening wear.

The school girl look is emphasized in the tailored shirt dress with a white collar. One of our favorites featured a navy dress of polyester with a belted natural waistline, slightly eased skirt and small white pique collar.

AT THE BRASS

The man who likes to have his clothes custom-tailored will undoubtedly find just what he is looking for at The Brass, located in the Piedmont Shopping Center, where we found that the one word which best sums up this spring's headlines in the men's fashion world is "knit." We learned that virtually every facet of the man's wardrobe will be available in these comfortable and easy-to-care-for fabrics; and, in the world of knits, the appeal of the many styles available is exceeded only by the number of bold colors and patterns that will be seen during the months to come.

Everything from slacks to shirts to suits — even to jumpsuits — will be featured in knit; and the men's fashion industry will make it easy to coordinate the basic elements of the wardrobe in order to achieve the "total look."

Ties will continue to be wide and brightly-colored; and for those who are a bit timid about mixing patterned ties with patterned shirts and jackets, we learned that this spring, virtually anything goes! Just one word of caution — almost any two or three patterns may be combined as long as the color coordinates are close.

AT JON FEISTNER, LTD.

In the Clock Tower East Shopping Center, we stopped at Jon Feister Ltd., where we learned a bit more about those knits that will be so popular this spring. It seems that the fabric industry has greatly improved the quality of their knits since they first became popular. As a result, the man who purchases the new knits will be bothered far less by fabric snags and garments which lose their shape.

At Feistner's, we especially liked the solid color, five-button, knit sport shirt. These pull-over shirts are available in a wide variety of colors, and they feature short sleeves, and collars and front plackets fashioned of material whose color contrasts with that of the body of the shirt. In order to make it possible to have a fashionable yet versatile wardrobe, slacks in several different colors are available for use with these shirts.

As is the case with just about everything else in men's fashion this spring, shoes will be quite colorful. For the man whose taste is so inclined, we recommend the two-tone oxford which come in a variety of interesting colors (not just the traditional brown and black), and which are somewhat of a cross between a saddle shoe and a wing-tip.

One final word about shoes — the slip-on, which has been passe for a number of years, will be making a comeback this spring.

Afternoon Wedding

The wedding of Miss Annette Edmeier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Edmeier of Laurel, and John Harrison Goodrich, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Goodrich of York, took place at the Christ Lutheran Church in Lincoln on Friday afternoon, Dec. 31. The 2 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Charles Reimnitz, assisted by Msgr. Jerome Murry of York.

Miss Susan Edmeier of Omaha was her sister's maid of honor, and included in the threesome of bridesmaids were Miss Dean Droge of Pawnee City; Miss Jackie Lemands of Hastings, and Miss Annette Albrecht.

Steven Goodrich of York served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers were Lt. Michael Drickey of Colorado Springs, Colo.; Richard Koons of York; Don Farsland, Randy Edmeier of Laurel; David Goodrich, Mark Goodrich, both of York.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of silk velvet in the ivory tone. The bodice, fashioned with a stand-up collar and French-cuffed Bishop sleeves, was smoothly sculptured above the A-line, silhouette skirt. A crown of ivory velvet held in place her lace-bordered mantilla veil of imported illusion, and she carried an arm bouquet of Tropicana roses.

Mr. Goodrich and his bride will be residing at 812 West A St., after Jan. 23.

The bride was graduated in December from the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Sigma Kappa sorority, and of the Cadence Cadettes Drill Team. Mr. Goodrich is a senior at the University of Nebraska and is Commander of the Pershing Rifle Military fraternity, and also Battalion Commander of the Army ROTC at the University of Nebraska.

Next Monday Is Beginning Of Your Calorie Counting

This is a mild abdominal exercise and is beautifying to the arms. Stand tall with your toes pointing forward, arms at sides. Raise your arms straight upward with straight elbows and touch fingertips overhead. At the same time bend your left knee up in front of you, upper leg at right angles to body, lower leg at right angles to upper leg, toe pointed. Keep your back erect. Return leg and arms to place. Do the same thing with your right leg and alternate.

It's here! Another year! Another chance! This makes us feel a little like being reborn. It is exciting because it gives us a fresh start. The new year is not yet cluttered up with any mistakes or frustrations, disappointments or procrastinations. Twelve unexplored months lie ahead of us before the bells will ring out 1972. Let's do something spectacular with them!

How the months treat us depends, to a great extent, on how we use them. We can accomplish such wonderful things if we do not allow this year to slip by while we put off doing what we know we should do for health, appearance and happiness.

Forget 1971! It is gone. Concentrate on 1972! In fact zero in on just the next eight weeks. You can win important rewards in that length of time. Under my direction, you can lose from 15 to 20 pounds, improve your hair, complexion, posture, outlook, streamline your measurements and increase your energy amazingly.

New Year's Eve is a natural time to make resolutions because of your feeling of having another chance. I think the resolve to become more attractive is one of those women make most often. For this reason I bring you my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan (BIP) at this time. Let me tell you how it works.

This Week and next I will give you the information and direction you need to carry on by yourself. After that I will be here one day a week for the next six weeks with additional help and encouragement. Reducing menus will be included for the first nine days. You can repeat these or use them as models when planning your own. My menus give you between 1100 and 1200 calories a day.

The average woman will lose from two to two-and-a-half pounds a week. If you are extremely active, you might add a couple hundred calories a day and still drop two pounds a week. If you have 15 to 20 pounds or more to lose, do not try to do it more rapidly. Give your skin time to shrink to fit the new you.

The menus begin tomorrow. Every other day I am going to give you the grocery list for the following two days so that a daily trip to the store will not be necessary. These will not include the staples you usually have on hand, such as eggs and butter, sugar, bread and so forth.

GROCERY LIST FOR THE

NEXT TWO DAYS

These are the items you will need for the next two days if you are following my slimming menus. I have tried to plan the evening meal so that you can enlarge it for the family if you wish. Make sure you have these grocery items on hand for the diet menus.

Increase amounts to fit the size of your family. I will not list such standard items as sugar, margarine, eggs and so forth.

- Tangerines
- Party rye or whole wheat bread
- Cream cheese
- Raw cauliflower buds
- Cucumbers
- Green peppers
- Carrots
- Chili sauce
- Horseradish
- Reconstituted lemon juice
- Roast beef
- Green cabbage
- Potatoes
- Lemon or orange sherbert
- Mushrooms
- Small yogurt
- Shrimp (fresh or frozen)
- Rice
- Nectarines
- Soy sauce
- Always have skim milk on hand

All you have to do to join my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan is to follow the columns in the newspaper. If you would like to have my booklet which gives you complete directions plus a chart on which you can watch your beauty line rise as your weight line drops send 50 cents (includes postage and handling) and your printed name and address to Josephine Lowman in care of The Lincoln Star.

Footlights & Canvas

By PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

Good morning
The pendulum is beginning to pick up speed as the year 1972 gets under way. After the dry pickings of art events through the month of December, the calendar is beginning to fill rapidly for January.

Before we begin with the happenings for the next few weeks in the area of the performing arts, there are a few backstage notes that we would like to impart.

For some strange and mysterious reason the mail is not going through from Doane College in Crete, and some of the potential participants in the second annual invitational acting festival for high school students have been left without the follow-up information. This event is co-sponsored by Doane College, the Lincoln Community Playhouse and the University of Nebraska Extension division.

The festival is of one act-plays produced in high schools. The deadline entry date is January 13, for the festival which will be held Jan. 21 and 22 at Doane College.

First, second and third place winners will receive sizable scholarships and trophies. The next ten runner-up actors or actresses will also receive scholarships.

Off-campus we find that the new Lincoln Community Playhouse at 2500 So. 36th St. will open its office doors on Jan. 19 for staff members. The official opening will be on Friday, Feb. 4, with a revival of the musical, "The Boy Friend" in conjunction with a Gala Benefit.

Members of the Lincoln Community Arts Council will be interested to note that the monthly January meeting will be held on Jan. 24, as the Nebraska Arts Council will be meeting here on Monday, Jan. 17.

Now, for your further entertainment:

A TEAR IS SHED . . . or will be, as the Lincoln Community Playhouse presents "One More Time" a musical review featuring a cast of 40 men and women. The review begins on a high note with the production of "Comedy Tonight." However, slides from past productions and more nostalgic songs may bring a tear or two from the cast, if not the audience, with the close of the old Playhouse on 18th and L Sts. The review will be shown on Jan. 14 and 15.

GAS LIGHT MELODRAMA . . . The Mud Slim Slide Players will be holding over their Christmas Spectacular and presenting performances on Friday and Saturday evenings, January 7, 8, 14 and 15. The review includes two short melodrama farces, "Out of the Storm," and "Only A Cow Puncher's Daughter (or Son in the City)," along with other brief interludes for hero-cheering and villain-hissing, not to mention popcorn throwing. Shows begin at 9 p.m. at the Gas Light Theatre.

INFECTIOUS RHYTHMS . . . of Burt Bacharach provide the background music for Neil Simon's Broadway smash, "Promises, Promises," that the Lincoln Broadway League is bringing to the Stuart Theatre on Monday, Jan. 17. Tickets are still available at the box office.

CURTAIN CALL . . . FIRST FEDERAL EXHIBIT . . . by members of the Lincoln Artists' Guild is currently on exhibit through Jan. 21. The show has been juried by Jon Nelson of Sheldon Art Gallery.

. . . BATIKS BY JOHN SOULLIERE . . . are now on display at the Unitarian Church.

TOWN TALK

Compared to weekends in the immediate past the current one may seem a little dull. But no one seems to mind too much. The populace still is reliving all of the hysterical excitement of New Year's night, so actually the past weekend still is with us in thought — and conversation.

There is a young man in town who arrived on the scene the day after the Nebraska-Alabama game and therefore isn't too interested. His name is Randolph Glenn Shaner, Jr., who made his world debut on Sunday, Jan. 2, at Lincoln General Hospital. His parents are Lt. Randolph G. Shaner, USN, and Mrs. Shaner, and his mother is the former Cheri Gorham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gorham. Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Shaner are the paternal grandparents.

Lt. Shaner, who is on submarine duty at the moment, received word of the arrival of his son when his submarine was based briefly in Spain.

Mrs. Shaner is a former coed at Nebraska Wesleyan University and Lt. Shaner is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and is a member of Theta Xi fraternity.

More news of the younger generation and the U.S. Navy involves Justin Matthew Otto, son of Lt. Sheldon C. Otto, USN, and Mrs. Otto, who now are stationed at Boeville, Tex., who arrived on Tuesday Dec. 28. The young man's mother is the former Barbara Emery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Emery — and a graduate of St. Elizabeth Hospital School of Nursing. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Otto, also of Lincoln, are the paternal grandparents.

Concert To Be Presented

All of the holiday decorations may have been tucked away for another year at Tabitha Home, but their Sunday afternoons will continue to be devoted to fine entertainment in the field of music.

This week, however, there is an exception to the Sunday afternoon concerts, since this week a program of cello and piano music will be presented on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. This is due to the fact that the cellist, Miss Delta Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Thompson, must return to classes at the George Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn. So, the program will be presented a day earlier than usual.

Miss Thompson, a former student at Nebraska Wesleyan, is a student of David Vanderkooi at George Peabody College, and since Mr. Vanderkooi is a member of the staff at the Beth Miller Rocky Ridge Music School, he is not exactly a stranger to Lincoln musicians.

Sharing the honors with Miss Thompson on Saturday afternoon will be Mrs. Jean Saiser, pianist, who is on the staff at the Beth Miller School of Piano in Lincoln.

Miss Thompson and Mrs. Saiser will play two sonatas for cello and piano—Sonata No. 2 in D Major, Bach—and Sonata No. 2, by Martinus.

ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 15 years has suddenly decided that marriage is a "trap," and he wants out. He wants his own apartment so he can come and go as he pleases. (Not divorced, mind you, he just wants to be free to do as he pleases.)

A wise friend suggested a cheaper way. Give him the spare bedroom and let him do as he pleases. The idea appealed to my husband and that is what he is doing now.

This friend told me to let my husband have his flings and have a ball, and in time he will get tired of it and come back to me. In the meantime I should be pleasant and uncomplaining, and be a good mother to our two teenagers.

My problem. How can I endure the pain of seeing him come and go as he pleases? Can you give me a few pointers on how to put up with this when my heart is aching?

LONELY

DEAR LONELY: Your friend sounds like she has shredded wheat where her brains should be. You have given up your role as a wife to become the "mother" of a teen-ager who has just discovered the opposite sex.

What are you getting out of this arrangement? The privilege of keeping your husband's room clean, and washing his underwear? What if his "flings" last until he is 80? And in the meantime, what kind of example is he setting for his children?

Tell your husband we all make mistakes, and you made a beautiful one when you agreed to the spare room arrangement. And unless he is willing to go for counseling and try to repair your marriage, he can clear out, and you'll see him in court.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Bridge

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been

North	East	South	West
1♥	Pass	2♠	Pass
2♥	Pass	2♠	Pass
3♥	Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

- 1 ♠ A Q 7 6 ♥ 4 2 ♦ Q 8 ♠ A Q J 6 3
- 2 ♠ K Q J 4 ♥ 5 ♦ Q 7 5 ♠ K Q 8 7 2
- 3 ♠ A J 8 3 ♥ — ♦ K J ♠ K Q J 9 8 6 3
- 4 ♠ K J 9 2 ♥ Q ♦ J 9 4 ♠ A K 5 4 3

1. Four hearts. Two low trumps are ordinarily inadequate support for partner's suit, but when he has bid the suit three times it becomes obvious that partner has at least six of them and that the suit is surely playable.

It would be wrong to bid three notrump without a diamond stopper and it would be positively ignominious to retire from the bidding at this juncture with 15 points facing an opening bid. True, North has shown minimum values by bidding one, two and three hearts, but our hand is good enough to take up the slack.

2. Pass. We've shot our bolt. Partner has signed off twice after two constructive responses and is obviously reluctant to undertake a game. He may have something like six hearts to the A-K and an ace in which case we're probably high enough already.

Generally, an opening bid facing an opening bid means game, but here our opening bid values have been materially damaged by the absence of a trump fit.

3. Five clubs. The hand is too good to abandon short of game, even though partner is apparently dying on his feet. The clubs require practically no support from partner, and we can therefore bid five singlehanded.

To bid three notrump would be too dangerous. A diamond opening lead might knock out our only stopper, and if North lacked the ace of clubs the hand could quickly turn sour.

Slam possibilities looked good when partner opened as dealer, but his next two bids indicated a lack of fit in our suits and a weak opening bid besides. Even a game is not absolutely sure.

4. Four hearts. You can't very well bid three notrump, nor can you quit under game with 14 points that include the amazingly queen of hearts. The raise with a singleton trump is rare, but when the singleton is the ace, king or queen and partner has great length in the suit, it becomes roughly the equivalent of three low trumps.

POSTCARD by Stan

The morning paper is full of scurions and alarms. Blood and thunder. It is enough to make a man turn to poetry. Children's books are being rewritten. There's an educators' group which has done "Treasure Island" over again. Making the remarks of Long John Silver more understandable to the young mind.

If we work hard at it. We could come out losers. I guess I fit into this at some level. I am a kind of split-level person. I am a businessman. I am also labor, commuting back and forth on the typewriter ribbon.

One thing I get from my government is a free shot against yellow fever. Other shots are given to you by a jovial, personal physician. (Why should he worry? It's your arm.) But the USA reserves the right to give you the needle for yellow fever.

"The reason I find Life infernal is what I read in the daily journal."

No use looking for that in the anthologies. I wrote that poem myself. Just wrote it, in fact. It is new. Never been used.

Most poets these days do not rhyme their poems. Rhymed poetry is considered very Old Speak Right off the cob. But I cannot help the way mine comes out.

Little Black Sambo has been worked over. He has become "Little Brave Sambo."

This seems to stem from some civil rights protests.

It's a pretty complicated way of thinking about civil rights. Little Sambo was already brave. Handled the tigers with diplomacy. And finally got them turned into tiger butter for the pancakes.

So it seems we must applaud this bravery while denying his natural color.

J.S. To Keep Warships In Indian Ocean

Washington (AP) — The Pentagon indicated Thursday that carrier-led task force sent to the Indian Ocean during the Indo-Pakistan war marks the beginning of regular U.S. naval operations in that vast and strategic sea.

Defense spokesman Jerry W. Friedman said American naval units can be expected to use the Indian Ocean "from time to time" in the future.

"We are able to do that now," Friedman told newsmen.

Urged By Navy

Navy leaders have been urging that a regular American naval presence be maintained in the Indian Ocean ever since the British began pulling out and the Russians sent their 1st squadron into that ocean more than three years ago.

They have won the support of Defense Secretary Melvin Friedman made the comments while he was being questioned about the reasons for the continued presence of the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise and seven other naval vessels in the Indian Ocean.

The U.S. task force, including helicopter carrier and a marine amphibious unit, entered the Indian Ocean Dec. 14 tentatively to be in position to evacuate Americans from war zones in East and West Pakistan.

Routine Training

But the war was virtually over by then and the U.S. naval force moved in an area south of India and Ceylon. It has remained there since, engaging what the Pentagon calls routine training.

Friedman recalled that the United States has been developing a communications station at an airstrip on the island of Diego Garcia and suggested that this was a tipoff of U.S. intentions in the Indian Ocean.

"We are interested in the sea," Friedman said. "I think it could be anticipated that the U.S. Navy would operate more frequently there."

Guns, Cameras Reported Stolen

Ronald Greenes of 5033 Huntington has reported the theft of guns and cameras worth $1,265 from his apartment while he was on vacation, according to police Wednesday.

Police said three handguns, a rifle and three cameras and lenses were taken. The handguns were in special cases.

"I am definitely a consumer — you should look at the bills. I am probably in government. The federal bagman takes a whack of my income. So we must be some kind of partners."

Thus I have a lot of combined efforts to put into prosperity.

Hey-ho, we are off to the warm Caribbean. We have our tickets. Fitted out with shols.

What gets me about these sessions is the way they fill the needle right in front of you.

The Public Health Service traces its beginning to 1798. And after all that time, I think they should have developed a way of filling it behind your back.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

★ By SIDNEY OMARR ★

Forecast For Friday
Aquarians can be counted on to have their heads in the clouds — but they don't always have their feet on the ground. These persons are natural humanitarians — and would rather "give the world" than repair the kitchen sink.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be independent, original, but don't be in too much of a hurry. Steer clear of legal complications. Learn rules before attempting to sidetrack them. Some past associations are concluded.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Much that occurs is behind the scenes, hidden or secretive. Low-key approach is necessary. Be discreet. Let others do most of the talking. You may be visiting friend who is confined to home hospital.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Socialize — see and be seen. No time to hide light under proverbial bushel. Key is to make known your wishes. Many desires now can be fulfilled. Affairs of heart dominates. Love is in air.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be aware of details. Fine points check between the lines. Promises are fine — but get them in writing. Stress practicality. Check home, real estate values. Career opportunity comes from unexpected source.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Hold off on four-year Reservations require check-ins as do appointments. Relatives, neighbors could prove argumentative. Be prepared for quick changes. Communication from a distance figures prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Guard valuables. Careless new results in loss. Request by family member may be expensive proposition. Be fair, but remember budget resolutions. Realize you cannot buy affection. You will understand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Partnerships, relationships supposedly permanent come under fire. You find out where you stand in 1972.

Auburn QB May Join Musso On Sidelines

... SORE ARM HINDERS SULLIVAN

Mobile, Ala. (UPI) — The South, hoping to rise again after its New Year's Day bowl setbacks at Miami and New Orleans, was faced with critical offensive problems Thursday as it prepared for Saturday's Senior Bowl football game.

As if it wasn't enough to lose Alabama's all-American running back, Johnny Musso, from injuries he suffered in the Crimson Tide's Orange Bowl loss to Nebraska, it now appears the South also may be without the services of Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan.

The all-American quarterback for Auburn turned up with a sore throwing arm Wednesday and South coach J. D. Roberts of the New Orleans Saints said it was "uncertain at the moment" how much, if any, Sullivan could play Saturday.

Fortunately, Roberts has another sensational passer on hand, John Reeves of Florida. Roberts said Thursday he was now building the South's offense around Reeves who set the all time major college career passing record by gaining a whopping 7,549 air yards in his three seasons with the Florida Gators.

"They tell me the South is supposed to be the favorite," said Roberts, "But I don't see how this can be when you look at the North's tremendous interior line."

"Our defense is the best I've seen in my four trips to the Senior Bowl," said North coach Alex Webster of the New York Giants. "There are four fellows in our secondary I'd like to take back to New York and start next year."

The South picked up Lewis Jolley of North Carolina to replace the injured Musso and will pair him with 210 pound Curt Watson of Tennessee as its starting running backs.

"I'll start Dean Carlson of Iowa State at quarterback and Gary Kosins of Dayton and Frank Harris of Penn State as my running backs," said Webster. "That Kosins (210 pounder who rushed for 2,812 yards and 41 touchdowns, at Dayton) has been outstanding this week and Harris (a 239 pounder who also topped the 2,000 yards career mark) is the type runner pro teams look for."

Neither Roberts nor Webster wanted to talk specifics when the subject of next month's college draft came up. But Webster nodded in agreement when Roberts said: "There are a lot of people here we could use, but we aren't going after them by position. Rather, we'll grab the best available athlete each time our turn rolls around."

Roberts expressed disappointment over not getting a chance to see Musso in action but said he did not feel that the Alabama star's present injury (a hamstring) will keep him out of pro ball.

Tampa Site For Colts In Training

... SORE ARM HINDERS SULLIVAN

Tampa, Fla. (AP) — Tampa's push for a pro football franchise reached a new plateau Thursday when the Baltimore Colts agreed to move their training camp here and play three pre-season games in Tampa Stadium.

The Tampa Sports Authority guarantee the sale of a minimum of 45,000 "season" tickets for the three games at $21 each.

Baltimore will train at the University of South Florida beginning in early July and will play the Washington Redskins here Aug. 5, the Pittsburgh Steelers Aug. 26 and the Detroit Lions Sept. 4.

The announcement was made jointly by Colt owner Carroll Rosenbloom, game promoter Bill Marcum and sports authority chairman Leonard Levy.

Baltimore had trained at Western Maryland College in Westminster, Md., for most of the 19 years that textile millionaire Rosenbloom has owned the National Football League powerhouse.

"Our purpose is to fill the stadium and make them happy," said Levy. "If this leads to a decision on the part of the Colts to move the franchise to Tampa, that's fine."

Rosenbloom said he is not thinking past the 1972 plans.

"We're coming down and we're happy about it," he told Tampa Tribune sports editor Tom McEwen. "We are only talking about the summer of '72 and nothing beyond that."

However, if all goes well, the future will take care of itself.

Rosenbloom complained late last summer when the Colts averaged only 15,000 for preseason games, their first nonleague events for several years at Municipal Stadium in Baltimore.

Now a resident of Golden Beach, on Florida's lower east coast, Rosenbloom parlayed an original $13,000 investment in what is now considered a $25 million NFL franchise.

Cleveland Signs Infielder Nettles

Cleveland (AP) — Craig Nettles, who set two major league records for a third baseman last year, signed his 1972 contract with the Cleveland Indians Thursday.

Terms of the contract were not announced, but President Gabe Paul said negotiations were "conducted on the basis of Craig's outstanding performance last year."

Nettles in the 1971 season set major league records in the number of double plays participated in by a third baseman, 54, and the number of assists by a third baseman, 407.

He played in 158 games, hit 28 homers and drove in 86 runs, both team highs. His batting average was .261.

Odom Shot By Youths Near Home

Macon, Ga. (AP) — John "Blue Moon" Odom, Oakland Athletics pitcher, was shot twice Thursday as he attempted to stop two young men who tried to break into a neighbor's house, police reported.

Odom, 26, was hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

Detectives J. F. Huff and J. T. Brown said the incident happened several blocks from a liquor store where Odom was working.

They said Odom's wife, Terry, telephoned him and said the pair was attempting to break into a neighbor's house.

Odom left the liquor store and was walking toward the address, but passed the youths on the way and Mrs. Odom signaled to him, the detectives said.

They said Odom turned, followed the youths, and shortly told them, "Hey, I want to talk to you."

The youths turned, and one of them shot Odom twice, once in the left side of the neck, and again in his right side, with a small caliber pistol, the detectives reported.

Mrs. Odom took her husband to a hospital and he walked in, they said.

Police were looking for the two youths.

Odom, who won 10 and lost 12 for Oakland last year, is a native of Macon.

He was signed to a $75,000 bonus contract with the then Kansas City Athletics in 1964.

Cubs Show 'Happy Group' At Chicago Press Meeting

... TROUBLESHOOTERS AID DUROCHER

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs, who closed the 1971 season on a sour note, were an ostensibly happy group in their first 1972 public unveiling Thursday.

The occasion was the club's winter press shindig at which controversial 65-year-old manager Leo Durocher was palsy-walsy with his dissidents of 1971 and several new top-level, trouble shooting aides.

Durocher was rehired last Nov. 17 for the coming season by owner Phil Wrigley after a 1971 campaign marked by alleged player rebellion and media clamor for Leo the Lip's dismissal.

But more than a dozen Cub players, including Ron Santo, Joe Pepitone and Milt Pappas—all tabbed to be in Leo's doghouse—showed up, along with a new "liaison man," Hank Aguirre, and promoted Whitey Lockman, once strongly rumored as Durocher's managerial replacement.

The Cubs announced Thursday that Lockman, a former first baseman under Durocher with the old New York Giants, was appointed "assistant to the vice president."

That meant Lockman now will have a stronger hand in evaluating major league potential and player deals, in addition to continuing as supervisor of player development.

Santo, Pepitone and Pappas, all involved in a celebrated Aug. 23 clubhouse shouting match with Durocher, said 1972 is another season.

"I felt that Leo was coming back for 1972 even before his rehiring was announced," said Santo. "Our squabble was blown out of proportion. I'm going to play 150 per cent this season."

Pepitone, destined for full first base duty with assignment of Ernie Banks to first-base coaching, said: "So, we had one little difference. But, with my personality, I couldn't play for any other manager except Durocher."

Pappas, listed by Durocher as a first-line pitcher with Cy Young winner Fergie Jenkins, Bill Hands and rookie Burt Hooton, said: "I never had any real argument with Leo. He's the boss and we're professionals. As long as he let's me pitch, I'm happy."

Aguirre, former major league pitcher, said his new job as "information and services coach" actually was suggested by Durocher to Wrigley.

Wrigley earlier explained that Aguirre will be a liaison man between Durocher and the press, players and spectators at Wrigley Field.

"Leo's office will remain open to the press," said Aguirre, "but he'll keep me informed on things the press needs to know when he may be unavailable."

"Actually, my biggest job is with the players on their grievances and problems on which they previously fell reluctant about approaching Leo."

In uniform with coaching status, Aguirre will be on the Cub bench to fulfill still another duty. "I will relay to the field announcer information of interest to attending fans, like umpire rulings, ejections, injuries, and other pertinent developments," said Aguirre.

Durocher shied from any predictions for the Cubs, who last season finished tied for third with the New York Mets, 14 games behind the champion Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

However, Leo said two newly-acquired players, Rick Monday from the Oakland A's and Jose Cardenal from the Milwaukee Brewers will be his starting center and left fielders.

Johnny Callison, a platooned right-fielder, is trade bait, but Jim Hickman, outfielder-first baseman, remains a Cub fixture, Durocher said.

Nolan To Head NFC All-Stars In Bowl Game

Los Angeles (AP) — San Francisco's Dick Nolan, who coached the National Conference All-Stars to a 27-6 victory in last year's Pro Bowl, will try to repeat Jan. 23 at Memorial Coliseum.

The 49er mentor was named Thursday to coach the NFC squad in the 22nd annual allstar game against the American Conference club coached by Don McCafferty of the Baltimore Colts.

Adams, Elmwood Gain Berths In Final Contest

... AT MUDECAS TOURNAMENT

Prep Sports Writer

Beatrice — Adams and Elmwood advanced to the finals of Nebraska's oldest high school conference basketball tournament at the 42nd annual MUDECAS championships here Thursday night.

Adams bombed Table Rock, 87-71, while Elmwood squeezed out a 56-52 victory over Filley in the semifinal nightcap.

Returning Adams all-stater Kim Veerhusen pumped in his first four shots from the field as the Hornets jumped to a quick 13-4 lead at the outset of the opener against Table Rock.

Ed Kroll got Table Rock's first bucket midway through the initial quarter to spark a comeback surge which closed the gap to five points at 13-8.

But Adams was soon off and running again. The margin was up to 19 before halftime and Adams led by 27 points when Veerhusen retired with a pulled leg muscle with two minutes left in the third quarter.

—EARLIEST ATLANTA SELLOUT— 'Ambitious' Hawks Ready For Lakers

Atlanta (AP) — "Somebody's got to beat 'em sooner or later," says Richie Guerin, coach of the road-weary Atlanta Hawks. "It might as well be us."

Guerin and the Hawks returned from a West Coast trip at 10:30 a.m. Thursday, but they have less than 34 hours to prepare for the hottest team in the history of professional sports, the streaking Los Angeles Lakers, who made the Cleveland Cavaliers their 32nd consecutive National Basketball Association victim Wednesday night.

The Lakers and Hawks collide at 8 p.m. here Friday before a 7,192 sellout in Alexander Memorial Coliseum. All tickets were gone at noon Tuesday, marking the earliest sellout for the Hawks since the team moved to Atlanta from St. Louis in 1968.

"We feel we match up well against them and we've always played them real tough," said Guerin.

The Lakers have beaten Atlanta twice this year — 126-104 in Atlanta Oct. 20 and 104-85 in Los Angeles Dec. 12, the 21st victory in the streak and the one that cracked the NBA record of 20 held by the Milwaukee Bucks. Gail Goodrich poured in 32 points in the record-setting victory.

"They have gone from a set pattern offense to a running game and we will have to put pressure on them at all times if we expect to win," Guerin said.

"They used to be the kind of team that waited for Wilt Chamberlain to get down court before starting their offense," he added. "Now Chamberlain gets the ball off the board and everybody takes off. He gets the ball to Jerry West or Goodrich and they penetrate extremely well and hit the open man for an easy shot."

Atlanta played three games in four days on the West Coast, winning two. The Hawks dropped a 121-116 decision to Seattle Wednesday night and spent normal sleeping hours in travel back to Atlanta.

Walt Bellamy, Atlanta's 6-foot-11 center, has been the club's hottest player in the last 10 games, averaging more than 25 per outing. However, he played 40 minutes at Portland Tuesday night and went the 43-minute distance against the Sonics.

Following his team's 113-103 loss to the Lakers Wednesday night, Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch said Los Angeles faced its "toughest challenge" in its next two games — the Hawks Friday and Milwaukee Sunday.

"If they get by the Bucks," said Fitch, "the Lakers will be the greatest team ever."

Dallas Allowed To Keep Tickets

Dallas (AP) — A Dallas judge ruled Thursday that the Dallas Cowboys do not have to turn over 300 tickets to the Superbowl to a recreational firm.

The firm, Club America, which gives its members trips and other merchandise at group rates, contended it had an oral agreement with the Cowboys to purchase the tickets for $4,500 if the Dallas team were to play in the Super Bowl.

Colin Ridgway, a former Cowboys player, is an executive of the firm. The contended that travel arrangements to New Orleans and the tickets have already been sold to its members.

Hula Clubs Given Tour In Hawaii

Honolulu (UPI) — All 60 players here for Saturday's annual Hula Bowl football game were given a tour of Pearl Harbor Thursday and visited with patients at Tripler Army Medical Center.

Then it was back to the practice field for the North and South teams who clash in this 26th annual post-season classic.

About 16 pro football scouts are here for the contest and have been at every practice session, noticeable with notebooks in their hands.

And most of the scouts feel that Oregon halfback Bobby Moore will be the first player to be drafted from among the players here for Saturday's contest.

The North, with six all-Americans, must be rated the favorite over the South, which has two all-Americans.

The South, however, has four players who were given outstanding performer honors in post-season games while the North has three.

Junior Ah You of Arizona State, a local lad who is slated to open at defensive end and a second-team all-American choice, was named the outstanding defensive player in the Fiesta Bowl.

Jack Mildren, quarterback from Oklahoma, was named the outstanding performer in the Sugar Bowl. Bob Newhouse of Houston was given the same honor in the Astro Bluebonnet Bowl and SMU's Gary Hammond won the outstanding offensive player prize in the East West Shrine game.

For the North, Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge was named the outstanding back in the Orange Bowl while Don Bunce, who will battle Tagge for a starting berth, was given the same honor in the Rose Bowl. Penn State's Lydell Mitchell was named the outstanding offensive player in the Cotton Bowl.

Laub Nabs Top Spot In Tourney

New York (UPI) — Winning five of his match games Thursday Night, Larry Laub, San Francisco right-hander, has moved into first place as the match game segment of play began in the $100,000 PBAA U.S. Open Bowling Tournament.

The competition at Madison Square Garden goes into its next-to-last day Friday with two more eight-game blocks before the five finalists are known.

Ernie Schlegel, Newburgh, N.Y., the tournament leader since Tuesday's second round, was in the top position until his final game against George Pappas, Charlotte, N. C. When Pappas took a 215-201 decision Schlegel, trying for his first PBA crown, fell to third place.

Johnny Petraglia, Brooklyn, N.Y., leading money-winner in 1971 with over $35,000, slipped into second when he defeated Rich Bennett, Owego, N.Y., 225-187, in the last game of the evening session.

As the 24 semi-finalists, survivors of two previous reductions in the field, awaited Friday's action, Laub was 29 in front of Petraglia, who was three pins ahead of Schlegel.

Brownson Set For QB Job

Tampa, Fla. (UPI) — The head coaches for the Lions American Bowl football game announced tentative starting lineups Thursday with Van Brownson of Nebraska quarterbacking the North and Brian Sipe of San Diego State at the helm of the South.

The fourth annual game is scheduled for 1 p.m. Sunday at Tampa Stadium.

North head coach Pepper Rodgers of UCLA and South coach Doug Dickey of Florida sent their teams through some limited hitting Thursday with emphasis on execution and timing.

Joining Brownson in the North backfield will be running backs Larry McCutcheon of Colorado State and Randy Jackson of Wichita State, and Fred Riley of Idaho at flanker.

Behind Sipe in the South backfield will be flanker Carlos Alvarez of Florida and running backs Bob James of New Mexico State and Stahle Vincent of Rice.

Viking Page Earns Honor For Defense

New York (AP) — Alan Page of the Minnesota Vikings, one of the main reasons Coach Bud Grant created a new defensive measuring stick called "hurry," was named Defensive Player of the Year in the National Football League by The Associated Press Thursday.

The 6-foot-4, 245-pound Page thus becomes the first player to win the accolade, instituted this year to reward the outstanding defensive players in the NFL. And there is little doubt that Page deserves the honor.

During the 1971 season in which the Vikings won the Central Division title in the National Conference, Page was credited with making 109 tackles and sacking the quarterback 10 times.

He also assisted on 35 tackles and two sacks scored two safeties, was responsible for a third, blocked one field goal attempt and was credited with 42 "hurries."

The defensive statistic Grant calls a "hurry" is designed to measure the number of times a defensive player forces a quarterback to throw the ball before he wants to. While it is intended for all of Minnesota's defensive linemen, it is made for Page.

... DOLPHINS LAND FIVE PLAYERS

New York (AP) — The Miami Dolphins will outnumber the Dallas Cowboys 5-3 in All-Pro performers — including quarterback Bob Griese — when the teams battle for the Super Bowl championship in New Orleans, Jan. 16.

Griese and a quartet of teammates — running back Larry Csonka, wide receiver Paul Warfield, guard Larry Little, and placekicker Garo Yepremian — all were named to The Associated Press All-Pro team Thursday by a panel of 60 writers and sportscasters.

Griese took the quarterback spot in a tight contest with Dallas passer Roger Staubach, receiving 25 votes to 21 for the Cowboys' leader. But while Staubach failed in his All-Pro bid, three teammates did make it — tackle Rayfield Wright, guard John Noland and defensive tackle Bob Lilly.

Besides the Dolphins and Cowboys, the other offensive All-Pro was John Brockington of Green Bay at running back, Otis Taylor of Kansas City at wide receiver, Ron Yary of Minnesota at tackle and Forrest Blue of San Francisco at center.

The other defensive All-Pro was Bubba Smith of Baltimore at end, Willie Lanier of Kansas City at middle linebacker, Ted Hendricks of the Colts and Dave Wilcox of San Francisco at outside linebackers. Bill Bradley of Philadelphia at free safety, Rick Volk of Baltimore at strong safety and Willie Brown of Oakland at cornerback.

Kansas City also placed six men on the AFC All-Conference Team. The Chiefs' contingent consisted of Taylor, Lanier, tackle Jim Tyrer, defensive end Aaron Brown, outside linebacker Bob Bell and cornerback Emmitt Thomas.

WISHING WELL

by William J. Miller

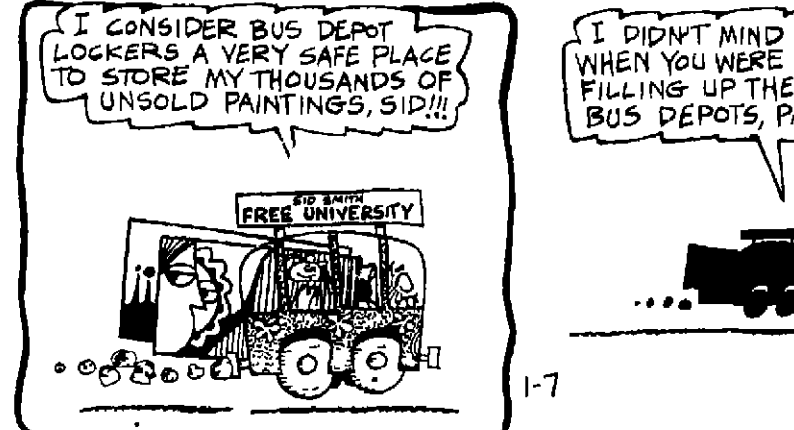

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 5 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 5, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every sixth of your key number left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
